MONTREAL, Nov. 27.—After a lengthy conference between Messrs. T. Emmet Quinn, president of the National Hockey Association, and Mr. Ignor, representative of the Maritime Hockey Association yesterday morning, a sort of agreement was drawn up which Mr. Ignor, who left for Halifax last night, thinks would be just about acceptable to his people.

It provides that the Maritime clubs cannot touch any of the players of the Wanderer, Ottawa, Quebec or Canadian clubs, neither can these clubs touch any players engaged by the Maritime clubs. But to encourage the Toronto club, the latter can engage any Maritime players they like, but the first regular match they play which will be at least a week before the Maritime clubs start their season will be an acknowledgement of which men they will own for the remainder of the season.

Amidst all the laughter and sociality a charm was given the entertainment by the sweet appreciable music rendered by the League of the Cross band. ANDERSON ON TRIP.

Feeling pretty sore as the result of having his rib dislocated, Sam Anderson the well known wrestler left by morning train for his home in Belmont, Mass. Anderson stated to a Transcript representative before leaving that he expected that he would feel as good as ever about the first of January when he would again meet Kilonis. That is something which is liable to happen to any wrestler said Anderson but believe me I'll redeem myself before the end of January. He takes up the wrestling instructorship on Monday at Harvard. It is understood that Promoter Davidson is trying to secure these two men for a return match here in January and it is hoped that his efforts are successful.—Moncton Exc. Anderson and Kilonis are well known in Charlottetown.

SUPREME COURT AT SUMMERSIDE

by Albert Oakes, the police officer. His testimony was nearly the same as that of Phillips. He said the word of the prisoner was not to be trusted.

The next witness was Dr. Tanton. He thought the word of the prisoner had always been abused by the boys and was easily led.

The next to take the stand was A. C. Rogers. He said he knew the prisoner. He had always regarded him as a poor unfortunate fellow who would do as he was bid. There was nothing malicious about him. He did not think that the prisoner appreciated the difference between right and wrong.

Wilfrid Tanton, the counsel for the defence, next addressed the jury. He tells that the guilt of the offence of perjury, with which the prisoner was charged, was not in making a statement which the offender knew to be false. He said that the capacity of the prisoner's mind was such that he did not know he was making a false statement. His strongest point was that the witnesses both for the prosecution and for the defence held that the man was not capable of judging between right and wrong.

Attorney-General Mathieson, the prosecuting lawyer was the next to speak. He said there was no doubt that the prisoner made a false statement at the trial of McDonald and the evidence of the defence had nothing to prove that he did not know what he was doing. In fact, it took a bribe to make the prisoner give false evidence. He said that the prisoner was more sinned against by McDonald than sinning, but that he had sinned and placed himself within the bounds of the law and ought to pay the penalty.

Mr. Justice Hazard then addressed the jury. He said the evidence was very clear as to the man's guilt and if the jury held that the man was responsible for his word it would be their duty to bring in a verdict of guilty.

The jury then retired. When they returned their verdict was "not guilty not being accountable." This verdict did not seem to be satisfactory and the jury again retired.

The next time they returned they reported a disagreement. They were sent out again and had not returned when the court rose.

THE CARE OF BOOKS.

If one would have the books on the library shelves kept in good condition care should be given to at least two details. In the first place, there should be at least half an inch space between the top of the book and the shelf above; otherwise when a book is taken out there will not be sufficient space to handle the book without straining the binding, and in a short time the strain at the top will loosen it or tear the binding itself. The other thing to guard against is crowding of books too closely on the shelves. This too, is a strain on the binding in the other direction, but one which is quite as injurious to the book.

A SAFE BET.

A Durham farmer was travelling to London to consult a lawyer, when the fear struck him that he had left certain important papers behind. He made a hurried search of his bag.

"If I did leave those papers," he remarked, "I'm a fool!"

The search proceeded and a moment later, he said:

"I believe it'll turn out I'm a fool!"

Just as he was examining the last bundle of papers he exclaimed:

"Well, I'll bet I'm a fool!"

A man on the other side of the compartment lowered his newspaper for a moment, and said, slowly and deliberately:—

"Oblige me, sir, by having a little money that same way for me"—Tit Bits.

THE WATTLE BLOSSOM.

Ireland has her shamrock, Scotland her thistle, and Australia the wattle blossom. September the first is known as Wattle Blossom Day, and a Wattle-Day League is in existence. This, together with the Australian Natives' Association, emphasises the nationality of Australia. It is not necessary, and one hopes never will be, for a new Boston Tea incident to federalise and emphasize the nationality of the Australian continent. An Australian differs from an Englishman as much as does a Scot from a Welshman. This implies no antagonism. Just as Australian flowers differ so does the type of man.

WORLD BECOMING MORE HEAVENLY.

NEW YORK, Nov. 27.—Andrew Carnegie, in a statement last night, announced that all but $25,000,000 of his fortune which he disposed of, under his will, will be left to the Carnegie Corporation of New York, which has been made his residuary legatee, and which will carry on his educational and charitable work.

I have found it desirable he said to retain for a while personal distribution of my United States Military Telegraph Corps pensions Pennsylvania Railroad Pensions to Pittsburg division men and their widows, because my old boys would dislike the change and so no doubt would others upon my pension list. To meet these payments and others under my will twenty-five millions of bonds, upon which the New York State tax has been paid, have been provided. But the New York Corporation has been made my residuary legatee and all surplus left after meeting the provisions of my will goes to it.

I am happy in getting all this off my mind. It is a gruesome business, but I find that this earth is rapidly becoming more and more heavenly, so many good men and women I know labor for others. Surely Luther Franklin and their followers were right to hold that service to man is the honest worship to God.

MAGISTRATE RITCHIE IN HEATED DEFENSE

he compared the proceedings to the Becker conspiracy in New York and when Mr. Barry declared that he knew nothing of such a meeting as the magistrate referred to, the officer waxed bitter and said: "Of course, you don't; you are but one of the gunmen. It was bigger men than you who conspired."

At this Mr. Barry made the heated rejoinder that he would tell the magistrate how he came to be mixed up in the investigation and that it was at the request of none other than Archbishop Casey, who put up the money for Lenihan, and who wanted his money back. This statement created something of a sensation in court.

The evidence was to the effect that although the fine in the Howe case had been paid over to the license inspector, it was not until six days ago and that after the investigation had started. In the Lenihan case there was no evidence that the deposit had ever been paid, although the magistrate claimed he had given it to his son, Edmund S. Ritchie, who had appeared as counsel for Lenihan, and that if it had not been returned the fault was his son's rather than his. The magistrate declared he had been 23 years on the police court bench in St. John and had never misappropriated a cent which had been paid to him.
