PRINCE LOUIS RECALLS FORMER DAYS IN THE CITY

When Years ago He was on this Station as Midshipman on the Royal Alfred—Pleasant Times Spent in Charlottetown—The Functions of Yesterday Afternoon—The Ball at Night.

Notwithstanding a slight downfall of rain that continued all yesterday afternoon the city was in gala attire in honor of the visit of His Serene Highness and hundreds thronged the streets and stood in the rain awaiting a glimpse of the representative of royalty as he passed from the wharf to the City Building and thence to Government House and later the athletic and golf grounds.

The civic holiday was very generally observed by the stores and other public places of business which nearly all closed for the half holiday proclaimed by His Worship the Mayor.

The hallways of the City Building were very artistically decorated inside with bunting and autumn leaves while the Council Chamber itself was very tastefully arranged with plants, bunting and leaves.

Shortly after two o'clock the Prince escorted by the Mayor and Council drove to the Building, greeting as he passed along the assembled crowds on the streets.

The Council Chamber made a pretty picture with the bright dresses of the ladies and the floral decorations combined with the natural beauty of the room. When the Prince was seated, the Mayor read the following address:

To HIS SERENE HIGHNESS, PRINCE LOUIS ALEXANDER OF BATTENBERG G. C. B., G. C. V. O., PERSONAL A. D. C. TO HIS MAJESTY KING EDWARD VII., REAR ADMIRAL R. N. ETC., ETC.

May it please your Serene Highness, The Mayor and the City Council of the City of Charlottetown, in behalf of themselves and of the citizens in general, desire to give expression to their pleasure at being afforded this opportunity of welcoming Your Serene Highness to our City. We welcome Your Highness as an illustrious member of the Royal Family which has bestowed such greatness upon the British Empire, and for whose august head we all entertain the deepest feelings of sincere loyalty and personal admiration. Nowhere, within the vast domain of the Empire, will Your Serene Highness find a people more pleased to welcome a representative of the Throne in whatever capacity such representation is made, and this is especially true with regard to the representation embodied in His Majesty's Royal Navy. It therefore affords us much pleasure to extend the right hand of welcome to Your Highness as a worthy representative of that Navy, whose brilliant record of the past and whose eminent prestige of the present endear it to the hearts of every British subject.

While, as industrious citizens, we love the ways of peace, and admire those eminent services of our august Sovereign which have earned for His Royal person the title of Peace-maker, nevertheless we recognize the fact that one of the most effective means for maintaining peace is to be prepared to meet its violation, and we believe that in this British Empire there is no stronger advocate of peace than this same glorious Navy, which has ever proved itself to be the giant shield and the impregnable bulwark of the nation's welfare.

We beg to remain Your Serene Highness's most obedient servants; FRANK F. KELLY, Mayor, D. L. HOOPER, Mayor, JAMES PATON, Mayor, F. L. HAZARD, Recorder, D. J. RILEY, Recorder, W. W. CLARKE, City Clerk, B. C. PROWSE, D. STEWART, GORDON T. ALLEY, D. OLM. BIDDIN, HENRY RODGERS JR.

His Serene Highness was pleased to reply as follows: I thank you most heartily for giving me so warm a welcome to your city. As a midshipman of the flagship Royal Alfred a long time ago I spent some happy years on this station repeatedly visiting your harbor. I am therefore very glad to find myself here once more having preserved the pleasantest memories of Charlottetown.

The officers and men under my command are equally pleased to find themselves in your snug harbor and we all greatly appreciate the friendly hospitality extended to us by you.

I note with much satisfaction your reference to the great national service which I have the honor to represent here today and to which we all in the squadron are so proud to belong.

During the past few weeks I have visited the principal sea port and inland towns of the Dominion and everywhere I have found the same true appreciation so eloquently expressed in your address of the services of the navy and its intimate connection with the security and prosperity of this and all other overseas possessions of the British Crown.

Your expression of loyalty to our illustrious Sovereign will be very pleasing to His Majesty when the account of the reception given here to his officers reaches him.

As the Prince stepped down from the platform little Miss Vera M. Hooper, the pretty little daughter of Councillor Hooper presented him with a beautiful bouquet and was rewarded with a kiss.

Then followed the reception in which a very large number of citizens were presented to the Prince and received each a hearty handshake and a smile.

During the reception the rain began to fall but still the spectators lingered till the Prince, after changing his outer attire for one more fitted for the rain, proceeded to Government House.

Here the party was joined by His Honor the Lieutenant Governor and all proceeded to the Athletic Grounds and afterwards to the Golf Links. Returning to the city the Prince paid a visit to Capt. and Mrs. Mellish at their home, Rochford street west.

The ball at Government House last night was the most elaborate affair held here for a long time. There was a large attendance and Governor and Mrs. MacKinnon made charming host and hostess. These present dispersed about two o'clock after a long to be remembered pleasant evening.

The warships are expected to sail about nine o'clock this morning.

DISASTROUS FIRE DESTROYS NOME

TRIBUTES TO THE LATE MAYOR COLLINS

BOSTON, Sept. 17.—In nearly every church in Boston and vicinity today, no matter the creed, reference in sermon or prayer was made to the life and death of the late Mayor Patrick A. Collins. In the Roman Catholic churches, to which faith the deceased was a devout adherent, prayers were offered for the repose of his soul, while in the Hebrew congregation, especially assembled, the ancient prayer of mourning was recited, and in the Protestant churches pastors took the occasion to give voice to the general sorrow.

While the family of the late mayor had requested that no flowers be sent, many municipalities, towns, city departments and organizations have used this means of paying a last tribute. Nearly all the Massachusetts cities have sent floral designs.

The tribute from the Boston city government is a magnificent one. It is a beautiful design representing the city seal and is eight feet square. It is made on a plaque, which is composed of 10,000 white asters. The seal is of purple asters to represent Boston harbor with ships made of lilacs of the valley. The city itself is of white violets, and the state house dome of yellow orchids. There are large clusters of American beauty roses on the side and white roses with bunches of orchids, gladioli and lilies.
