500,000 tons. When it is realized that this would supply a 500 ton mill for better than 2 1/2 years, it is evident that an important operation is in the making.

TORONTO, July 12—Moneta—Now into their ore on the second third and fourth levels and cross-cuts on first level would be encountering values soon. This property is shaping up encouragingly.

Eldorado—Concentrate production for May 67 tons up from 57 tons in April due principally to improvement in mills processes and higher values at lower levels as same amount of ore being mined 70 to 80 tons daily.

MacLeod Cocksbutt—The size of the mill is still unknown but official estimates of 300 tons is already in sight and is distinctly encouraging particularly as this does not take into account the new north ore zone which is so important. It is thought that reserves should soon get to

MILK BATHS

Milk has a use that more and more beauty specialists are talking about. Several salons sell powdered milk to be used instead of bath salts. Others tell their customers to take a milk bath once a week. If you cannot afford to pour about a gallon into the tub and really bathe in it, fill a small bowl with milk and pat it on after a regular soap and water bath. Leave on for about an hour, then rinse off under the shower. Incidentally, buttermilk facials are perfect for sensitive skins. Simply cleanse face and throat with soap and water, rinse dry, then apply another layer. Let this dry for at least an hour, rinse off, and use night cream in the regular manner.

Starlight

It's a great old world on a moonlight night. For a shifless old guy like me, out there on the desert where all is right. An' the air is clear an' free; Where the things I see not what I see. Where the noise an' traffic goes, Where sundown comes on my burro an' me. An' I sit an' sponse an' sponse. An' I'm 'sposin this an' I'm 'sposin that. I'm 'sposin the gang I knew; An' I'm thinkin o' Spike when he left his hat. Behind him with Texas Sue; Forgettin, the two o' them many a year. A gone on the long long way, An' maybe up there to the stars so clear— The two o' them —Who can say. I'm thinkin' a spell o' another dame, The one that comes near to me; But somehow, in town, they're never the same. Wherever I look an' see. The kind of a dame that's warm an' true. An smells like a rose that blows Its breath on a morning wet with dew; I love her like no one knows. An' I sponse some more o' the old days. When the world was young an' new. An' the millions an' millions who went their ways. Before there was me an' you. An' I look at the stars so high an' far. An' the same old moon they saw, Before there was ever a motor car. Before there was banks an' law.

The unexplained absence of General Yakov Akimov (above), Soviet vice commissar of defense and chief of the Red army air force, from the welcome accorded Professor Schmidt's return from the North Pole, raised fears that he had been arrested or "liquidated" by a firing squad.

HEALTH

A HEALTH SERVICE OF THE CANADIAN MEDICAL ASSOCIATION AND LIFE INSURANCE COMPANIES IN CANADA

THE BATTLE AGAINST CANCER

How is it going? Our chief gains against the enemy are three:
1. EARLY TREATMENT
The confident knowledge that early treatment is often successful.
2. SPECIAL CAUSES
The discovery of how some cancers are caused, thus showing how to prevent these cancers.
3. RADIUM AND X-RAYS
The use of radium and x-rays as an aid to surgery in destroying cancerous growths without harming the healthy tissues.
EARLY TREATMENT
All cancers have a beginning, usually a very small beginning. Here is a mole—a dark brown, flat spot on the cheek. The outline is somewhat round, the size is rather small. But the person begins to notice it in the course of time that the spot is growing larger and seems softer. It seems a simple thing—nothing to be afraid about. Perhaps not—but experience has taught the medical profession that this is often the way a cancer begins and when the mole grows larger and softer it means danger.
The matter is simple now. The spot is easily removed by treatment with radium in the hands of a skilful radiologist. Then the mole will disappear and never do any harm. But if neglected, it may become serious and may develop into a cancerous growth. This knowledge of the success and safety of early treatment is a great gain in the battle against cancer.
Take another example. Here is a small sore place on the side of this man's tongue—an ulcer. It has been there a while. He thinks it may have been there about three months. Likely it has been there six months. Likely it has been there there, just by the ulcer on the side of his tongue, is a broken tooth. That is what made the sore place. The dentist must set that right at once, so that the tooth may be smooth and safe and comfortable to his tongue. If that had been done the day that the tooth broke, our man would have had no ulcer. Now, the tooth is repaired and we must try to get the ulcer healed for that is one of the ways that cancer begins—a little ulcer on the tongue that does not heal. That ulcer was caused by irritation—the irritation of a broken tooth. Again we see the safety of early treatment to prevent cancer developing. Avoid irritation and prevent cancer.

BRINGING UP FATHER

George McManus

Judge Everybody Favourably

"I have no grain," replied the employer.
He then asked for cattle, for land, for wine, for vinyard, for fruit, but the employer denied each request with the statement, "I have none."
Sorrowfully the poor laborer lifted his bag to his back and went on his way.
After he had been gone a short while, the employer took three donkeys laden with food, liquors, spices and clothing and also carrying the three years wages due him, he travelled to the poor man's home in northern Galilee, where he was welcomed by his former servant. After they had eaten together
