ABSENCE OF DOLE STOPS EMIGRANTS

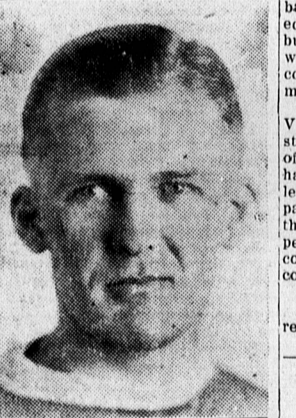

London, Feb. 5.—There is one indication it seems, which Canada cannot offer British emigrants and failing it many of them do not wish to emigrate. It is the absence of the dole. Remarkable, as it may seem, a large number of applicants for transportation to Canada under the new cheap passage scheme of the Canadian Government have cancelled their applications on learning by inquiry that the dole system does not exist in Canada. Nothing could better illustrate the extent to which the existence of this system has enticed the independence and enterprise of a section of the inhabitants of this country. W. J. Egan, Deputy Minister of Emigration, who has been conducting a tour of investigation of Canadian continental emigration agencies, will be understood, return almost immediately to Canada.

James Steedsman, M.P.

Of Deloraine, Manitoba, a member of the fifteenth Canadian parliament.

Of all the commodities that Canada exports to British Guiana and the Eastern group of the British West Indies, flour is the most important, writes Trade Commissioner, H. R. Pousset, Trinidad, in the forthcoming issue of the Commercial Intelligence Journal. Canadian flour is now strongly entrenched in these markets, due to its superior qualities. In addition it has behind it the most powerful influence of the tariff preference, which has assisted it in competing with the American product, which for a long time has been dominating the market.

Gleanings From Tryon and Vicinity

The storm of Thursday and Friday was the worst experienced here for three years. All roads and lanes were blocked with great drifts, made so hard by the terrific wind that they would carry the ordinary person with only an occasional sinking. On Saturday every available man was called out and it was late in the afternoon before the work of breaking was complete. The mails from Albany did not come in on either Friday or Saturday. But the Victoria and branch mail handled by Mr. Boulter got through Saturday afternoon.

A young man from the old town road came through to Tryon in the storm Thursday evening on important business. His business was completed about ten o'clock, but the storm was so severe it was not deemed wise to attempt to go home that night. He was persuaded to stop over night by his host (ess). The storm was worse Friday and by the evening had reached the superlative degree of badness. He must needs stay over another night. On Saturday morning he made his way home on foot, leaving his rig behind, which necessitated returning for it on Saturday evening. Our young friend is warm in his appreciation of the friend who so facetiously entertained him. He may come again. He will be welcome.

There were several others who were compelled to seek a safe harbour for the night, and the following day. The new home at Chisholm's corner had its spare room into use for the first time, and there was a worried home close to Albany. Craud had its shipwrecked mariner. It was impossible to make the County Line and under pressure of the circumstances he came to anchor until the storm was passed. These young men ought to consult Miss Howatt for weather probabilities and not take such chances. Or better still bring their business to completion and become permanent residents.

We have read with much interest the letter of Hon. Mr. Lea on the question of erecting a covered rink. We are in sympathy with Mr. Lea's idea of providing clean amusements for our young people, and we know of no better spot than that which can be obtained upon the ice. But our experience and observation is, that it is a very difficult to maintain sufficient interest to keep up an enclosed rink. The initial cost is heavy, and the up keep and overhead is considerable. The experience of the great majority of those who have invested their money in enclosed rinks, is that the interest soon wanes. From two to three years and the attendance becomes very small. All over our provinces such rinks have been abandoned and pulled down, only in the large centres has the support been sufficient to keep them going, in some of these cases they have only been maintained by the fact that considerable revenue could be obtained by using the building during the summer weather for Conventions, political and evangelistic meetings. And such large gatherings, if Victoria, Cranford, Albany and the Cove could be induced to get together a basis of agreement might be worked out by which a rink might be built and kept going, but there would be many difficulties to overcome which would require wise management. It is not impossible, Mr. Lea refers to the time when Victoria had an enclosed rink and states that it was a great source of pleasure and enjoyment. We have no doubt of that, why was it let go down? Was it for lack of patronage after the first two or three years? Did it share the experience of ninety per cent of the country and village rinks over the country?

Mr and Mrs. Ernest Enman are rejoicing over the arrival of a baby girl at their home on Sunday last.

We regret that Mrs. John Nicholson of Crapaud is seriously ill. Mrs. Nicholson, before her marriage was Miss Gladys Dunsford, and taught school at North Tryon, where everybody is her friend. She underwent an operation some time ago at Charlottetown hospital, and has never fully recovered from the effects of the operation. Her complete recovery is hoped for.

