BURGESS BEDTIME STORIES
(By Thornton W. Burgess)

He loses face who proves that he is less than he was thought to be.—Old Mother Nature.

To lose face is to be less well thought of by others; to prove to be not up to what you were supposed to be, or unable to do the things expected of you. One of the surest ways of losing face is to boast and fail to do what you have boasted you can do, or not to be what you have boasted you are.

This had been a bad day for Buster Bear, a ver, bad day, and still was. He had started it by going about in the Green Forest boasting that he feared no one, but everybody feared him; that he could go where he pleased, when he pleased, and could do what he pleased, and no one could stop him. Then little Chatterer the Red Squirrel had dared Buster to catch him. Buster had lost his temper and chased Chatterer up a tree with his thousand little spears, and not a one could stop him. Then little Chatterer the Red Squirrel had dared Buster to try to catch him. Buster had lost his temper and chased Chatterer up a tree with his thousand little spears, and not a one could stop him.

How long would Flatthorns keep him up there?

kept him up in a tree so long he had promised himself that thereafter he would keep out of trees. Now here he was treed again, and had lost still more face with his neighbors. How long would Flatthorns keep him up there? He wanted nothing so much as to get down and sneak away where no one would see him.

Contract Bridge

By Josephine Culbertson

TRUMP-DRAWING COULD WAIT
South's play of his contract in today's deal could have been improved considerably.

North dealer.
Both sides vulnerable.

♠	A K 7	♣	A 10 8 5 4
♥	A 10 8 5 4	♦	A 10 8 5 4
♠	K 9 7	♣	A Q 6 3
♥	2	♦	J 9 5 4
♠	Q 10 3 2	♣	W N E
♥	8 6 4	♦	Q 9 8 2
♠	10 5 4	♣	8 6
♥	A 8 6	♦	A Q J 10 7 5

The bidding:
North Pass 2♣ Pass
1♦ Pass 3♣ Pass
4♣ Pass 5♣ Pass

As it happened, the six-club contract was perfectly sound, but that was more a matter of luck than good bidding. Nothing that North heard told him that South could "fill" the diamond suit. South would have bid the same way with king of spades instead of the King of diamonds, and thus there might easily have been a diamond and a spade loser.

West opened his fourth-highest heart. The ace won, and South immediately decided to establish the diamond suit for spade discards. Normally, this might have been a good decision, because it is usually correct technique to set up a long side suit, rather than attempt to ruff losers (spades in this case). So South drew three rounds of trumps, then cashed the diamond king and led the jack.

West's failure to follow suit was a shock to the declarer, who now was in a hopeless position. It would take two ruffs to drive out East's queen and nine of diamonds, and dummy was a bit short of entries! South had to lose all three of his spades!

It would have been considerably more logical to lead the spade jack at the second trick! Then, even if East won and returned a trump, declarer could easily win in his own hand, ruff a spade, lead to the diamond king and ruff his last spade, then cash the heart king and ruff a heart. Then it would be time to draw trumps!
