There is a section of the road between Cornwall and the Queen's Arms which should engage the attention of the proper authorities. If one half of what is said regarding it be true there is little wonder for the complaints which are made. A state of affairs such as exists on this road should not be permitted for another day. Surely something will be done at once to have this road put in a proper state for traffic.

The Cornwall Correspondent of The Guardian writes: David Nelson has Africa, where he has been engaged in gold been two weddings in the near vicinity of
