K. of C. CARNIVAL

WEDNESDAY, JUNE 29th

AT

VICTORIA PARK

NEW GAMES, NEW LOTTERIES
CAKE SALES, BINGO, BOWLING
HOT DOGS, HAMBURGERS

Bring The Family For An Evening's Fun

Proceeds in aid of K. of C. Recreation Centre

CANADIAN LEGION

DANCE

CLOVER CLUB

TUESDAY, JUNE 28TH.

DANCING 9:30 P.M. TO 1 A.M.

For all paid-up Members Charlottetown Branch Canadian Legion

Al Blanchard and Clover Club Band

Vocalist Red Howatt and Miss Mary Campbell

No Admission Charge

STOCKHOLM — (CP) — A helicopter company will begin a service this year to the numerous islands near Sweden's capital city. Regular flights will be made to the archipelago to carry mail and passengers.

OSLO — (CP) — An antlered buck deer didn't phase farm wife Bertine Mostue when it charged her on her farm near Restad, Norway. The woman grabbed the antlers and threw the buck to the ground, holding it until help arrived.

DAILY CROSSWORD

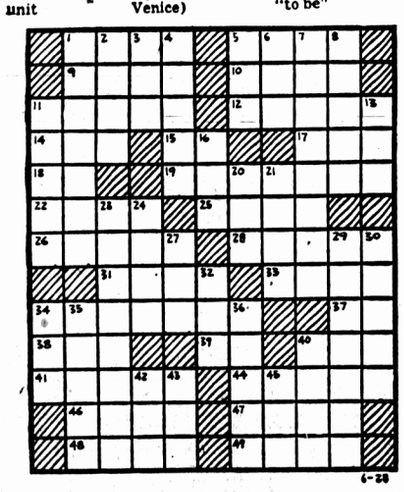
ACROSS

1. A hard, green silicate
5. Crazy (slang)
9. The holm oak
10. Smell
11. Abrupt
12. To give up
14. Devoured
15. Masculine nickname
17. Charge for services
18. Personal pronoun
19. 16th U. S. president
22. Voided escutcheon
25. Young salmon
26. Apart
28. Trifling
31. Large shaggy mammal
33. Biblical name
34. Perfumed
37. Ream (abbr.)
38. Equal
39. Toward
40. South American Indian tribe
41. River in Damascus
44. Street urchin
46. On top
47. Goddess of discord (Gr.)
48. Penitential season
49. Son of Adam

DOWN

1. Intense nervousness (slang)
2. Toward the lee
3. River (Scot.)
4. Put out
5. Weight (Den.)
6. Poem
7. Consoles
8. Bay window
11. Group of islands (SW. Pacific)
13. Decimal unit
16. Slope
20. Short sleep
21. American Indian
23. Free
24. Paradise
27. Devour
29. Lose luster
30. No. Am. Indian linguistic stock
32. Soak flax
34. Resort
35. Conspiracy
36. Chief magistrates (Old Venice)
40. Leave out
42. Not (prefix)
43. Likely
45. Part of "to be"

Yesterday's Answer



DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE—Here's how to work it:

A X Y D L B A A X R
is L O N G F E L L O W

One letter simply stands for another. In this example A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophes, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

A Cryptogram Quotation

P M D, D L J B S D N P D R E M, E P S M L V D S L C G M L V W M F D I B G I Z A I V I D S M V C B I I F — K I K M.

Yesterday's Cryptoquote: SMALL HERBS HAVE GRACE, GREAT WEEDS DO GROW APACE—SHAKESPEARE.

Distributed by King Features Syndicate

(By Thornton W. Burgess)

Your neighbor's welfare is your own;
You cannot live for self alone.
—Yap Yap.

Some folks like best to live by themselves with no near neighbors of their own kind. Johnny Chuck is one of these. Other folks are happy only when living in a village or city with close neighbors on all sides. Yap Yap the Prairie Dog is one of this kind. Nothing could make him unhappier than forcing him to live alone, far from others of his own kind. Folks socially inclined are those who are happiest when in the company of others with whom they may gossip, play, quarrel, perhaps fight, and make up. They want to share excitement and common fear, and distrust and watchfulness. Living many together in a neighborhood they feel safer. Perhaps they are. One of the most important things in happy living is to feel and be safe.