Mrs. John Ives of Winnipeg, Manitoba, who has been visiting her mother, Mrs. Gamble, left on Tuesday for Wolfville, N. S. where she will visit her daughter, Mrs. Jones, both Mr. and Mrs. Jones are on the teaching staff of Acadia University. After a short visit to Wolfville Mrs. Ives will return direct to her home in Winnipeg.

THE FARM ICE SUPPLY. (Experimental Farms Note.) On many farms throughout the country no ice is harvested and stored. There are few farm operations that will make such a liberal return on the money and time invested as the laying in of enough ice to meet the requirements of the farm home and dairy. Storage space and equipment need not be elaborate or extensive, ice can be stored under sawdust, etc. in the corner of an open shed for some considerable time, and while the loss will be heavy, the fact is demonstrated that elaborate storage space is not necessary.

It is highly desirable, however, that an ice-house of suitable size be provided. This should be of double-wall construction, with the space between packed with planer shavings. If this building is erected in a shady location a certain saving of ice is effected by eliminating the hot rays of the sun. Good drainage is essential to carry away the waste water. If such drainage does not occur naturally, it must be provided by installing tile drains. Good circulation of air through the top of the house must be provided. Stagnant air becomes stale and at times very hot, causing a rapid melting of the ice. The air, however, must be kept from the ice itself by protecting with heavy layers of sawdust or other packing material. In harvesting, ice that clear, pure ice is used. Ice full of slushy or snowy soft streaks possesses very poor keeping qualities. Cutting is accomplished by a horse-drawn ice plough or power-saw, or may be cut by hand. Mark the ice both ways previous to cutting. Have the cakes as nearly uniform in size as possible as they can then be packed more easily and compactly. In storing, do not place sawdust around each cake, but pack fast as tightly as possible, filling in the cracks with small pieces of ice or snow. The more compact the mass of ice, the better it will keep. At least a foot of planer shavings or sawdust should be placed below the ice before starting to pack. The same amount should be placed around the sides of the building as storing proceeds, and at least eighteen inches or two feet above the top. Approximately 45 cubic feet of space are required to store one ton of ice. If carefully stored, 50 cakes of ice 22 inches square and 12 inches thick will supply the needs of the average family, and about 15 additional cakes of the same size should be added for each cow that is in milk.

EATING WITH BRITISH ROYALTIES BY A LADY OF THE COURT (Edited by Elizabeth Craig) CHERRY SYRUP

Make 1 lb. sugar with 1/2 pint water into syrup of 32 degrees of strength. Boil together 1/2 lb. of red currants and enough Kenish cherries to give you a pint of juice when strained. Mix the fruit juice slowly with the syrup.

ROYAL CHERRY TART Wash the cherries, stalk, and put them in a pie dish. Sprinkle with 2 tablespoonsful powdered sugar when half full then cover with more cherries, piling them high up in the centre. Add 1/2 gill cold water. Now make a rich short crust, using 6 ozs. butter to 1/2 lb. flour, a tablespoonful of powdered sugar, and a pinch of salt. Mix to a soft, but dry dough with as little water as possible, and cover tart in usual way.

AN OPEN CHERRY TART Line an open tartlet tin with rich shortcrust, prick the pastry and cook till brown and crisp. Wash and stalk a pound of cherries and then drop them into a syrup got from boiling 1/2 lb. of loaf sugar in a gill of water for 10 minutes. Simmer cherries very slowly in syrup till tender, then strain off berries. Return syrup to pan, add 1/2 lb. of French gelatine which has been softened in tepid water, stir till gelatine is dissolved, but not over the fire, cool a little, arrange cherries in pastry case and spoon over the syrup. If liked add a few drops of maraschine to the syrup before pouring over fruit.

CHERRY BRANDY Put 3 lbs. Morella cherries, freshly gathered and with half of their stalks removed, into a large glass bottle, strewn in between them the finest loaf sugar—1 lb. 2 ozs. in all. If wanted very sweet add another 1/2 lb. When bottle is almost full pour in 1 1/2 pints good brandy, and add 3 or 4 blanched bitter almonds. Cork up bottle, tie over a piece of bladder, and store away in a dry place for 3 months. Filter through blotting paper and pour into a fresh bottle and seal. Can be used in two months.

THE FAIRY-SLIDE BENNIE was making sand-cakes for the seagulls. His bucket of blue water stood beside him. It was very busy. All at once he heard a splash right there in his bucket was a ren-grass Fairy! It had slid off long grass right into the water. Its little arms flew up and so did its feet. It was so surprised! Then it scampered back to the grass and tried it again. This time it laughed, and kept on sliding until all the water splashed out of Bennie's bucket.
