MUSIC.

Music fallen on the ear,
Light and deft and certain,
Draws between our lives and us
Graceful as a curtain.

Music fallen from the sky,
From sudden lark or swallow,
Strikes the heart's dark counterpoint

Swift and keen and hollow,
Only music in the mind,
Remote and sure and slow,
Will reach our stubborn, twisted
roots

LAVENDER CONES.

Gather 15 to 20 stalks of lavender. Arrange the heads irregularly. Take 3 yards of very narrow baby ribbon, and with the end of it tie the stalks together. The heads of the lavender stalks.

Then bend the stalks over along the heads, and, taking the ribbon, weave it basket fashion in and out through the stalks.

Thus you will have a pretty cone-shaped case, with all the lavender heads packed inside.

Wind the ribbon round the stalks for 3 inches. Then cut them off even and finish with a bow of ribbon. (Layover ribbon looks well with green stalks, though pale blue and gold are also good colors.)

"They have given me more energy and a Grand Complexion!"

HERE'S a young lady who thinks she is the luckiest person alive! And if you will read her letter, you may find the way to share her luck. Miss Boneta W. says: "I am going to continue taking your remedy because it has helped me more than any other medicine I have taken. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have made my nerves much better and helped me keep free from colds. They have given me more energy and a grand complexion." Many a sorrow, lifeless complexion has become radiant full of color and life, after Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have helped to restore health, strength and vitality. Girls write in to say that pimply outbreaks on the back and face disappear when they continue the treatment with Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. All of which proves that good looks, plenty of pep and normal weight are largely dependent upon the body's condition.

Then lose no time in building yourself up with Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. A Canadian physician originated this remedy over 40 years ago. It definitely enriches the blood with iron and promotes increased vitality. Take them for a few weeks and note the difference they will make in improving health, increasing vigor and weight and toning up the complexion. Price 50c.

Take Dr. Williams' Pink Pills regularly for a while, and if you don't feel better, stronger and healthier, your money will be returned to you.

Happenings of the Week

Very interesting is the shadowless lighting system now being installed for Lord and Lady Louis Mountbatten's valuable pictures. The system is fitted separately to each picture. The light comes through a lens and is shaped, by means of a piece of metal, to the exact size of the picture on which it falls, so that no shadow is made and the picture is seen to perfection. Queen Mary also adopted this system for the pictures at Buckingham Palace.

Two wollen scarfs, one knitted by Princess Elizabeth, ten, and the other by Princess Margaret Rose, six, daughters of the Duke and Duchess of York, are among the collection of clothing and linen to be distributed this winter by Queen Mary's needlework guild. Princess Elizabeth is becoming an expert knitter. Each year the scarves she knits for her grandmother's guild collection show fewer dropped stitches. Her younger sister appears to have difficulty with her knitting, although she stuck to her task gamely until the scarf was finished.

The freedom of the city of Edinburgh, Scotland, will be conferred on the Duchess of York Dec. 1st.

Mrs. Alban Farmer entertained very delightfully at her home on two occasions this week, a king her friends in for bridge on Wednesday and Thursday evenings.

A taste for this year's hats certainly needs to be acquired. Not alone is it their height of crown—augmented by a quill—it is their shape. If you have been accustomed to wear a drooping hat, in token of your modesty, your whole character may be changed when you don one of these rather cheeky-looking turned up hats! Some are boat-shaped—and those are even more difficult.

Mrs. W. A. Miller entertained delightfully at six tables of bridge at her attractive home 249 Euston Street yesterday afternoon.

Mrs. C. J. St. Clair Jeans (formerly of Summerside) entertained on two occasions recently at her home in Wellington Row Saint John, N.B. for new members of the St. John and St. Stephen Church. The rooms were decorated with yellow and white chrysanthemums.

Dorothy Dix's Letter Box

The Time Has Come When Men Must Learn to Say "No" in a Graceful Way When Flappers Propose Marriage to Them

Dear Miss Dix—I am a man in my early thirties. About a month ago I met a girl who insists upon my marrying her. I like her, but am not in love with her. I have no reason at all to marry, as I have a comfortable home, pleasant surroundings, a good job and feel I would not be happy married, as I don't like any strings tied to me. If I am in one woman's company very long I get bored. Do you think I should marry this girl?

