THE SKYLINE OF SPRUCE

She sat dry-eyed, incoherent, praying at her trembling lips. Mostly she did not touch the man only sat at his bedside in the crude chair Ben has fashioned for her.

CHAPTER XVI

The Shot That Wounded

Impelled by the excitement under which she advanced, her odd agility of motion had for the moment returned to her, and she crept softly as a fawn between the young trees. One misstep, one rustling branch or crackling twig might give her away but she took each step with consummate care, rarely trusting the tree branches from her path.

One of the three men looked up, and she saw his face plainly through the low spruce boughs. It was with a distinct foreboding of disaster that she saw that the man was Ray Brent.

At one side, quite to the edge of the firelight, she saw a kayak—one of those square boxes that are hung on a pack saddle—which seemed to be heaped with jerked caribou or moose flesh. For the time of a breath she could not take her eyes from it.

Chan and Nelson were seemingly asleep, and now Ray was knocking the ashes from his pipe. She got up and removing his outer coat, rolled in his blankets. The night hours began their myriads march across the face of the wilderness.

The fire was a heap of gray ash except for its red-hot centre; the kayak was in gloom. Very softly Beatrice crept through the thickets, meanwhile endeavoring the dying fire, and came up behind it.

Now it was almost in reach; now her hands were at its loops. She started to lift it in her arms. But just as she did so, she heard Ray Brent had been too wary of attack, tonight, to sleep easily into deep slumber. He heard the soft movement and with a startled oath sprang to his feet.

Still trying to hold the kayak of food that meant so much to Ben, she turned and darted into the shadows.

Like a wolf Ray sped after her. The moonlight showing her sleek, lithe figure in the trees, and shouting aloud he sprang through the covert to intercept her flight. Embarrassed by the heavy box she could not watch her step. She was harried with stunning force to the ground.

Desperate and intent, but in realization of impending triumph Ray's strong arms went about her. Nelson and Chan were on their feet now, and they regarded her in the utter silence of amazement. Breathing fast, Ray came behind her.

"Build up the fire, Chan," he said in a strange grim voice. "We want to see what we've caught!" Obviously Chan kicked the coals from under the ashes, and began to heap on broken pieces of wood.

Slowly the fire's glow crept out to her, revealing her wide, frightened eyes and the dark, spectral faces of the men. Then Ray spoke sharply: "Well, why don't you question her?" he demanded of Nelson.

"I was trying to take some of your food—to Ben," Beatrice replied softly. "He's in need of it."

"You see, they're on intimate terms," Ray suggested viciously. "Ben was in need of food—so she came here to steal it."

But Nelson acted as if he had not heard. "Why didn't you specify and tell us you were a thief?" he asked. "We've come all the way here to find you."

"Perhaps you did. If you had— (To be Continued.)"

N. Y. SKYSCRAPER PUT UP FOR SALE

NEW YORK, January 12.—New York's largest office building, the Equitable Building at 120 Broadway, in which T. Coleman Dupont is understood to hold the controlling interest, has been placed on the market for sale. A possible purchaser is Edward L. Doherty, chairman of directors of the Mexican Petroleum Company, and the Pan-American Petroleum Company, both companies having offices in the building.

The building has been offered to Mr. Doherty. It was reported in the financial district today for $40,000,000. Some of his associates admit that he had considered the purchase as a private investment, but they said last night that it was unlikely that the deal would be closed on the terms named. Mr. Doherty is travelling in Louisiana and could not be reached last night.

The Equitable Building, one of the newest in the financial district and an outstanding figure on the skyline of lower New York, is the best known structure in the city. Next to the General Motors building in Detroit, it is the largest office structure in the United States.

EARNS $240 BOUNTY ON WOLVES

PORT ARTHUR, Jan. 12.—An Indian, John James, of Allenwater in the Canadian National, west of Fort William, has forwarded the skins of two wolves and eight brush wolves to R. W. Brown, Indian agent, for the collection of bounties. The Indians will receive $240 in bounty money.