"Instead of only two eyes and two ears and one nose to warn me of danger I have a lot of eyes, a lot of ears, a lot of noses working all the time to keep me safe," explains Yap Yap the Prairie Dog, who isn't a Dog at all but a kind of Squirrel.

But he isn't foolish enough to depend altogether on those other eyes and ears and noses. He is too smart for that. He uses his own just as he would if there were no others anywhere near. If he discovers any danger, or something he suspects may mean danger, he doesn't think only of himself and his own safety; he warns his neighbors. They in turn warn him if they see or hear or smell anything suspicious They co-operate.

In Yapville every doorstep is a sort of watchman's stand. It is a mound of earth, often quite a high mound, completely around the entrance to the underground home. It has a double purpose. It prevents water from running down inside when rain is so heavy that the flat ground cannot soak it up fast enough to keep it from running down in any hole that is not so protected. And that raised circular doorstep is perfect to sit up on and watch what is going on in the village, and beyond in all directions for the approach of an enemy.

Yap Yap was doing this now. He had had his breakfast, so now he was sitting up very straight on his raised doorstep, keeping watch while Mrs. Yap Yap was out after her breakfast. At the same time he was enjoying a sun bath. No one ever enjoys a water bath more than Yap Yap and his friends enjoy sun baths.

There was a lot of running about, visiting and gossiping going on all through the village just as there is in every village on a pleasant day. Everybody was feeling fine. Because this was so there was a lot of chattering and yapping and barking. No one seemed to be worrying about anything. Only a few mothers with children not yet old enough to looked after themselves seemed to have any special cares. Nobody was afraid. Nobody was trying to keep out of sight. What was there for any one to fear in the midst of so many? Yet, all the time Yap Yap and others sitting on their doorsteps were watching, not only what was going on in the village but as far as they could see beyond the village. They were watching in all directions, even up in the sky.

Mrs. Yap Yap and others who had not breakfasted early were doing so now on grasses and other things. Yap Yap could see them bobbing up and down here and there as they stuffed themselves with the good green things they found not too far from their homes. After cutting a mouthful of grass each would sit up while chewing it, not because it was easier to chew when sitting up, but in order to keep watch for possible danger.

Far away in the sky Yap Yap saw a speck. That is all it was, a speck, a dark speck. Yap Yap kept a watchful eye on it. If that was King Eagle, as he suspected it was, he must be watched. King Eagle has a taste for Prairie Dogs and Yap Yap has known it ever since he can remember. So he kept a watchful eye on the dark speck in the sky, but he didn't let this keep him from watching all around just outside the village, too. Did something move out in the grass back of that old unused house on the edge of the village? He stared long and hard. He had about made up his mind that he had been mistaken. Then he was sure he hadn't been. Some one was in the grass behind that old house trying to keep out of sight. No friend would be doing that.

"Danger!" barked Yap Yap, perking his tail as if that had something to do with his barking. Everybody in the village sat up and took notice.

Contract Bridge

By Josephine Culbertson

IT ALL DEPENDS!

One of the oldest "rules" in bridge is that declarer should play for a drop of the missing queen when he holds nine cards in the suit.

That this rule is only as sound as any particular set of circumstances may make it, is well illustrated in the following deal:

South dealer
Both sides vulnerable.

	♠ J 5 3 ♥ K 9 7 6 ♦ 8 7 4 ♣ A J 9
♠ A K Q 9 ♥ 6 2 ♦ 2 ♣ J 9 6		♠ 10 7 ♥ Q 4 3 ♦ Q 10 5 3 ♣ 8 7 4 3
	♠ 8 4 ♥ A J 10 8 5 ♦ A K 2 ♣ K Q 10

N W E S

♣ 6 5 2

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 ♥	1 ♠	2 ♥	Pass
4 ♥	Pass	Pass	Pass

West leads three top spades; East discards a club, and South ruffs.

Declarer's problem is clear-cut. He has lost two spades, he must lose a diamond, hence his contract depends on capturing the trump queen.

