STEAM CRANE OFF TRACK—While in the act of putting in a new railway bridge at Huntley's River, two miles west of Alberton, yesterday, the steam crane toppled over and is now lying by the side of the track. Mr. W. H. Townsend, Bridge and Building Master, with a crew, went up Saturday taking with them the steam crane and other equipment, expecting to have the bridge in position for regular traffic Monday morning. The accident will necessitate transferring passengers and mails today. Engineer Scott left Charlottetown yesterday afternoon with two car loads of timber to build a temporary bridge ready for traffic tonight. Work on the permanent bridge cannot be resumed until the crane is put back into position. To do this it will be necessary to bring a crane from Moncton.

On Oct. 15, 1923, John Dan Munro, son of Alexander and Mrs. Munro, Head of Montague, died in the Sanatorium Kentville, N. S., in the twenty-fifth year of his age. At the beginning of the great war he was one of the first to enlist in the 10th regiment from Charlottetown. He was overseas for four years. Near the end of the war while in action a fragment of shrapnel struck him back of his ear and passed through his head coming out between his eyes. He was left on the field for about thirty-six hours after the burial party finding him alive he was brought to the hospital. He recovered so that on returning home he took up his trade as blacksmith at Kiroos. He was able to keep at his work till 1921 when his health began to fail and he went to the Military Hospital, Halifax, N. S. From there he was sent to Kentville. While working at Kiroos he was married to Catherine daughter of John MacPherson, Lewis. She survives him and also his parents and three brothers and three sisters. As a boy and young man John Dan was held in high esteem by all who knew him and sincerely mourn his early death. His body was buried at Valleyfield.

MALABAR BLOWN UP—The old schooner Malabar, which carried many cargoes from this port in years gone by and was recently towed to the harbor, and left stranded there on the sand flats, out of the way of shipping, is now no more! She was dynamited into kindling wood Saturday morning by Mr. Poland, the Government submarine engineer, and his assistant. It took six powerful charges to finish the job, for the old timbers hung together remarkably well. A representative of the Guardian accompanied the wrecking crew Saturday morning to Hazzard's cove, where the Malabar was resting high out of the water. Access to the inside of the ship was an easy matter, and the charges of dynamite, about fifty pounds in each case, were placed without difficulty in vital parts: between the keelsons, under the stern post, and under the keel amidships, and in the forefoot, board sides and under the forefoot, and fired successively by means of an electric battery from a punt anchored about a hundred and fifty yards away. Even from this distance the concussion could be plainly felt and flying splinters fell nearby. The water was strewn with wreckage from the first explosion and when the job was finished all that was left of the Malabar was drifting away with the next high tide.

TWO LIQUOR SEIZURES—News of the seizure by the Prohibition officers 75 gallons of rum at Borden and 155 gallons on Brighton Road, created considerable excitement throughout the city yesterday. A third raid was made on Saturday night at a well known establishment on North River but no liquor was found. Saturday morning inspectors Barbour, Haywood and Bradley trailed a suspected motor car from Cardigan to Borden and made the seizure of 75 one gallon tins of rum about 7.45 p.m. as it was being loaded at Borden station for shipment to Moncton. The driver of the car, a Charlottetown man, was arrested and taken to Summerside where he appeared before the Magistrate and was released until Friday. He was released upon the payment of a $700 bond and returned to Charlottetown with the prohibition officers. Inspector Barbour declares that the car was specially fitted out for rum-running, with secret compartments. He had stopped the same car, he states about three weeks ago with a suspected rum load on the road near Rustico but the driver had managed to escape. The raid on the premises of a resident of Brighton Road was conducted by inspectors Barbour, Haywood, Caryl and Bradley at about 4 p.m. Saturday. Fifteen ten gallon kegs were discovered, neatly stowed away in the cellar and a few additional one gallon jars and tins were afterwards found outside under the verandah.
