SPLENDID WORK OF THE CANADIANS Y.M.C.A. IN WAR

NORTHERN FRANCE, Feb. 13.—One of the most extraordinary stories in connection with the growth of the Canadian Divisions is that of the organization and rise into prominence of the Canadian Y. M. C. A. At first came to know of the Canadian Y. M. C. A., at the outskirts of a town in France early last year says the special correspondent to the Star. The organization was then in its infancy. In fact, Capt. Pearson, who was running the place, which was situated in a small room at the back of an estaminet had in his possession about six cases of goods, and when I arrived he was wondering how the goods could be moved if the division was suddenly ordered away.
Since that time, and despite all kinds of difficulties that have arisen, the organization has never looked back, and it has grown to be such a power in the field that one wonders where and when the Canadian Y. M. C. A. will reach its maximum output.
Capt. Pearson was at one time glad to give my men all the socks, writing paper, pencils, soap, and all kinds of other useful articles he had on hand, which he thought would have to be left behind as superfluous, but it takes many huge motor lorries to deal with the vast quantities of goods that arrive and have to be again shipped to the fourteen different centres of the fighting area, where the Canadians have their tents or huts for the comfort of the trench-fighter.
Then again Capt. Pearson had only to deal with the First Canadian Division in February, but now he has control of the Y. M. C. A. work of the whole Canadian forces, and has ten other Canadian Y. M. C. A. captains and forty men on the staff, who, by the way, seem very hard worked trying to keep pace with the volume of orders that pour in.
SHELLS BURST ABOUT TENTS.
All the fourteen tents of huts along the Canadian lines are within reach of the German guns; in fact, some are so close to the enemy lines that the bursting of shells close at hand is taken as part of the day's noise, and nothing to write home a complaining letter about. Most of these tents are open day and night.
In December, 1500 cases of pork and beans were distributed and sold in two weeks and despite the splendid manner in which the headquarters has cornered the market for these goods the supply is far short of the demand.

Huge quantities of writing paper and pencils are got through monthly, and the record was established last month when 300,000 sheets of note paper and a like quantity of envelopes were given free to all troops.
Games of all kinds are also provided free, football, draughts, chess, ring football, baseball, and all classes of other sporting outfit, are kept on hand, and lavishly handed out to the men, so that hours out of the trenches may be spent in healthy amusement.
Concerts and singings are held regularly in the various centres, while ten pianos provide music in the big marquees, and ten moving picture machines provide entertainment which is thoroughly enjoyed. There are also eighteen splendid gramophones and a huge quantity of records.
Quite as a side line the headquarters has also established a free gramophone record exchange. Books and magazines are also sent up to the trenches in huge quantities, while at all the huts and tents stacks of the latest Canadian newspapers are kept, on the files, from which many Canadian soldiers gather local and public news of the homeland.

DISTRIBUTE HOT SOUP.
Practically the best thing done by the Canadian Y. M. C. A. is the issue of hot soup to men in the trenches. This is made during the evening in huge "dickies," and carried up to the trenches at midnight.
Only those who have stood on sentry in the cold, muddy and waterlogged trenches, during those awful hours when night turns into day, can understand and appreciate the value of that cup of hot soup. Further, the soup is issued and taken to the men without cost.
Hot coffee is also given free to any chance teamster, or motor driver who may chance to pass any of the huts or tents in the Canadian area.
In a word, the head quarters estaminet is the best known place in the two Canadian divisions. Here all wants are supplied, even an exchange in foreign or colonial money is dabbed in; and it is also a place to get warm and dry, with a cheery greeting, and kind word thrown in.
Over one hundred cases of provisions of all kinds are handled daily, the stuff travelling east as far as Bethune and south to Lillier, north on the Arrantiers line, and west to the shell-torn death city of Ypres.
That a great work is being done can readily be seen by readers at home, but it is those tired boys of ours, just out of the zone where death stalks day and night, where the hiss of bullets, the scream, moan and crash of shells is heard, that can really appreciate this splendid work, carried on at a profit which barely pays expenses, and solely for the well being of our soldiers, whether they be Canadian or British.

THE VALUE OF TRUTH
Truth in business is just as important as truth in every-day life; truth creates confidence, establishes good-will and builds a reliability that will not be wrecked by the storms of competition.
Through three generations people have learned to place reliance on the advertised words of Scott's Emulsion, because they are untampered, unexaggerated truths about a household remedy of real and actual worth.
The popularity of Scott's Emulsion is increasing as intelligence advances, because in these days of adulterations it continues to guarantee pure cod liver oil medicinally perfected with glycerine and hypophosphites to build strength, improve the blood and strengthen the lungs. It is free from harmful drugs—a wholesome food- tonic, truthfully advertised.

WOMEN AND FARMING
There are certain things women can do on the lighter and more fancy side of life on the land; but for a life on the land it must be such as will earn a living throughout the twelve months of the year, and this is restrictive. In emergency women patriotically inclined could render service by becoming good milkers, in tree grafting—a much graver business in the future than many can believe—and so on; but they must do it in earnest, and those who will submit to it should do it at once so they may be trained by the time they are most needed. The idea that three weeks' training in farm work makes an efficient worker must go by the board; yet it was seriously entertained a few months ago. No service is rendered by publishing portraits of popular people holding a sheaf on a fork in impossible position, stuck into the sheaf in an impracticable place. One is almost inclined to sympathize with the old Buckinghamshire farmer who, seeing some of these aspirants of three weeks' training in the hayfield, said they meant well, but seemed better suited to husbandry than agriculture.
In deciding what are skilled labors to be retained on the farm, the essential workman to be retained in each instance should be regulated by the demands of the farmer, as indicated by the probable help from unskilled, and not merely by the live-

HE KNOWS WHAT HE IS.
Here is a story; not a local story, but one which occurred to a local man. He was standing one day at the desk in the old Fifth Avenue Hotel in New York, when he was accosted by a man who said, "Look at me."
The local man looked and said, "I see you."
"Well look again," emphasized the man.
"What's unusual about you?" was the assertion.
"You don't? Well, you look closely and you'll see a perfect specimen of the fool."
"That's according to your definition" was the puzzled response.
"It's nobody's definition; it's a fact. Let me tell you, I went into the wrong room; took off my overcoat hanging it on the back of my chair, and sat down to write a letter. I became so absorbed in my writing that when I felt a tap on my shoulder and heard a voice say, 'I beg your pardon, but you're sitting on my overcoat,' I sprang up, said, 'I beg your pardon!' bowed; sat down again, when the man had departed, finished my letter, got up to take my overcoat and then realized that I was just what I told you I was, a perfect specimen of the fool."