Without any pertinent information at hand, South should cash the two high trumps in the hope of dropping the queen. In this specific case, however, South has knowledge that should guide him better than a mere "rule." He knows that West held six spades to East's two. Therefore, when South leads a heart to the king and West follows with the deuce, three of West's remaining nine cards are known (spades), whereas East's nine cards, after he follows to the first heart, are completely unknown.

Now, when the low heart is led toward the closed hand and East follows low, there is obviously a much better chance that the missing queen is among East's eight unknown cards than among West's six unknown cards, and therefore South's correct percentage play is to finesse for the queen, rather than to play the ace for a possible drop.

Of the known active volcanoes, 80 are of the submarine type.

BINGO

Holy Redeemer Hall

TONIGHT

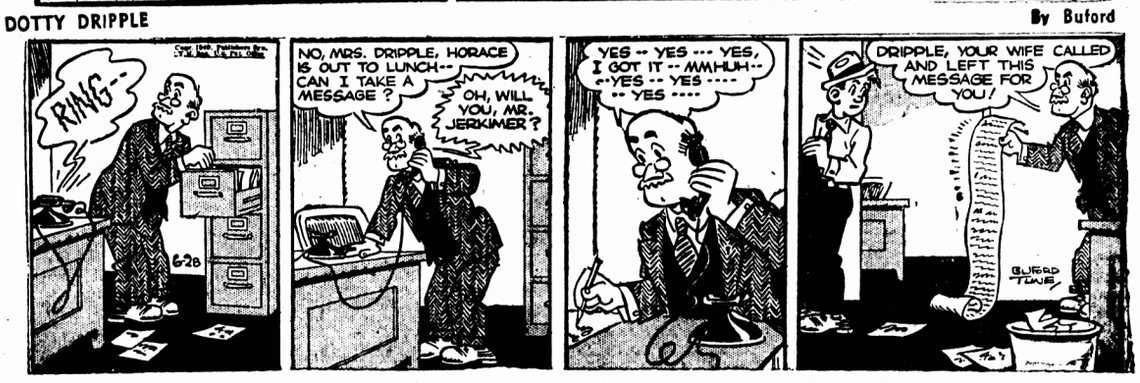
8.30

The prizes are the same as those prevailing at other Bingos in the city.

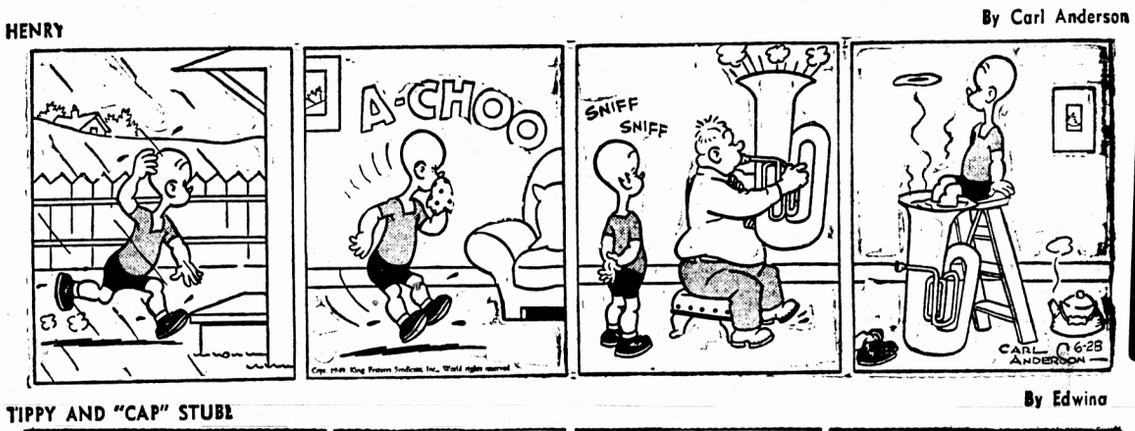
KING OF THE ROYAL MOUNTED — By Zane Grey

