In Memoriam
 REV. NEIL MACLAUCHLAN

MONCTON, N. B. April 17 — Rev. Neil MacLauchlan, 79, retired United Church pastor, died at his home on Bonaccord Street here early yesterday following an illness of about three weeks.

Born in St. Catharines, P. E. I., near Charlottetown, on Oct. 5, 1856, he held pastorates for 11 Martinique centres before his retirement five years ago, following which he took up residence here and at intervals visited Robert Smart, of the Central United Church.

Mr. MacLauchlan had been in ill health for three weeks, during which he entered the City Hospital here for observation, but returned to his home. He was an active man throughout his life and fond of outdoor activity. He was an enthusiastic curler and more than 70 years of age. He had enjoyed excellent health up to his last illness in spite of an accident about nine years ago in which he lost a hand, and was experimenting with an old gun when the breach blew out, mangle his hand so badly that it had to be amputated.

Mr. MacLauchlan was a son of the late Ewan and Flora MacLauchlan. As a young man he went to Charlottetown and became identified with a mercantile firm there. Later he attended Prince of Wales College at Charlottetown, following which he entered Mount Allison University, Sackville, graduating with the class of 1889 in arts and theology.

While at Mount Allison he had a brilliant career both as a student and an athlete, and was one of a committee which selected the historic Garnet and Gold as the colors for that institution.

His first circuit was at Old Ridge, Charlotte, after which he went to Butoctoe, Kent County. His other pastorates were: Gagetown, 1894-1899; Summerside, P. E. I., 1899-1901; St. John's, N. S., 1901-1909; Portland, Saint John, 1909-1910; Wilmet Church, Fredericton, 1910-1914; Wesley Church, Hamilton, Bermuda, 1914-1916; Portland, 1916-1929; Port Greville, N. S., 1929-1932.

During his ministry he held many important church offices and in 1912 was elected president of the New Brunswick and Prince Edward Island Methodist Conference.

He was a prominent member and a grand officer of the Bathurst Order and an active member of the English Speaking League in Moncton.

He is survived by his wife, formerly Miss Alice Wells, Sackville; two sons, Kenneth E. MacLauchlan, Woodstock, and Dr. Donald W. MacLauchlan, of Mount Allison University, Sackville; a brother, Dr. Donald MacLauchlan, Calgary, Alta., and one sister, Mrs. P. N. Pate, O'Leary, P. E. I.

The funeral was held on Tuesday with private service at the family residence at 2.30 p. m., followed by a public service in the Central United Church at 3 p. m.

CHAPTER VI
 HALFORD AGAIN

The big car ran smoothly along the winding coast road. In the back Shane and Martha were silent. Shane was thinking of the Gaelic prophecy which Mitchell had quoted. How did it go again? "They will come from over the sea, the pursuer and the pursued, to the stony place, and there will be death in the House of the Birds."

Some such nonsense. But it was strange, unsettling nonsense, all the same. It added to the general atmosphere to have been walking since his arrival in the island a bare forty-eight hours ago.

Whatever the mystery was, Shane found himself backing away from the thought that the girl by his side was involved in it. The words of the old Gaelic seer had a very sinister sound.

"There will be death in the House of the Birds," Shane was not superstitious, but he was an artist, and therefore had more than his fair share of imagination.

Martha Feimann had come from over the sea, she lived in the House of the Birds, and her mysterious father left the house only at night. He roused himself, and turned to the girl.

"What about that portrait you were going to let me paint of you?" Martha smiled. "You will really paint me? When can you come?"

"In at your disposal any wide arm," Heinrich stopped the car. He turned his square head stiffly and addressed Shane.

"To-morrow?"

"To-morrow morning if you're doing nothing else, and this weather holds. I want to paint you in the open, of course. Shall I call for you or—"

She hesitated. Once again the curtain of reticence had descended between them. But only for a moment. He was an artist, and he would not let that stand.

"I shall meet you. Be on the road near the house at half-past ten."

"I will. That's settled, then," said Shane warmly.

To hide a pleasure that might seem to be too excessive, he turned his eyes to the road.

As the car entered a country lane, he lumbered heavily on the crown of the road. Heinrich prodded impatiently on his horn, but the driver of the bus was either deafened by the clatter and rattle of his own vehicle or else chose to pay no heed.

