Legislature Takes Holiday Till Wednesday

The Legislature met in brief session yesterday morning and adjourned until Wednesday next at 3 p.m. While no explanation was given for the long recess, it is understood that more time is required in the Provincial Treasurer's department for preparation of figures for the Budget delivery. No answers have yet been tabled to numerous questions which have been placed on the Order Paper by Opposition members.

Hon. Mr. Barbour explained, in connection with his remarks on Government use of tractors, that his reference to work at the park referred to Victoria Park where work was done under the Physical Fitness program. "We could have got paid for this work," he said, "but as it was of so much benefit to the Province we did not charge for it. The Government also did some work for the Exhibition Association, which we were very pleased to do as this institution is a great asset to the Province."

City Transportation Act

On motion of Mr. D. L. Mathieson the House went into committee, with Mr. Baker in the chair, on an Act to consolidate and amend the several Acts incorporating the City of Charlottetown.

Hon. Mr. Barbour asked if this was the same bill which had been presented last year and withdrawn. "It is," he said, "and there have been any changes made in the sections that were objected to?"

Mr. Mathieson said the bill is a complete consolidation of the several Acts of incorporation. Last year when it was presented there were some sections which did not meet with the approval of the House. On that account the bill was withdrawn. The particular clause on which there was adverse comment last year was with regard to the change in the form of assessment of personal property in transit. There was an amendment of that section passed in 1931 which is practically repeated here. There has been no change in the old law in that respect, he explained.

In view of the length of the bill, it was decided on motion of Premier Jones, seconded by Hon. Dr. MacMillan, to refer it to a special committee consisting of Mr. Mathieson, Hon. Mr. Large and Hon. Mr. Stewart, to make a thorough review and bring any contentious sections before the attention of the House. Progress was then reported to Mr. Speaker.

Convent Head Issues Statement Re Treasures

QUEBEC, March 4 — (CP) — Sister St. Henri, Superior of Quebec's City of the Holy Dieu, issued early today a statement on transfer of the Polish treasures from the institution to the Provincial Museum.

The statement follows: A few months ago we were asked to receive, from a very respectable gentleman of Polish nationality, and to safeguard, parcels containing, we were then told, articles of art and value. In order to oblige we accepted the task, and the packages were brought here. Things remained here for a while and we took all care possible of the deposit in our custody to ensure its safety. During the month of February another gentleman, also of Polish nationality, under the title of "agent" for the Polish Republic, claimed the parcels should be entrusted to him. Informed of this fact, the first person, who had put the deposit in our charge, strictly forbade us to give the said parcels away; he strengthened his order by reminding us that according to law we were not allowed to remit the deposit in question — A deposit in trust — to anyone but himself, and ordered the removal of the parcels to the Provincial Museum. We then addressed ourselves to the Prime Minister of the Province of Quebec, who consented to the transportation of the articles to the Museum. We believed the Museum a safe place for the valuables. We are willing to admit that our religious community had no reasons at all to permit a trial between the two gentlemen in question to implicate us. The Provincial Government, for its part, had told us of its intention to confirm itself to the decision of the court. We want it noted and understood that there was never a seizure in our monastery by the Provincial Government, and that the deposit was never at any time under the protection of the R.C.M.P. We accepted the deposit in good faith and we returned it according to instructions received from the person who had entrusted the valuables to our care in the first place.

DONT STARVE THE UNBORN LAMB

fore lambing, to keep the ewes in a gaining condition. Salt and Roots and silage make a valuable addition to the ration for pregnant ewes because they add succulence and have a slightly laxative and tonic effect. However, corn silage should not be fed right up to lambing time, as there is danger that soft lambs may result.

Pregnant ewes should have an ample supply of fresh water before them at all times. Salt and a mineral mixture should be in boxes and can be mixed together. Equal parts of bonemeal and salt give mixture that is adequate in most areas, but in iodine deficient localities iodized salt must be used to avoid goitre in the lambs. In districts where other elements such as cobalt are deficient or lacking, these should be added to the mineral mixture.

