"Nightmare" in an Air Raid

LETTER SENT FROM ENGLAND TO QUEEN'S FUND

girls had her leg cut with flying glass, and the other girl, who found glass down her back, that also had been blown there by the blast, but as we were going to this friend's house, the German aeroplane came down and dropped two bombs that we had to lay down on our faces to escape again. But you know they say "old soldiers never die." This is our experience of one of many bombing raids which we have been through and are still smiling, which is the spirit of all the British people here; it is wonderful the way people are keeping up to it. At first it almost breaks one's heart when you look on your ruined home, but it is wonderful the way we get about setting up another home, which is what we are trying to do at present. Well, Sir I think I have told you as clear as I can remember, for you know one is dazed at the time these things happen. Well I hope I made it clear and that you will understand it.

Long Live England, Yours truly, E. J. BROWN, Barking, Essex, England, For Ever!

Interpreting The War

There has been no intimation for months that British air patrols sweeping the continental coastline have sighted Nazi invasion preparations. The pattern of British bombing forays over Germany-occupied "invasion coast" areas and over Germany itself does not indicate that an invasion is in immediate prospect.

the case. The prime factor that accounts for the success at Crete is overwhelming German mastery of the air, would be lacking in an attempt on the British Isles. There has been no intimation for months that British air patrols sweeping the continental coastline have sighted Nazi invasion preparations. The pattern of British bombing forays over Germany-occupied "invasion coast" areas and over Germany itself does not indicate that an invasion is in immediate prospect. On the contrary, since the spring campaigning started, German shipbuilding yards, fuel stores and plants, big-gun placements and, above all, bomber and submarine nests, have been the main recipients of British air attack. They are a part of the battle of the Atlantic, the Nazi effort to strangle Britain by sea, rather than of the battle of Britain. With the Axis occupation of Crete, however, a powerful bulwark of British defences in the eastern Mediterranean would be lost. Just what strategic use Nazi generalship could make of it remains to be seen.

Funeral of Rev. Father Trainer At Fall River, Mass.

The following is from a Massachusetts paper: "The funeral of Rev. Thomas Trainer, pastor of St. Louis Church, Fall River, who died Monday noon, May 19th, at his rectory, 100 Broad Street, was held Friday morning, May 23, with the Most Rev. James E. Cassidy, Bishop of Fall River, celebrating a pontifical requiem mass. The body was moved from the rectory to the church on Thursday afternoon, where the Office of the Dead was chanted at 4 p. m. Father Trainer had not been in the best of health for some months. He assisted at confirmation conducted by Bishop Cassidy at St. Louis Church on May 11, and his death was unexpected. He was born May 11, 1877, at Kelly's Cross, Prince Edward Island, a son of the late James and Mary (Houghy) Trainer. He was a brother of the late Dr. John E. Trainer, prominent physician of the South End. After attending the public schools of his home town, Father Trainer entered St. Dunstan's College in Charlottetown and later attended the University of Brighton, Mass. He was ordained to the priesthood on Dec. 16, 1906 at St. John's Seminary by William Cardinal O'Connell. His first assignment was as curate of St. Mary's Church in North Attleboro in 1909. In December of 1909 he was transferred to the Sacred Heart Church in Taunton, and in November of 1917, was assigned to the Immaculate Conception Church at Taunton as curate. First Pastorate St. Joseph's Church, North Dighton, was his first pastorate, to which he was assigned in March of 1921. He remained in charge of that parish until November of 1931 when he was transferred to St. Louis Church in this city as pastor, and remained there since. Father Trainer leaves a number of nephews and nieces, including Rev. Charles R. Smith, pastor of the Immaculate Conception Church, Fall River, Dr. G. L. Smith, Charlottetown and Sister Mary Laurentia of the Order of the Sisters of Mercy. One brother, James J. Trainer also survives on all parts of the diocese, the church was filled with parishioners. a large delegation of visiting priests. At the request of Father Trainer there was to eulogy. Bishop Cassidy announced this request was made by the pastor on a number of occasions previously, but felt the zeal of Father Trainer in his priestly work was such, a tribute was necessary. The Bishop re-ounted Father Trainer's efforts in cooperation with God's work and even though advised to rest, he persisted in performing duties attendant to his pastorate. His attendance at the recent confirmation exercises at the church attested to his zeal and faith in the lessons he had learned, the Bishop said. Bishop Cassidy recalled the number of deaths in priestly ranks and asked the congregation to pray through Father Trainer that more young men devote their lives to God's work. He thanked the people of St. Louis Church for their allegiance to Father Trainer, which enabled him to carry on his work without request for relief or assistance. It was outstanding in view of the fact the church is established on the edge of the parish and bordered by larger churches, he said. St. Louis Church has had many good pastors, but none was more willing than Father Trainer. He was anxious and insistent that everything done be for the Glory of God, and his continuous thought was for the benefit of his Church and his people. Anything asked of him was done willingly and with a smile, said Bishop Cassidy. "We owe it to the pastor and people of St. Louis Church to say a few words of commendation for the zealous soul of Father Trainer," said the Bishop in commending the former pastor and the people of the parish for their support. Bishop Cassidy's assistants at the mass were: Rt. Rev. Msgr. Henry J. Noon, V.G., archpriest, Rt. Rev. Msgr. George F. Cain and Rt. Rev. Msgr. John F. McKee, assistant deacons. Rev. Edward J. Moriarty, deacon of the mass, Rev. Francisco C. Bettencourt, sub-deacon of the mass, Rev. John J. Shay and Rev. William D. Thomson, book bearer, Rev. James C. Conlon, candle bearer, Rev. David O'Brien, mitre bearer, Rev. Bernard J. Unsworth, gremiale bearer, Rev. Cornelius J. Keilner, thurifer, Rev. James C. Gerrard, diocesan chancellor, and Rev. James E. Gleason, assistant chancellor, masters of ceremonies. Children of the parish paid final respects to Father Trainer at a solemn high mass celebrated at 8 by Father Keilner, curate at the church, Rev. Charles P. Trainer, S. S., of St. Mary's Seminary, Baltimore, was deacon, and Rev. John J. Hayes, of St. Peter and Paul's Church, sub-deacon. "Veni Jesu" was sung by Francis J. Kiely, Frank Ryder, Harold Curtin, Joseph Cyr and Augustine