"The bus was crawling. They made up on it rapidly, and the bonnet of the car glided itself to the rear of the bus, only a foot or two from its tail light. Heinrich pressed the horn again. When the fellow had leaned out and yelled lustily, but without success.

"The heavy vehicle was travelling in a slow gear, and it edged all about them. Martha put up a hand and sneezed violently. Shane leaned out of the car. He added his voice to Heinrich's in a general roar of malediction.

At last a head was thrust out of the bus, and a surprised face peered back at them. The head jerked its neck, and was withdrawn.

"The bus forsook the crown of the road and crawled painfully into the side. A hand waved them to come on.

The big car roared angrily past in low gear. Martha sat back and laughed.

"I am glad he heard us at last! In another minute I should have been choked!"

But Shane was staring back at the bus. The vehicle was back on the crown of the road, lumbering stolidly along in its cloud of white dust, and they were leaving it rapidly behind.

Martha looked at her companion in surprise.

"What is it? Did you see somebody you knew?"

"No," said Shane quickly. "That is, I thought I recognized a face. I was mistaken."

He leaned back against the cushions. But he was positive he had made no mistake. As they roared past the bus, he had glimpsed the face of Halford peering out at them.

Shane tried to dismiss the incident with a shrug. It might have been a little signpost. Halford was quite entitled to travel by the bus if he wanted to. Nevertheless this was the second time within a few hours that he had caught sight of the fellow, just as he had every right to be in the bus, so Halford

LONG RIVER WOMEN'S INSTITUTE

The March meeting was held at the home of Mrs. Ernest Dunning, the President presiding. Meeting opened with singing "Wild Irish Rose" followed by members responded to roll call with Something Irish. Two visitors present.

Minutes of last meeting read and approved.

Reports of committees. School committee brought up that the children had no fit and proper place for keeping lunches and Mrs. Everett Paynter and Mrs. Ernest Dunning were appointed to interview a carpenter and get the old book-case remodeled for same.

Sick committee reported making two calls, and taking fruit.

New Sick, Mrs. Heath Campbell, and Mrs. Edwin Bernard.

Program, Mrs. James McKenzie, Mrs. W. J. Profit, Mrs. Ralph Bernard, Lunch, Mrs. Edward Campbell, Mrs. E. Dunning and Miss Mrs. Fournier.

Two bills presented Fruit and Milk for School, moved and carried bills be paid.

The program consisted of a Reading "St. Patrick" by Mrs. W.

E. Johnston, a contest by Miss Vivian Paynter and also one by Mrs. Dan Campbell.

Owing to the lateness of the hour Questionnaire on Legislation was not discussed.

Mrs. Murdoch McLeod invited the Institute to meet at her home for April. Roll call to be answered something about "Spring" God Save the King brought meeting to a close. Lunch was then served by committee in charge.

Big Expansion of Chemical Industry

(By Howard W. Blakeslee, Associate Press Science Editor the DALLAS, Texas, April 19—(CP)—Plans of the $5,000,000 chemical industry, third largest in the United States manufacturing, to spend $100,000,000 in expansion of production plants were announced to the American Chemical Society here today.

They were given in a survey of potential industrial power by Dr. D.B. Morgan, chemical and statistical expert of New York City.

"There is an 'it'," Dr. Morgan said, "containing the time when the 100,000,000 will be spent. It" the chemical industry is let alone, this expansion will be within 18 months. Uncertainties about taxes and wages, he explained, are among causes of delay. Last year chemistry spent $100,000,000 on expansion but at present has cut this spending rate to around 20 per cent.

"Never sell American short," the advance of George F. Baker, the banker, said Dr. Morgan, "is more particularly true today than ever, and this partly on account of the rise of the chemical industry. The industry had hardly started when Baker made his famous statement."

The individual expansion plans of the big chemical companies, Dr. Morgan stated, cannot now be made public. One item is to spend between $5,000,000 and $10,000,000 on a new plant in the southwest.

Science, Dr. Morgan said, has enabled the chemical industry to top all other industries in economic progress. This is based on comparison of industry in the boom years 1925 to '29 against progress from 1923 to '37.