A suggested ration suitable for pregnant ewes is three to five pounds of good quality legume hay, one to three pounds of roots or silage, and one-half a pound of a mixture of equal parts of oats and bran, the latter from about six to four weeks before lambing depending on the condition of the ewes. All the weights quoted are the amounts that should be given to one animal each day.

If an adequate ration of this kind is fed to the pregnant ewes, there will be fewer lambing time mortalities and the lambs will make better gains in the spring and summer, all of which will contribute to the success of the sheep enterprise on the farm.

PLANNING PASTURES FOR THE MILKING HERD
(Experimental Farms News)

As good pasture is the most economical and suitable feed for milk production, the efficient dairy farmer takes full advantage of it. By planning ahead he insures that he has sufficient high quality pasture throughout the growing season. This pasture may be in the form of permanent pasture, pasture in the regular crop rotation or annual pasture.

Permanent pastures have been found of great value and those of good productive capacity are distinct assets. They are particularly valuable in the early season. Such areas can be improved by proper seeding, fertilizing and management.

Pasture in a crop rotation is desirable because it can be fitted easily into the usual cropping practice and it makes available later on a portion of the crops as aftermath. The dairy herds at the Central Experimental, says C.D. MacKenzie of the Animal Husbandry Division, are regularly pastured on this type with good success. The usual practice is to put the milking herd on the area which is in grass and legumes in the fourth season of a five year rotation. This area is composed of equal sized fields of first crop, grain, hay, pasture and grain.

Generally it is found advisable and even necessary due to the luxuriant growth in the early growing season, to pasture the herd on an area at the rate of two cows per acre and harvest the remainder of the field as hay or ensilage. This is easily done by fencing off a portion of the field by the use of an electric fence. Such a practice insures against pasture being wasted. Later the cows are allowed on this latter area when the aftermath has grown up. During the summer the aftermath from the first year hay field of the rotation is ready for grazing and a portion of this field along with the area first pastured usually carries the herd for the remainder of the season. The balance of this aftermath field can be used for a second crop of hay for winter feeding of calves.

Because of dry weather conditions in some areas it is good practice to supplement the usual pasture by seeding an annual crop adapted to particular soil and climate conditions. Examples of such crops are oats alone, oats with either sudan grass or sweet clover, millet, rape, fall rye and corn. Careful grazing of these crops is advisable.

In addition to planning for adequate pasture for the milking herd, consideration is given to such matters as location in relation

Teachers' Pensions

On motion of Premier Jones the House went into committee with Mr. McFarlane in the chair on reading of an Act to amend the Teachers' Superannuation Act.

The bill amends Section 5 of the Act by providing that should a teacher die while receiving or being entitled to receive superannuation, the superannuation shall be continued to his or her dependents as of right or by recommendation and order in accordance with the intent of the preceding sections, also that in the event of a teacher leaving a widow and dependent children by a previous marriage, the Lieutenant-Governor-in-Council may direct an apportionment amongst them of the superannuation otherwise payable to such widow, which apportionment may continue during the dependency of any child, but no longer, and may extend to milking facilities, an adequate water supply, sufficient shade and proper fencing.

Further information on this subject may be obtained by writing to the Dominion Department of Agriculture for Publication W.P.S. 15.

NUERNBERG, Germany, March 4—(AP)—United States Army intelligence officers have turned up a German who claims to have seen Hitler and Eva Braun escape from Germany as the war ended. He is Arthur Frederick Angeltot-Mackensen, former German Air Force pilot. The intelligence officer said today he told them he saw Hitler and Eva Braun escape by plane from Berlin to Denmark and as far as Southern France in late April, 1945.

clude the widow or any child. In reply to questions by Messrs. Bell and D. L. Mathieson, the promoter explained that the clauses are identical with the provisions made for Government employees under the Public Service Act. The bill was reported agreed to without amendment.

The hour appointed by His Honour the Lieutenant Governor to receive the House and their address in answer to His Honour's speech at the opening of the session having arrived, Mr. Speaker and the House proceeded to attend upon His Honour in the Confederation Chamber, where the address was duly received and replied to in formal terms.
