JUST LIKE A MAN

"Isn't that just like a man?" Ever since the race began Wives have used that questioning phrase.

Speaking of their husbands' ways. Drops his paper on the floor! Never thinks to close a door! Stays out late when'er he can! "Isn't that just like a man?"

Weekends when the skies are blue Though there's gardening to do Suddenly he'll pack his grip And vanish on a fishing trip. When invited out to dine, "No," he'll say, "we must decline. That night I've another plan." "Isn't that just like a man?"

When the sires turn bleak and drear Off he'll go for ducks or deer. Creature of both mood and whim. Thoughtlessness is part of him. To the children's pleas for pie, "Ask your mother!" he'll reply, Leaving her the joy to ban. "Isn't that just like a man?" —Edgar A. Guest.

MODERN MANNERS

In a double wedding, it is usual for the ceremony to be read to both couples, with the responses made twice. If the brides are sisters, their father gives both brides away.

Paint

If the lid of the paint can has been thrown away, and there is some paint left over, try pouring melted paraffin over the top of the paint. This will preserve the paint and keep it soft until ready to use again.

Sorting Garments

Garments that are to be sent to the laundry should be looked over carefully for cuff links, pins, etc. Jewelry is often lost by careless sorting of the garments.

Cleaning Matting

Do not use soap for cleaning matting. Cold water and ammonia is a much better agent.

BOTTLE-FED BABIES

If your baby is bottle-fed, he needs to wash little bowels closely. Mother's milk has a natural laxative effect which helps take care of baby's needs. Lacking this, a bottle-fed baby often gets fretful, feverish and suffers constipation and upset stomach. Let Baby's Own Tablets help you keep baby's bowels on schedule—sweeten upset stomach—relieve feverishness and teething troubles. No "sleepy" stuff — no dulling effect. Easily crushed to a powder, if desired. Don't let your baby suffer—get Baby's Own Tablets today. 24¢.

PLAIN CROQUETTES

And always there's the plain croquette, which when well prepared can be an excellent dish. To dress up meat croquettes, serve each on a hot half peach.

For a good recipe mix one cup cooked beef that has been chopped fine with 2 cups well-seasoned hot mashed potatoes. Beat an egg, work it in with the meat and potato mixture and shape the mixture into small cakes. Roll either in flour, fine crumbs or egg and crumbs and fry in deep fat 375-390 F. from 2 to 5 minutes.

VOGUE FOR SCARVES GAY AND COLORFUL

NEW YORK —There's something so gay and colorful about the current vogue for scarves! You stand before your mirror, arrange the scarf just so, and off you go. Perhaps you glance in a mirror after a time. The scarf is askew. So you plan to buy a scarf pin the next time you're in town.

But why wait for that day? Every woman's dressing table holds trinkets that can hold a scarf in place and be decorative, too. A lovely turquoise ring will secure a thin silk scarf in a colorful way. A hammered silver buckle can be used, if you double the scarf ends firmly through the slots.

And even a stiff bracelet can serve as a scarf anchor if you practice with the dexterity of a Girl Scout at tying knots.

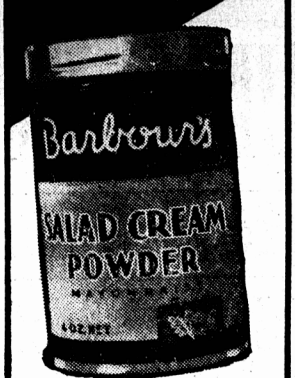

Cook's Corner

FUDGE ICING

2 cups white sugar
3/4 cup milk
1 square chocolate
1 tablespoon butter
1 teaspoon vanilla
Put sugar and milk in pan and bring to a boil without stirring. Add chocolate and stir until cooked. Try in cold water till it forms a soft ball. Remove from fire and add butter and vanilla. Beat till creamy. If too hard, add one or two teaspoons cream.

ICING FOR FUDGE CAKE
3 tablespoons milk
1 tablespoon butter
1 cup icing sugar
3 tablespoons cocoa
A few grains of salt
1 teaspoon vanilla
Cream butter well and add hot milk. In another bowl sift icing sugar, cocoa and salt. Then pour the butter mixture in gradually, beating well between each addition. It may require a little more hot milk to make the frosting of the consistency you need. This is sufficient frosting for the top of a square cake.

Dorothy Dix Says—

Dangerous Love Affair

Middle-Aged Benedict Should Not Foresake Good Wife For New Love

DEAR DOROTHY DIX: I am a married man and have a good wife who loves me and does everything in her power to please me. I have worked hard and saved my money so that we might be happy in our old age. But six months ago I met and fell desperately in love with a young and beautiful girl and I am miserable and discontented.

Although this girl is thirty years younger than I am, she returns my love and wants me to break up my home and go away with her. Please advise me as to what I should do. I long to be happy, but I am perfectly wretched.

A MIDDLE-AGED MAN.

ANSWER: It is your conscience that is troubling you, Mister. That is what is the matter with you. You know you are doing wrong in having this illicit love affair, and you will never find peace and happiness until you go back to your duty and your good, faithful wife.

I have seen a lot of middle-aged men whose middle-aged wives ceased to thrill them, and who got bored and tired with domesticity, and who thought that it would make them young and gay and give them a new zest in life to swap off their faithful old wives and have a romantic adventure with some girl young enough to be their daughter.