Wages in chemistry averaged four per cent more rise than in 100 leading industries.

Eggs are usually plentiful and less expensive in the early spring and may be a welcome change for an occasional main course from heavier winter menus. Souffles are an attractive and highly nutritious main dish and may be varied in almost countless ways by adding different ingredients—flaked fish, mashed vegetables, cheese—to the basic egg recipe.

"Park Avenue Girl" At The Capitol

The screen's most consistent lovers are re-united in "Park Avenue Girl" showing today at the Capitol Theatre.

Richard Arlen and Fay Wray, who have the featured leads in the picture, fell into a romantic embrace for the first time when they were mere youngsters while cameras grouped for the silent picture "Four Feathers."

Since that time Arlen and Miss Wray have been romantically paired in such famous pictures as "The Sign of the Cross," "The Lady of the Lake" and "The Lawyer's Secret."

Consequently, when the script for "Park Avenue Girl" called for the whispering of sweet nothings into each other's ears, Arlen and Miss Wray needed no rehearsal.

The two p layers had been rehearsing for years.

Supporting Arlen and Miss Wray in the film are Raymond Walburn and Wyn Cahoon.

In Memoriam
 MRS. FRANCIS CROKEN

Many hearts were saddened and a gloom cast over Middleton and surrounding districts, when it became known that the Angel of Death visited that quiet community and called from its earthly sphere Mrs. Francis Croken at the age of 74 years. She was formerly Miss Seton Brennan, of Kinkora, and was a most exemplary parishioner, but it was in the sphere of her own home that the late Mrs. Croken's life and character were seen in their true loveliness. She was a splendid model of Christian Motherhood, and a charitable neighbor. Indeed throughout life by Christian principles, she faced her approaching death with perfect calm and resignation and at the end had the great privilege of receiving the last absolutions from her pastor, Rev. M. J. Smith, who was beside her as her soul passed into eternity.

There are left to mourn and cherish the memory of a kind mother, four daughters and three sons—Sister Mary Leinus, Minneapolis, Minn.; Mrs. Thomas S. Noonan, Grand Rapids, Mich.; Mrs. Nootan, Albany, Mrs. John Campbell, Edmond, Alta.; Vincent, Leithbridge, Alta.; Peter and Leo in Middleton; also one sister and one brother, Mr. Patrick and Mary Brennan, Kinkora, her husband and two children predeceased her some years ago.

Following are the pallbearers: Messrs. Peter D. McIvor, James McCord, Hugh McCarville, Eugene Smith, Frank Gallant, Percy Murphy. The funeral was largely attended.

In Memoriam
 JOSEPH HIGGINS

The death of Joseph Higgins, a highly respected resident of Kensington, occurred at the home of his wife, William on March 28th. He deceased had been in failing health for several years. Born in Kensington seven years ago, he spent the greater part of his life in the old homestead where he, with a sister Lillian who predeceased him, tenderly cared for his parents. His father attained the grand age of ninety-eight years and his mother also lived to be over ninety years.

After the death of his sister, he retired and made his home with his brother. The deceased made a success of his chosen occupation of farming and was even ready to lend a helping hand to a neighbor, a quality which was for him many loyal friends who sincerely regret his departure from this life.

He received the last sacrament of the Holy Eucharist, of which he was a devout member, from his pastor, Rev. R. F. McDonald.

He leaves to mourn four sisters and four brothers, namely, Mary Ellen McLaughlin, St. John, N. B.; Mrs. Angus Wilson, Seattle, Wash.; Mrs. Emma Mullally, Kensington, Mass.; George, Seattle, Wash.; James, Seattle, Wash.; Stephen, Vancouver, B. C.; and William in Kensington. A brother John predeceased him.

The large number of Mass Cards and messages of sympathy received and the large number who followed him to his last resting place attested to the esteem in which the deceased was held. His funeral took place on Monday, April 15th, at the Indian River Church and cemetery. High Mass of Requiem was celebrated by Rev. R. F. McDonald who also performed the ceremony at the grave.

The pallbearers were Messrs. James Braham, Linus Gorman, Harold Mullally, James Pendergast, Heath Casley and John Murphy. R. I. P.—R.
