THE MORNING GUARDIAN

FRIDAY, JULY 22 1898.

THE CROP OUTLOOK.

According to reports from all parts of the province, this season will witness one of the most abundant crops for many years past.

Upon good crops the trade of the province largely depends and if reasonable prices come with an abundant yield the year 1898 will be a most successful one for Prince Edward Island.

Haying is already well advanced in some sections of the country. The crop is undoubtedly the best for many years past. In fact throughout the Dominion the hay crop is far above the average. In Quebec, for instance, where the crop is already cured, good hay is selling at from $4 to $5 per ton for June delivery.

The grain and root crops in this province, as all over the Dominion, also give great promise. It cannot, of course, be lost sight of that a frost at any time, and frosts usually come when least expected, may lay acres of grain low and make a difference of millions of bushels throughout Canada at the end of the season; but based on present conditions an estimate of the outlook could not fail to be satisfactory and encouraging.

From the wheat crop in particular excellent results are anticipated. The acreage is exceptionally large not only in Canada but also in the United States. In South Dakota, where harvesting has already commenced, the crop is the greatest in that state's history, being estimated at 60,000,000 bushels as against 29,000,000 last year. Again, in Southern Nebraska the yield of wheat in 1894 was seven bushels to the acre, in 1896 fourteen and a half bushels while this year the yield is estimated at from twenty-five to thirty-five bushels.

From many other States of the Union, as well as from Northwestern Canada, come similar reports. For while in certain sections the yield may not exceed that of former years yet by reason of the vastly increased acreage the crop will be much larger. This increased acreage is owing no doubt to the high prices ruling during the winter and early spring. Western railroad companies are already troubled over the demands likely to be made upon them for transportation facilities when the crops are ready to move.

The manufacture of butter and cheese in this province will also be largely in excess of previous years. The good pasturage has caused an enormous flow of milk from which with fair prices a handsome revenue will be derived. In most sections extensive preparations are being made for the hog industry which is assuming greatly increased proportions on P. E. Island. The fruit crop, too, also gives promise of being enormous. Building operations are also being carried on to a large extent this season and from end to end of the Island we find an industrious, intelligent people following peaceful avocations and willing to earn their bread by the sweat of their brow.

The total cost of the war to the United States up to the present time, supposing that peace should now be arranged, will foot up to $500,000,000. This, with a greatly increased pension list and many indirect losses, will cause the American nation to conclude that war is a costly business.

EATING DOG MEAT.

Great Want in Havana, Matanzas and other Places.

NEW YORK, July 19.—Under date of June 28, the Havana daily correspondence of the Associated Press says: Six hundred and fifty-nine retail provision dealers went to-day to the grocery exchange, but bought nothing. Correspondence from the interior of the island is horrible. People have committed suicide because they have no means to feed their families. The prices of provisions are so high that the daily salary of a workman is not enough to buy the necessary articles of food.

It is reported from Neuvas that a steamship from Bordeaux, France has as great quantities of dead meat and arrived there, bringing 20,000 bags of flour and rice and sixty hogsheads of codfish.

Senor Vassallo, civil governor of the province of Puerto Principe, has sent an energetic circular to all the mayors of towns in that province ordering that extra vigilance be observed with reference to the condition of all articles of food sold. The unripe foods as well as horse flesh have developed many diseases among the poorer classes.

On the 29th the following entry was made: "All wagons passing through the streets of the city loaded with provisions taken from watch houses or from the Villa Nueva railroad depot; this morning were seized and taken to the main police station, where the inspector took note of their contents."

A freight note of Batabano has arrived here with 117 bags of coffee, 142 bags of peas, 485 bags of rice and 132 bags of black beans.

It is reported from Cardenas that 29 retail provision dealers have been arrested for failing to obey the orders given by the military commander of that place.

A report from Matanza says that in the cistern of a house on Santa Teresa street were found the head, skin and tail of a dog that had been killed, the flesh having been sold for food.

TOUCHING INCIDENT.

President McKinley Makes Happy a Mother's Dying Hours.

NEW YORK, July 15.—Mrs. Jessie Halley Clark died at her home, No. 210A Vernon avenue, Brooklyn, on Monday night. Literally she worried herself to death about her son, Corporal Alexander Halley Clark, Company D, Seventy-first regiment, New York Volunteers. Mrs. Clark anxiously read of the Seventy-first's splendid bravery in the battles around Santiago.

"Ah!" she said, again and again, "my son is as brave as he is good. I know he is in the front rank."

Fearful she screamed the lists of the dead, the wounded, the missing. Corporal Clark's name was not on the lists, but his mother intense anxiety was not relieved. Worn out by the dread that oppressed her, she became weaker and weaker. She knew the end grew near.

"If I could learn my boy is alive and well I would die happy," she said.

It remained for the sympathy of the President of the United States to make her last moment's happy.

In the desperation of her grief her husband, Capt. William Clark, formerly of the Seventy-first, consulted with Rev. J. F. Carson, of the Central Presbyterian church, which the family at tends.

The clergyman sent a telegram to President McKinley, briefly told of Mrs. Clark's agony and begged for information of her son. The president, through the war department, at once communicated Col. Wallace A. Downs, of the Seventy-first, ordering him to report if Corporal Clark was dead or wounded or missing, and not to inform Clark of the inquiry if he was alive and well.

Col. Downs, good soldier, instantly obeyed. President McKinley had the satisfaction on Monday of wiring to the dying woman:

"Corporal Clark, Company D, Seventy-first N. Y., is alive and well."

"Thank God," she fervently said when the telegram was read to her and soon she died.

On Tuesday, too late, came a letter from the fond son bidding his mother "to go to the country and get well," and adding, "I'll soon be home."

Her funeral was on Wednesday evening. Several times the Rev. Dr. Carson broke down in telling how she died. Her kin were shaken by emotion. Corporal Clark went to the front without bidding his mother good by, for she was not strong enough to visit Camp Black.

Her body was embalmed and rests in a vault in Evergreen cemetery that, perhaps, her son may again look upon her face.
