Farm Implement Prices

It is amusing to find our local contemporary in the role of defense counsel for the machinery manufacturers, whom it formerly abused along with the Bennett Government, and whose prices since the King Government came into power in 1935 have been jacked up three times on farm implements.

For months before the last election the Bennett Government was denounced by Liberal spokesmen for giving sufficient tariff protection to employ Canadian instead of United States farm machinery workmen. In return for this benefit to industrial Canadian centres, Premier Bennett obtained assurance from the manufacturers that they would not increase their prices. Our contemporary says there was "no agreement" but the fact speaks for itself, namely that prices under the Bennett regime were not only not increased but substantially lowered in many cases.

It was not until Mr. King came back to power and tinkered with the tariff that machinery prices went up. They went up in 1936, and again in 1937, and yet again in 1938. Why?

It is up to the King Government to find the answer to that question. They offered the electors a panacea that was going to reduce cost prices and it has had the opposite effect. That fact is beyond dispute, and it is the only one that matters so far as our farmers are concerned.

The Dying League

In reviewing Mr. Clarence H. Streit's new book, "Union Now," advocating that the democracies bordering the Atlantic Ocean on both sides form a federal union to maintain world peace the Marquess of Lothian says: "Mr. Streit, (who has represented the New York Times at Geneva for many years) I believe, has given all those who had faith in the League the principle on which alone their ideal can be realized."

"The anarchy of sovereignties, is driving every country into a form of State Socialism which has as its practical objective not the bettering of the conditions of the people but the generation of more and more State power and the ever greater militarization of the peoples."

Communism and fascism, undesirable as they are, at least offer some kind of an answer to this problem, said Lord Lothian, adding: "If democracy is to survive, the democracies must produce their own remedy for anarchy."

Mr. Streit, "sitting by the bedside of the dying League" had realized it could never carry out its work as long as it was based on the sovereignty of individual nations, declares Lord Lothian, remarking that this conclusion was similar to the decision by George Washington, Alexander Hamilton and other American leaders to substitute a federal union for the looser "league" under the Articles of Confederation.

Scientifically Considered

"What a piece of work is man!" says Hamlet. Perhaps it is fitting that in this scientific age the miracle of Man should be defined in mechanical terms, if only for the purpose of showing how little the most detailed analysis helps to an understanding of the mystery. In a recent book, "Nine Chains to the Moon," an extraordinary effort is made by the author, R. Buckminster Fuller, to achieve the reductio ad absurdum in definitions. He says:

"Man is a self-balancing twenty-eight-jointed adapter-base biped. An electro-chemical reduction plant, integral with segregated stowages of special energy extracts in storage batteries, for subsequent actuation of thousands of hydraulic and pneumatic pumps, with motors attached. Sixty-two thousand miles of capillaries; millions of warning signal, railroad and conveyor systems; crushers and cranes . . . and a universally distributed telephone system needing no service for seventy years if well managed."

"The whole mechanism guided with exquisite precision from a turret in which are located telescopic and microscopic self-registering and recording range finders, a spectroscopic, et cetera, the turret control being closely allied with an air-conditioning intake-and-exhaust, and a main fuel intake."

"Within the few cubic inches housing the turret mechanisms, there is room, also, for two soundwave and sound-direction-finder recording diaphragms, a filing and instant reference system, and an expertly devised analytical laboratory large enough not only to contain minute records of every lost and continual event of up to 70 years' experience . . . but to extend, by computation and abstract fabrication, this experience with relative accuracy into all corners of the observed universe."

"There is also a forecasting and tactical plotting department for the reduction of future possibilities and probabilities to generally successful specific choice."

After that, it's salutary to reflect on the less scientific but more important discovery of Job, that this mechanical marvel "is of few days and full of trouble; he cometh fourth like a flower, and is cut down; he fleeth as a shadow and continueth not."

Lack Of Leadership

The month of January again saw a considerable drop in employment in Canada, the Federal Bureau of Statistics reporting a decrease of 15,623 persons employed at February 1 from January 1. Since February 1, 1938, the reduction has been 25,916, which shows that it cannot be attributed to purely seasonal conditions. It was spread throughout the Dominion, with the exception of the province of Ontario, whose slight increase at February 1 over January 1 was, however, far below the figures for February 1 of last year. In other words, the problem of unemployment has obviously not been solved; and what is more, there is no indication that a solution is even being sought. A correspondent in a letter to the Montreal Gazette pointed out that "the mistake was not to use emergency measures to meet emergency conditions, but to allow the emergency measures to become fixed habits. Relief in the panic of 1930 was inevitable. Relief going over a decade is simply the establishment of a lasting system under which a large percentage of our people are paid for not working."