I have seen plenty of these men divorce their wives, but I have never seen one of them get any happiness out of it. It didn't take them long to find out that no young girl marries an old man for anything except his money.

It didn't take them long to find out that they had nothing on earth in common with these young wives who belonged to another generation, and looked at everything in life from a different angle than they did. It didn't take them long to get tired of running around and want to settle down, and then to find out that the young wife had no idea of being a fireside companion, and that she proposed to step out and amuse herself. She didn't marry to be an old man's nurse. And it didn't take long for them to find out that they had lost the respect of all their old friends and acquaintances, and that everybody was snickering at them behind their backs.

You can't be happy when you are doing wrong. You have to be at peace with your own soul. The one person whose approbation you must have is your own. So if you want to be happy, square yourself with your own conscience.

DEAR MISS DIX: I am engaged to a young man 23 years old and we love each other dearly. But once before he was engaged to a girl, and the engagement was broken off, and I find myself jealous of this girl, though my fiancé tells me that all of that is past and done with. Do you think a man forgets an old love affair? Do you think that I should let things that happened before we met bother me?

ANSWER: For Heaven's sake, no. You certainly are a trouble hound if you lie awake at night worrying over a puppy love affair of your sweetheart's. Why, every man in the world has had one or two or a hundred of them, and if you expect to be any man's first love you will have to pick out a boy in rompers.

Don't worry about your fiancé's previous loves. The only thing that concerns you is being his last. As for a man's ability to forget an old love, that is the easiest thing he does.

DEAR DOROTHY DIX: If you have loved and lost one who was extremely dear to you, is it possible ever to love someone else in the same way?

ANSWER: I don't think we ever love any two people in exactly the same way, because we love one person for one quality and another person for another quality.

You may love one man because he is gentle and tender, and another because he is bold and domineering. You may love one man because you have to mother him and look out for him, and another because he protects you and takes care of you. And you can love one as much as the other.

A. Put a small pinch of salt into the bottle, pour in a teaspoonful of olive oil, replace the cork, and the olives will stay nice and fresh.

Q. How can I clean a clogged sink?
A. A strong solution of copperas water poured down the drain pipe of the sink will open it.

Ellen's Diary

By an Island Farmer's Wife

And so, our visit to Rhode Island ended, we set out on our homeward journey this morning. All in all, only seven hundred miles lay between us and home, and yet we commenced the trip sadly and rather fearfully as well. Coming, we had been in the hands of one who was well acquainted with our route of travel; returning, we are cast entirely upon our own resources. We came by car; we return by bus. You will take the bus from Providence" those at the terminal there told us when we made inquiries, and continuing to read a dime table said nonchalantly "you change at Boston—and at the Border, of course, and then going by way of St. John, you reach Moncton at (such a time) in the morning, but we just can't tell you anything about from there to Boden. You'll learn about that in Moncton, since our Summer schedule is not yet in operation." We looked blankly at each other and though we agreed with smiles "we'll have fun" there was a sinking of hearts.

Friends who had been over the road, though admitting "it may not be the same now" went over it again with us, explaining each step in detail yet leaving us more puzzled at the telling. "But" they assured us "you'll be all right—you'll have a good trip, fast and comfortable—but be sure you get the right bus in Boston!" They said it all in the same way we try to comfort one about an emergency "right!" we say, though we sometimes know it is only wishful thinking or idle words. Presently, now, ever, hands folded in complete accord—or resignation, to the workings of fate we found ourselves on a Providence to Boston bus awaiting it to bear us on the first lap of our homeward journey. "Yes" I recall a woman telling mother-to-me of a prim maiden lady on a similar trip with her in the long ago "she folded her white-gloved hands in Boston and they were still folded when we got to 'The Island!'"

"I wonder" I began to my sister-traveller as the machine left the terminal but she interrupted me with a feeble: "Calm yourself, Ellen—we've got tongues haven't we?" In Boston, which city is—and is not bewildering, we put ourselves in the hands of a brisk "Red Cap." "Let me see yo' tickets Maams! Ya-as-ya—all goes ova' the Greyhound line, 'es' follow me—it's only across this heah little ole street." Watch yo' step now Maams. We don't have to have folks run ova' in this heah Boston! He delivered us safely to another, who in his turn squired us, though with some amusement, to a seat on the Greyhound bus. "Don't yo' worry at all Ma'am" he assured me with a flash of white teeth, when I mentioned our suitcases "yo' luggage will be theah as quick as yo—ya-as Ma'am!"

A second bus driver has been among the extremely congenial and friendly number of passengers bound with us for Canada. He did not take a turn driving but attended to our comfort and directed our attentions to much of interest along the way until this warm sunny day slipped into evening and soon darkness enfolded us. But still mile after mile slipped smoothly away—mile after mile. At present Customs past here at St. Stephen, the Canadian bus to which we transferred awaits the rest of its load. We have had a fine trip so far, if on occasion since dusk, a bit sleepy. Interesting and sometimes even poignant and amusing

LATE DISCOVERY

A widow who kept a confectioner's shop was being courted by an eligible bachelor. He came to her shop every night at closing time, and she gave him her bag with the day's takings to carry home. The bag was heavy and this prompted her lover to remark: "You surely do a big trade, seeing you always have such a heavy bag."
"Oh, yes," was the modest reply. "I have a pretty good business."
But it wasn't until after they were married that he discovered she had been giving him the shop weights to carry home every night.
