CORONER'S INQUEST. VERDICT RENDERED.

Witness Testifies that he Saw the Deceased Falling off the Car and over Wharf.

LLEWELYN YELLED TWICE.—IT WAS NOT DARK.

Victim of Accident seen Battling with the Waves.—He Came Close to the Wharf and then Pushed Himself Away.—The Jury are of Opinion that the Wharf Should be put in Proper Shape for Passenger Traffic.

An investigation to enquire into the drowning accident in which Mr. Charles Llewelyn lost his life on Tuesday night last was held before Coroner Bowness, beginning at 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon with Attorney General Peters and a number of citizens present. Testimony was given and sworn to as follows:

Mary Wedge.—I was on Railway Wharf Tuesday night. I know Charles Llewelyn and saw him coming out from the baggage car. Did not speak to him. It was dark where he was. I think he went to jump over, thinking it was the road. I heard the splash and called the people. They tried to save him. It was a conductor on a train who made the first efforts. Llewelyn yelled. He did not say anything that I know. Ella Perry was with me. There was a boy on the platform of the car. I was on the wharf side of the car. The train was standing still. There were no lights in the car. A man came out of the car with a lantern. I did not notice any lights on the wharf.

Ella Perry.—I was on the wharf. I know Llewelyn. Saw his shadow passing through the car. Did not see him fall. Heard the splash and heard him hellow. The wharf was dark except for the engine lights and a lantern a man brought out.

Alban Gillan.—I know Llewelyn. Was not with him last night. I was just going down the wharf and passed Emanuel Gallant, and Gallant yelled, "man over board." I did not hear Llewelyn calling. Emanuel said he had just fallen over as I passed. I saw Llewelyn in the water. I could see him working his hands, and hear the water splashing. He made no call at that time. I went to the baggage car and the men brought out a rope which they threw to him. He made no effort to catch it. There were no lights. The light of the car was shining on the water. He was two or three feet from the wharf. It was very dark around there. Don't know if any could have saved him by going down or throwing to him a stick. I did not hear until he sank. He was in the water I think 10 or 15 minutes. I don't know how they took him out. There was a light in the car.

Emanuel Gallant. I was on the wharf. I did not know Charles Llewelyn. I saw a man coming from the car, and he put his foot down and slipped off the edge of the wharf and fell over. There was no one near him. He fell on the opposite side of the car from the one I was on. I immediately yelled out. Llewelyn yelled twice, but not very loud. I saw no person near him. It was not very dark. We could see very well. I did not get up on the car for a little time but when I did I saw him in the water, and saw him sink.

The jury are of the opinion that this said Railway wharf is in a dilapidated condition and insufficiently lighted, that additional light should be provided at once, and the wharf put in proper shape for passenger traffic.