A great many young men and young women have reached maturity in the past ten years without any experience of working for their daily bread, with fixed habits of idleness making it more difficult each day for them to obtain work or to perform that work when they are confronted with it. The future of this Dominion is being very seriously jeopardized because its Government has failed to show leadership in the most severe crisis which this country has ever faced.

Editorial Notes

Sir Stanley Maude entered Bagdad this date, 1917.

We are getting a taste of our usual January weather in March.

Farmers now realize just how much more they have to pay for their implements and machinery through having the luxury of a Liberal Government at Ottawa.

According to Lieut. Commander Reginald Fletcher in the British House of Commons the lucky Canadian firm which got the Bren gun contract net the tidy profit of $267,000 on their order from the Mackenzie King Government.

The precocious mind of the rising generation of politicians is apt to put two and two together with a view to making five.

Tomorrow Mr. Hemming concludes his admirable series of articles on the development of the best interests of the Province. The previous articles have been greatly appreciated, and Mr. Hemming has received hundreds of letters commending his public spirit and vision. As he indicates in his final article it is for us ourselves, business men, agriculturists and fishermen, to keep steadily urging the powers-that-be at Ottawa until our improved harbour becomes an accomplished fact.

Matters have reached a pretty pass when lawyers turn communist—they being the last class on earth to think of sharing everything in common. Yet Judge Michael A. Musmanno of Common Pleas Court, Pittsburgh, intimates that he had resigned from the National Lawyers Guild, described by Justice Ferdinand Pecora of the New York Supreme Court as influenced by Communists. Judge Musmanno said he had never taken part in the guild's activities, and declined to be associated with an organization holding such views.

Over the border they are claiming that their Presidential College of Electors is modelled after the college of Cardinals. If that be so it has long since discarded its model, for it never meets though the textbooks and dictionaries say that Electoral College means the Presidential electors in every State, "who do meet in their several capitals for the formality of casting the State's vote." But in popular use the Electoral College is the total of 531 electoral votes of which the Democrats only need the Solid South, New York and California, and the Republicans already have 221 in the bag, so they think, etc. Some time in midwinter every four years the two houses of Congress meet in joint session and the Speaker counts the votes from the forty-eight States and announces to a more or less breathless nation the man who was elected President last November.

A new extract from the pituitary gland is being tried out in Montreal as a weight-reducing medicine. No reports in terms of pounds lost per week are yet available. The editor of The Canadian Medical Association Journal, however, says the tests of the new gland extract "give promise of great advance in the difficult problem of weight-reduction." The extract, known as No. 622, was obtained from pituitary glands of animals by Drs. J. B. Collip and K. O'Donovan at McGill University. They found that when given to animals this extract increased the heat production and energy expenditure of the animals' bodies. It did this, apparently, at the expense of fat. In tests of the new gland extract made on three human subjects the same speeding up of heat production and energy expenditure at the expense of fat occurred. In cautious scientific language Dr. Collip and associates, Drs. I. M. Rabinowitz, Marjorie Mountford and O'Donovan, reported their results to The Canadian Medical Association Journal. "The possible uses of this extract in the treatment of obesity and in conditions in general where an increase of metabolism is desirable are now being investigated," they stated.

NOTES BY THE WAY

A fact highly suggestive of the value of naps is that our depth of slumber is greatest shortly after we fall asleep. During the first three hours of a typical night most of us enjoy our heaviest repose, the remaining five hours being spent in much shallower sleep, which is correspondingly less valuable. From this it has been argued that we might do better with two three-hour stretches of sleep in each 24 than with the customary eight-hour period. We know that some of the soundest sleeping of human beings is done by children while taking their afternoon naps. It is probably true that the man or woman who systematically cultivates the art of napping may find that a snack of sleep during the day is the most refreshing of the content of the few moments given to it. A standard textbook on nursing believes that this is even more important value. A standard textbook on nursing believes that this is even more important value. From this it has been argued that we might do better with two three-hour stretches of sleep in each 24 than with the customary eight-hour period. We know that some of the soundest sleeping of human beings is done by children while taking their afternoon naps. It is probably true that the man or woman who systematically cultivates the art of napping may find that a snack of sleep during the day is the most refreshing of the content of the few moments given to it.
