CHANGES SINCE DICKENS' TIME

HALIFAX, N. S., Mar. 16—If Charles Dickens had been able to witness the opening of the Nova Scotia General Assembly on March 5th, of this year he would have observed that the forms in use in the Parliament of England were even more closely copied than on the occasion of his visit to Halifax eighty-eight years ago. For this year a golden mace was borne into the chamber by the sergeant-at-arms in advance of the speaker and Lieutenant Governor, the first occasion on which the symbol of British parliamentary authority had been introduced in a Nova Scotia legislature. Dickens' visit to the "House opening" was on the morning of January 19th, 1842, when he had six hours in Halifax before resuming his journey to Boston on the Cunarder Britannia.

NEW ENGLAND CITY IS BUILT ABOVE ANCIENT UNDERGROUND PASSAGeways
WORCESTER, Mass., March 16—Forty feet under ground in the heart of Worcester's business district, unknown to thousands of people who pass above them every day, there exists an amazing labyrinth of subterranean rooms and passages. Some thirty of the dismal, dungeon-like apartments wind in and out beneath the cellars of buildings covering, roughly, city blocks.
Built perhaps a century ago, the massive brick walls and supporting pillars now crumbling from decay, present a picture of desolation. But the history of these underground apartments, as recalled by old residents through stories they heard in their youth, surrounds the passages with colors of romance, adventure, intrigue.
Legends people the rooms with the gay young men of an early generation, gambling and drinking, far from the prying eyes of the police. One story places Jem Mace, famous English heavyweight, in the largest of the rooms, and relates that the Englishman fought fifty gruelling rounds before he subdued his American opponent, unnamed, in bare-knisted battle and according to the London prize ring rules.
The date of the construction of the man-made caverns goes back to abolitionist days, and there are numerous tales that they were a spur of the "underground railway" which aided the slaves of the south to escape to Canada.

Church Services

TRINITY UNITED CHURCH

"And ye shall seek me and find me, when ye shall search for me with all your heart." Jer. 29-13. Seeking God was the theme of an excellent sermon by Rev. G. N. Brown yesterday morning. The dwelling place of God is in the human heart. God is not an external object to be located, but God is a Spirit to be appropriated and if we would have God it means the cleansing of our hearts. The choir sang the Anthem, "Just as I am."

The attendance at Sunday School showed a good advance, the total being 497. All the activities of the Church are now functioning in a most satisfactory manner. There is a splendid enthusiasm manifest and we are looking forward to the approaching Easter season with joyful expectancy.

In the evening the Choir rendered before a large and appreciative audience the sacred Lenten Cantata "Penitence, Pardon and Peace." Rev. Dr. Ramsay read the scripture lesson from Hebrews 10-10, and made a few appropriate remarks in regard to the sacrifice of praise to God as an important part of our worship. The words of the Cantata are taken from Holy Writ. It is divided into three parts, first, Penitence, "How long will thou forget me O Lord," second, Pardon, "Oh cast thy burden upon the Lord and He will sustain thee," and third, Peace, "Come ye blessed of my Father, inherit the Kingdom prepared for you from the foundation of the world." The solo parts were very capably taken by Mrs. Roy Cudmore, Mr. Harvey McPherson and Cpl. G. Elliot Full. At the end of part one and three the congregation joined heartily in the hymns provided as part of the Cantata.

THE BAPTIST CHURCH

The usual very large congregations were in attendance at the Baptist Church, morning and evening. The minister, Rev. A. C. Vincent, preached on both occasions.

The subject of the morning discourse was "John Mark or Making Good." The text was from the Acts of the Apostles, chapter 13, verse 13: "And John departed from them and returned to Jerusalem. Briefly and vividly recalling the history of John Mark, so far as it may be known or inferred, his apparent opportunity of meeting those who became spiritual leaders of the Church, his affectionate and devoted friendship with St. Peter, the speaker referred to the possibilities bestowed by such surroundings, such training, now given opportunity of expression in the company of Barnabas and Paul. John Mark's failure, so much like many of our own, and his splendid return to brave and effective usefulness, were dwelt upon in an eloquent and interesting address.

The subject of the evening sermon was "Jonah's Night at Nineveh." This was the second of a series of addresses on dramatic night scenes taken from the Bible. A most searching and inspiring sermon, listened to with deep interest by a large audience.

Music of the usual high order entered into the day's services of worship. The male quartette, Messrs. Quigley, Calder, Dingwell and Sterns, sang very effectively Towner's "Secret Prayer."

Attendance at the Sunday School again reached the record mark. The usual church activities were announced for the week.

TAKE TWO NEW ENGLAND

The new joint master is now living at the hunting box in the village of Cattsstock, about a hundred yards from the Hum kennels and stables. Owned by Admiral Sykes, the residence is an ideal hunting billet and now that he is to remain in England indefinitely he has taken a long lease of the house, which is so conveniently located for him. After he has killed his "May fox" at Cattsstock, Mr. Higginson will sail for America to attend the races at Belmont Park, where he will be a steward. He will stay in this country until time to go back to Cattsstock for the "cubbing."

