Among the young people spending the Thanksgiving holidays at their homes here were Miss Ruby McDougall, accompanied by a friend, Miss Marion McKenzie, both of Charlottetown; Miss Irene Wedlock, C. B. College; Mr. J. W. Dixon, Charlottetown; Mr. Ira McDonald, P. W. College; and Mr. John Ross, C. B. College.

Mrs. E. Fraser, Charlottetown, and Mr. Howard Houston, of C. B. C., visited over the week-end with friends in Mayfield.

Mr. A. B. Cutcliffe left on Monday morning for Toronto, where he will attend the Royal Winter Fair.

On Thanksgiving Monday afternoon, some twelve girls, members of the Mission Circle, served afternoon tea at the Parsonage. Three tables were daintily laid for four each, and the girls were kept busy during the tea hour dispensing hospitality to the large number who called. The young hostesses, whose Superintendent is Mrs. (Rev.) Chapman, are to be heartily congratulated on the success of their initial undertaking in this line. The offering amounted to $10.50.

The annual Thankoffering service, in connection with the W. M. S. of the United Church was held in the church on Sunday evening. An exceptionally large congregation was present, presided over by the pastor, Rev. Mr. Chapman. The Responsive Scripture Lesson was led by the President, Mrs. Eldon Seaman. The following women, introduced by Mrs. Chapman, who dealt with the general work, read papers outlining some of the various departments of Mission work in Canada, taken care of or assisted by the women of the church, Mrs. J. Rackham, Mrs. John Bertram, Mrs. Clifford Carew and Miss Catherine McDonald. A letter from Presbyterial Acting President, Mrs. (Rev.) John Sterling, Montague, was read by Mrs. G. Dingwell and intently listened to. During the offering Mr. Willard Sellar effectively sang "Is He Yours." A Pantomime "O Zion Waste" was a very impressive close to the interesting service. It was indeed a sermon in itself, most gratefully carried through by the following members of the Mission Circle: The Misses Hazel Sellar, Mildred Carew, Dorothy Dingwell, Eulalie MacLeod, Verna and Inez Andrews and Velda Reeves. The solo part was very beautifully taken by Miss Florrie MacLeod and the Hymn Story, which preceded the number, was told by Mrs. D. M. MacLeod. The offering amounted to about $35.00. - L.

members. Lunch was then served by the hostess. Meeting closed by members singing God Save the King. Next meeting to take place at the home of Mrs. Wallace McNeil. A few weeks ago one of our local men caught an animal in a trap, which he thought to be a mink. In a hurry to get sale for it, he immediately hired a young man to drive him to Charlottetown, where he tried to make sale for his valuable animal, but upon opening up the box found instead of a mink, he had entrapped a beautiful dark red "Thomas." We can only imagine the surprise mingled with the disappointment with which our gentleman met, saying nothing of how glad the cat was to have its freedom once more.

On Thursday, Nov. 7th, the women of Millview organized an institute at the home of Mrs. George McEachern. There were thirteen women joined. Mrs. McEachern was nominated President, Mrs. Milton Jenkins, Vice President, Miss C. Bruce, Secy. Treas.; Directors, Mrs. Lea Hynes, Mrs. Chas. McKenzie; Auditors, Mrs. George Jenkins and Miss Daisy VanDerstine. A hearty vote of thanks was moved by Mrs. Chas. McKenzie, seconded by Miss Bruce, to be extended Miss McPhail for organizing the Institute. Lunch was then served in the hostess' usual capable manner. The next meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. M. E. Jenkins.

Service was held in the Cherry Valley Church on Sunday, Nov. 10th. There was a large attendance. Mr. Lewis favored the congregation with a solo, "For you I am praying." Mr. Pierce gave an eloquent sermon, taking as his text, "I will extol Thee, Oh Lord."

Good Live Stock

(C. E. MacKenzie)

"Good live stock" is meant the product of consistent and intelligent breeding, feeding and weeding. A well bred dairy animal, if she is healthy, is bound to produce profitable quantities of milk, provided she is well cared for and liberally fed. Breeding is therefore the real basis of good live stock. Once assured of this, however, even the best cannot produce profitably without the right kinds and quantities of feed; and this fact is responsible for the additional fact that thousands of unprofitable cows could be made profitable if they were fed suitable rations. At the same time there are other thousands of cows that lack breeding to the extent that no amount of liberal feeding will make them produce profitably, and weeding is about the only remedy. This means the milk scales, test bottles and a Babcock tester, coupled with very careful selection of the cows that are allowed to come into the herd, and the use of the best sires available.

There are many ways of checking up on the quality of dairy cows, and each of them is so effective and points so definitely toward greater profit from the herd, that it is a wonder how some dairymen can neglect all of them. Where the average production of milk per cow is as low as it is estimated on Prince Edward Island, it seems hard to understand how any man can possibly be satisfied with a herd average even lower, and yet there are many in this condition.

To know even the first essentials about his business, the dairyman must realize that the quality of his cows is a matter of primary importance, and if he does not realize even this much the dairying industry would be much better off without him.

While it is true that good dairy cows are really the largest revenue getters that a farmer can possibly have, it by no means follows that one should neglect crops. Practically all comparisons will prove that the former statement is absolutely true, but the farmer does not actually scil his crops to his cows at market prices, as they are consumed on the farm and does not have the added cost of transportation charged up.

Good crops are essential to good dairying in more ways than one, especially because cows can be fed most economically where there are an abundance of good roughages, which the cow is especially designed to digest.

A good test of the kind of dairyman one is, is the number of cows properly kept on the farm. Where we have a milking herd from ten to twelve on the hundred acre farm it would indicate that proper attention is being given to both herd and crops, but where only half this number are carried, and where the average yield falls below, say 8000 pounds milk per year per cow, proper attention to either breeding or feeding is not being followed.

up-to-date manufacturer would think of only using his machinery or help half time, and the same thing applies to dairying, always use sufficient feed to keep your machine (the dairy cow) running at full speed forward and you will find that you will soon change an ordinary business to one that will make money for you.

In these days of efficiency, in every branch of industry do not let us, as farmers and dairymen, lag behind, but adopt advance methods and make good.