Notice to the Public

All amounts owing us on book accounts must now be paid. This action on our part is necessary owing to the loss sustained by us in the recent fire. We expect a settlement of all amounts due us not later than Jan. 20th, and we trust it will not be necessary to hand to our solicitors any of our customers' accounts and thus mar the happy association enjoyed by this store with its numerous customers from city and country. ### Good Blood

Rich and Pure is essential to health, happiness, energy, willingness to work and good appetite.

Lack of it means disease, rheumatism, catarrh, hemorrhoids, headache, wandering pains, cold hands and feet, decline of health-tone.

Hood's Sarsaparilla is recommended for all these and other symptoms, because it is made from the best ingredients physicians prescribe, combined by pharmacians who have made a life-long study of medicine.

Must Produce Better Butter For Export

TORONTO, Jan. 12.—Ontario will have to produce better butter if it is to go out and win the markets of the world, according to the viewpoint expressed by various speakers at the annual convention of the Canadian Producers' Association which opened here today.

The trouble, it was pointed out, is not due to lack of effort on the part of governments to improve the standard of butter by grading processes but to the farmers and the creameries and to the fact that there is not a proper differential in price paid by the creameries for good and inferior cream.

If Canada is looking for success in her dairy industry, it would be a good idea if it would look to New Zealand, according to the words of Joseph Calder, of the Saskatchewan creameries of Moosejaw for New Zealand has been able to win an important place in the British market which Canada has not yet done in spite of the fact that New Zealand butter has to be carried a much greater distance than the Canadian.

One of the difficulties in Canada, according to Mr. Calder, is that the creameries do not have a set of grading process to meet the differing qualities of cream. The result is that the farmer who produces good cream sees that he does not get any more for his work than does the man who turns out an inferior cream, so the result is that little encouragement from a financial standpoint is held out to the farmer to improve his output in New Zealand, on the contrary, they pay for quality only. Further, New Zealand makes it a point to study the market and learn the kind of butter demanded in other countries.

In dealing with the progress of better grading in Ontario, John Scott, provincial butter grader, stated that Ontario butter is becoming poorer in grade from year to year, and he agreed with Mr. Calder that as long as the present system of buying cream prevails there can be little hope of real progress.

Mr. Scott felt that about 75 per cent of Ontario's butter is second grade.

DEATH, DESTRUCTION IN WAKE CLOUDBURST

TACOMA, Wash., Jan. 12.—At least three lives have been lost; two men still are missing, and property loss estimated at $75,000, resulted from the cloudburst which destroyed the West Fork Logging Company's camp near Morton, last Saturday morning.

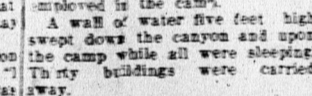

The dead: Joe Peterson, engineer, and a two-year old son; P. Kockoff, camp cook. The two other men reported missing were employed in the camp.

A wall of water five feet high swept down the canyon and upon the camp while all were sleeping. Thirty buildings were carried away.

The force of the water was so great that it carried a logging locomotive 100 yards from the track, took out a bridge and destroyed a half mile of logging road.

HORNE COMING ON STEEL BUSINESS

LONDON, Jan. 12.—Sir Robert Horn, who but for the fall of the Lord George Government would have been now negotiating as ambassador of the Exchequer at Washington, will sail for New York tomorrow on the Olympic. He is now vice-chairman of the Baldwin and Steel Company—which has no connection with the Baldwin Locomotive works—and is travelling with one of his colleagues on the business of that firm.

To your correspondent Sir Robert said today: "I expect to be a week in the United States, and ten days in Canada, but my trip is business."

"Will you go to Washington?"

"I may, but it would be simply to see Sir Ashland Godden. Nothing is arranged, however and if I did go to Washington I don't know whether I should come across Stanley Baldwin or not."

Then Sir Robert added: "I do want to keep my visit quiet, and I hope the newspapers will not think I am willing to give interviews. While the Chancellor of the Exchequer is in the country on a most important official mission, I do not think an ex-chancellor or who is merely there on private business should be giving out his opinions."