A. W.

Answer:

Certainly not, if you don't want to do so. It is her privilege to ask you, but it is equally your privilege to refuse. Women don't feel obligated to marry every man who pops the question to them, and no more should men feel that they have to assume the board bill and shopping ticket of every woman who tries to wish herself off on them.

Nothing is more inexplicable than the attitude of men toward the woman who does her courting openly, instead of stealthily. As long as a woman sticks to the feminine tradition of pretending that she is the pursued instead of the pursuer, and of cajoling and coaxing and sometimes actually shunning a man to the altar, he feels safe and enjoys her wooing. Apparently he never suspects her intentions, and when finally she drags a proposal out of him and cries out: "This is so sudden! I never dreamed you thought that way about me," he believes her.

But let a woman come out flat-footed and frankly tell a man that she loves him and wants to marry him, and he becomes paralyzed with terror. He loses all of his sales resistance. He feels that his doom is sealed and that nothing short of a miracle can save him from having to marry her. Which, of course, is all nonsense. The dangerous woman is not the one who lays all of her cards upon the table. The one who is to be feared is she who keeps a few trumps up her sleeve and pretends to be an amateur, while she is really a skilled professional.

Of course, it is not to be denied that when a woman makes up her mind that she wants to marry a man and sets out to get him, she is mighty persistent and very likely to get him. Nor is it to be denied that men are much more easily flattered by being made love to than women are; but all the same, any man with an inch of backbone should be able to protect his bachelor freedom if he really wants to do it. Anyway, the time has come when women are tired of sitting on the sidelines and sucking their thumbs and waiting for the men they want to happen to notice them. Also, they are weary of taking what they can get instead of getting what they want, and from now on they are going to take the initiative in courtship and pop the question to the men they desire for husbands.

So men had better begin learning how to say "no" gracefully to the maidens who ask for their hearts and hands, and learn how to soften the blow by telling the disappointed flappers that they will be brothers to them.

Dear Miss Dix—I have a daughter who is pretty and attractive and in her junior year at college. For four years a boy has been crazy about her, and she persists in going with him, although he belongs to a much lower strata of society than we do and is most unattractive to every one but her. He is a boy of good morals, but he comes of an honest but plebeian foreign family who speak broken English. His manners and habits are crude. He is untidy in his personal appearance. He has only a small and ill-paid job. His income is not as much as her allowance, yet she wants to be with him and no one else. She makes few friends and does not like boys of today. She knows how we feel about this, but is stubborn about giving him up and is sympathetic toward him all the more when we oppose him. What should my attitude toward this be? How can I make her see that this boy would not make a suitable husband for her?

A WORRIED MOTHER.

Answer:

The one big thing for you to do is to quit criticizing the boy and objecting to your daughter going with him. Nothing fans love in the youthful breast like opposition, and the more you find fault with the lad, the more she will idealize him and make a hero out of him.

The only way to deal with such a situation is by ridicule, and that must come from outsiders, not from the girl's own family. A girl will be proof against logic and reason and common sense, but she can't stand to be laughed at by other girls. So your play is to get her to bring home some of her college friends for a visit and let them make a few wisecracks about the young man's table manners and dress. Mighty few girls stay in love with a chap who is regarded as a figure of fun by their companions.

Anyway, the chances are that your daughter will outgrow this youthful infatuation, and when she is thrown more with boys of her own class this rough diamond will lose his attraction for her. His lack of culture and uncouthness will grate upon her, and she will realize that there could be no real companionship in a marriage for either the husband or the wife where the wife was ashamed of the husband and where they had no common background of customs and habits and manners and culture.

Dear Dorothy Dix—I have undoubtedly the most thoughtful, generous, sweet, adorable sweetheart on earth. He will give me anything in the world he thinks I will like. I always sending me presents. But the one and only fault he has is that he never says he loves me. He has said so, of course, but he doesn't rave over me. He says the reason he doesn't is because he can't find the right words. Do you think I am a fool because I am moody over this one thing? Does he prove his love for me, even though he doesn't say it in words?

PAM.

Answer:

One thing your sweetheart must lack, and that is brains, if he still wants to marry a girl who is silly enough to make herself miserable because he isn't always telling her he loves her when he proves it in every possible way. In love actions speak louder than words. The most selfish wife I know, and the one who does least to make her husband happy, spends her time telling him how much she loves him.