The Netherlands now has more than 115,000 automobiles.

Reports of the program and sick committees followed. The sick committee reported five visitors. Plans were made for a concert. It was decided to sell candy during the intermission. The next meeting is to be held at the home of Mrs. La. Hynes. At the close of the meeting a dainty luncheon was served by the hostess.

While Mr. John Callaghan, Lake Verde, was coming through at the R. R. crossing at Hermitage last week, he had a very narrow escape. A special train coming from Charlottetown ran into him in a head-on collision. Mr. Callaghan had the ability of mind to jump into a snow bank. His trolley was completely demolished.

A Holiday In London And Vicinity

Jellico, who welcomed the visitors. An unusually large throng filled the different rooms, corridors and stairways. Quite a large Picture Gallery is here, containing among a great many works of art, several splendid views of places in all the Colonies of the British Commonwealth. Also was given a cinema exhibition of different industries in most parts of the Empire. A large room set apart with refreshment tables contributed greatly to the enjoyment of the guests.

Among the crowds were to be seen several East Indian nabobs—Princes and Princesses, as well as Officers of the Salvation Army.

That, on the evening of July 1st (Dominion Day) was held at the Canada House, where are the offices of the High Commissioner for Canada. We had the pleasure here of meeting as host the Honourable Peter Larkin, also Mrs. and Miss Larkin, who made everything very pleasant for the assembled guests. Here also, like the evening before at the Imperial Institute, an immense concourse of people were present. One would not recognize the offices of the Canadian Building, as they were so transformed by the splendid display of flags and bunting, and in addition a ton or more of peonies sent from Canada for the occasion. As at the Royal Colonial Institute, there was a great exhibit of natural products—this time not from different parts of the Empire, but from Canada alone, which attracted large crowds of admirers. Noticeable among the guests were Lord and Lady Byng, Lord and Lady Aberdeen, well-known here as former occupants of the vice-regal residence at Ottawa, and several other celebrities such as Mr. and Mrs. Rudyard Kipling, and many other well known celebrities. The ball-room as well as the refreshment room, was extensively patronized, and all present apparently enjoyed themselves greatly.

It would occupy too much space and probably be tiresome to describe in detail the many public institutions, such as Art Galleries, Museums, Institutes for the promotion of instruction in technology, engineering, art, culture, music, etc., also of the theatres and other places of amusement, street shows, etc., the palaces, great residences, shops and noted places out of town that were visited, together with some days spent in Scotland.

I shall endeavor to give a short sketch of a few of the out-of-town attractions that were a source of delight to me while in the Old Country.

KEW GARDENS

The Royal Botanical Gardens combine the attractions of a delightful open space of nearly three hundred acres with those of a museum. The visitor may wander at will through what is practically a lordly park, with every species of tree, shrub and flower plainly labelled for his edification. The grounds comprise stately avenues and sequestered walks, lakes and ponds, palm houses and conservatories, gorgeous flower beds, rockeries, museums, and classic temples and a large herbaceous ground. The Rock Garden, where about every species of weed and wild flower is cultivated, is worth the trip from London. A touch of quaintness is given to the southern end of the gardens by the Chinese Pagoda, 165 feet high, and a notable addition to the Gardens is a flagpole of Douglas fir presented by the Government of British Columbia, said to be the tallest in the world, being 215 feet high and weighing eighteen and one-half tons. A traveller has said "I have seen the moon rise over the Nile, starlight in the silence of the desert, and many times from the summit of mountains I have watched dawn come slowly. But the Royal Botanical Gardens at Kew in Bluebell time—travel the world, spend a fortune hunting beauty, and I do not think the earth will give you a lovelier sight than the Bluebell walk in the freshness of the morning in May." "And to see the full beauty of October I go to Kew Gardens to sit on a lonely seat under a tree. And I think that among the eight millions in London there are many longing for a place to think, for calm to face peace, trouble or sorrow; and here in Kew is the convalescent home for all sore souls." "Surely it was in autumn that man first developed a sense of beauty." "There is a church-like hush in autumn woods, an air of thanksgiving; a solemn stillness in which it seems as if the Voice of the Lord God walking in the Garden." (To be Continued.)

NEGRO PUMPS SHIP ESCAPES CIRCLING SHARKS

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., March 16—How Jack Grant, huge Negro seaman, driven to superhuman effort by the sight of shark fins cutting ever narrowing circles around their craft, kept the boat afloat by three days unceasing labor at the pump after its seams had been wrecked by an explosion, was recounted here by Paul Rice, 38.

Rice, master of the 40-foot motor-boat Vulcan, and Grant were rescued by the tanker, G. H. Jones, off the Florida coast. Ten minutes after they were taken off the boat, it sank.

The men left Palm Beach in the boat, bound for Fernandina. A day after they left there was an explosion below, which severely injured Rice. Grant, however, was revived by water leaking over him, and was unable to put out the fire which followed.