JOE PALOOKA — By Ham Fisher

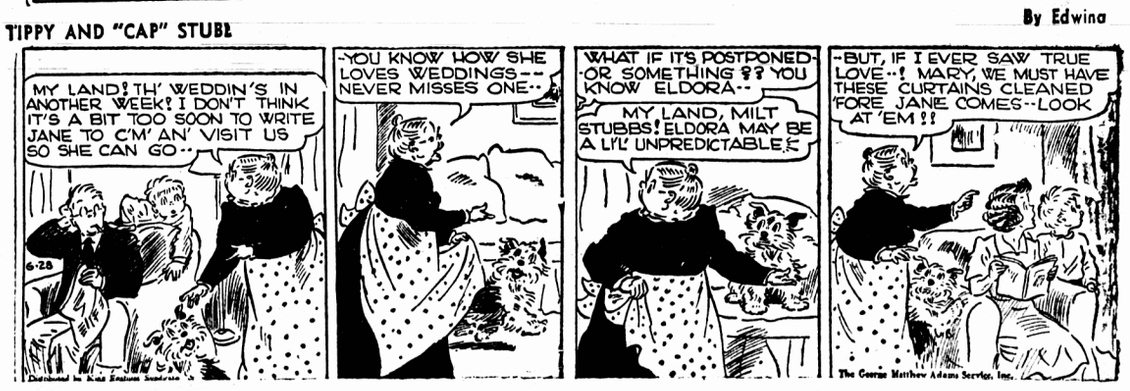
DOTTY DRIPPLE — By Buford



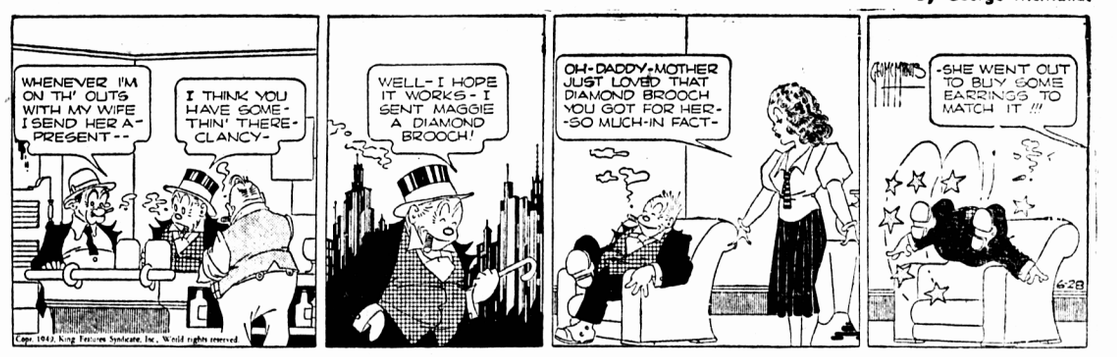
HENRY — By Carl Anderson



TIPPY AND "CAP" STUBB — By Edwina

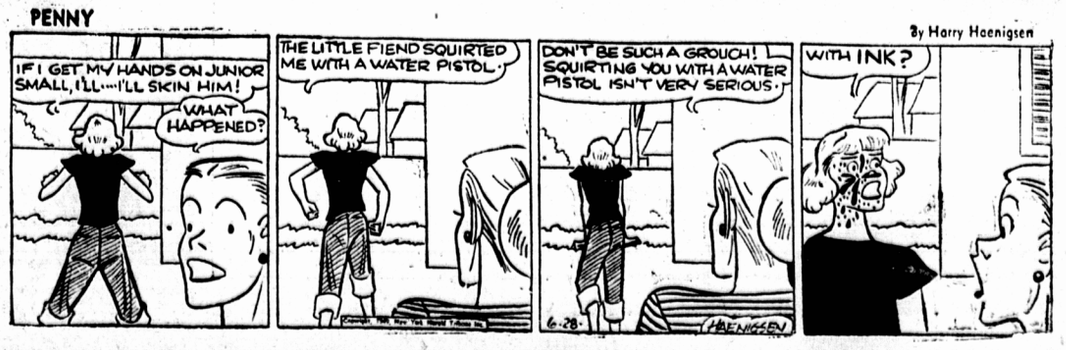


BRINGING UP FATHER — By George McManus



TILLIE THE TOILER — By Westover

LI'L ABNER — By AL CAPP

KIRBY — By Alex Raymond


PENNY — By Harry Haenigsen