SO COMPLIMENTARY.

An American girl, about to visit England, was advised by a friend to see Lincoln Cathedral.

"Oh, indeed," said the girl, "is there a Lincoln Cathedral in England?"

"There is, and a superb building too," was the reply.

"Say, now!" she exclaimed, "wasn't it just too sweet of them to name it after our Abe?"

A FELLOW-FEELING.

"I can't tell you how delighted I am, Mrs. Giles. My son Reggie has won a scholarship."

"I understand your feelings, ma'am. I felt just the same when our horse won a medal at the show!"

BOOKS, ART, MUSIC

(By F. R. H.)

On December 1st "Return to Malaya" by R. H. Bruce Lockhart is to be published. It is an exciting book of personal adventure in the East by the author of "British Agent". "The Shipbuilders" by George Blake an English Book Society choice, is highly praised by such writers as Hugh Walpole, Compton Mackenzie and Christopher Morley; forty thousand copies have already been sold in England. "Peer Gynt", one of Ibsen's greatest dramatic poems, has been published in a new edition with translation by R. Farquharson Sharpe and illustrations by Arthur Rackham. The new so-called Rockwell Kent Shakespeare, with perface by Christopher Morley, was published last week. It has forty full-page illustrations by Rockwell Kent. "Honourable Estate" by Vera Brittain was published this month. It is a companion piece, in fiction, to her well known autobiography "Testament of Youth". "Fog Over Fundy" is a new novel of the Acadian Louis Arthur Cunningham.

The Canadian novel "Whiteoak Harvest" by Mazo de la Roche is third on the Baker and Taylor Company's October list of the ten best sellers throughout the United States.

The recently decided all Nations Prize Novel, "The Street of the Fishing Cat" by Jolanda Foldes takes its name from a street in Paris; and tells the story of a group of exiles from all over Europe and in particular, of one Hungarian family. Many of its scenes take place in famous Parisian cafes. Jolanda Foldes, a young Hungar-

Splendid Cough Remedy Easily Mixed at Home

It's So Easy! Makes a Big Saving. No Cooking.

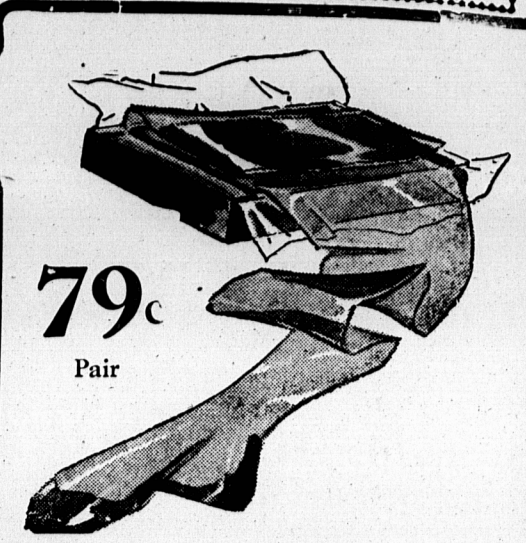

To get quick relief from a distressing cough, mix your own remedy at home. Once tried, you'll say it's your favorite cough medicine, and it's so simple and easy.

First, make a syrup by stirring 2 cups granulated sugar and one cup of water a few moments, until dissolved. A child could do it. No cooking needed. Then get 2 1/2 ounces of Pinex from any druggist. This is a compound containing Norway Pine in concentrated form, well known for its prompt action on throat membranes.

Put the Pinex into a 16 ounce bottle, and add your syrup. Thus you make 16 ounces of very efficient remedy, and you get four times as much cough medicine for your money. It tastes fine and never spoils.

And for quick, blessed relief, it is splendid. You can feel it penetrating into air passages in a way that means business. It loosens the phlegm, soothes the irritated membranes, and eases the soreness. Thus it makes breathing easy, and lets you get restful sleep.

Just try it, and if not pleased, your money will be refunded.

The exhibition of Modern Colour Prints at the Harris Memorial Gallery last week was well worth several visits. Without exaggeration it was perhaps the most interesting and most unusual of any of the exhibitions shown here.

The artists are, for the most part, quite unfamiliar to nearly all of us, but the collection has been arranged with a view to showing the most recent developments of the colour print, which formerly was published in thirteen countries simultaneously.
