A KNIGHT OF THE GRIPSACK

Who called at our store a few days ago said, "You have the prettiest colored shirts I ever saw in any town," needless to say he bought one.

He was right. There are no better. We sell the W. G. & R. make, not the cheap, gaudy kind that fades in the first or second wash. The (woods) town is full of that kind.

If you want a shirt that is first class in make, up-to-date in pattern and holds its color to the last day you wear it. Buy our $1.10, $1.25, $1.35 or $1.50 shirt.

DID GERMANY MEAN TO HAVE WAR

With the Neighboring Republic to the South

A Significant Statement Made by Sir Charles Dilke On the Capacity of the American for Battle.

New York, May 10.—Sir Charles Dilke, M. P., in a signed letter to The World today, says: "Were it not for the growing power of the United States, I cannot but think that there might have been pressure brought to bear by Germans on the German empire to give effect to the German dreams of territorial expansion in South America. Such action on the part of Germany would have produced war. In this case, if I am right, the obvious strength and intention and awakened interest of the United States have worked for peace.

"If in the future the United States should decide in favor of a more active policy in China, in defense of the open door, than she has practised in the past, it is conceivable that the policy might bring her into conflict with Russia, now pressing forward her direct railway to Kalgan—let us say Pekin, I think, however, that, looking to the habit of Russia to yield in time rather than face the risk of unsuccessful war, such fresh activity on the part of the United States would be more likely to divert Russia to one of her other fields, altho it is possible that this diversion might increase the risk of war—for the United Kingdom, rather than for the United States.

"If, again, the United States should on behalf this time of sentiment or of religious institutions, rather than, as in China, for political consideration, take in Eastern Europe and in Asia Minor a more active interest in the position of the subject Christian populations, here again her power would make, I think, for peace rather than toward war.

"It will be seen that I assume that no nation, except her honor is at stake, will fight the United States in future. A coalition against America is to my mind impossible, although we know that it is not many years ago that such a coalition was dreamt of in some continental states. Single handed, no power is going to measure herself with the United States, if she possibly can help it.

'I have always thought that even when war breaks out among the European nations the power of the United States will tend to shorten its duration by insistence on the rights of neutrals. The increase of your fleet will strengthen the hands of the United States in supporting that exercise of the rights of neutral by herself and by the South American States which has always been a portion of her policy; but, even without the increase of her fleet, the known power of the United States is sufficient to prevent any belligerent, or even any European coalition from insisting in any future war upon that high assertion and exercise of belligerent right for which some authority may be found in the musty precedents of so-called international law.'
