

DROWNING ACCIDENT AT SOURIS

Two Young Men go Sailing in the Harbor

ON SATURDAY AFTERNOON

Stephen McInnis Unfortunate Victim—Body Recovered—Doctors Fail to Restore Life

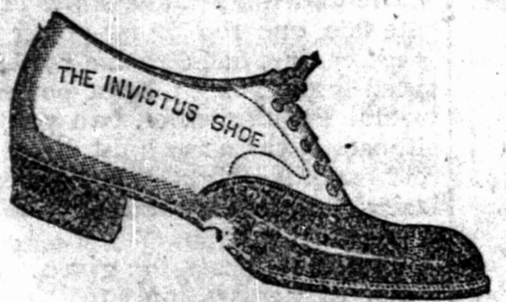

SOURIS, Aug. 23.—(Special)—At 1 p. m. to-day while Hensley McDonald, son of Capt. Wm. McDonald Souris, and Stephen McInnis, son of the late Joseph McInnis Souris, were boat sailing in Souris Harbor off Stone's wharf the boat upset, and the unfortunate boy McInnis was drowned. Everything possible was done by Drs Mullaley and McLean to restore the vital spark in the remains which were recovered some 20 minutes after the accident, but all to no purpose. Young McInnis was 18 years old.

REPORT THAT AMERICANS IN ENGLAND

Want to Buy Washington's Ancestral Home

SETTLERS IN S. AFRICA

Find Hard Restrictions at Johannesburg--Boer Generals to Get the Relief Funds.

THE HOME OF THE WASHINGTONS.

LONDON, Aug. 23.—(Special)—No credence is placed in the reports that Americans in England are trying to buy the house near Banbury, Oxfordshire, the ancestral home of the Washingtons, to take it to the St. Louis fair.

It cannot be transported owing to the nature of its materials and construction.

SETTLERS IN SOUTH AFRICA.

South African advices say that Americans and other foreigners find difficulty in getting admitted to Johannesburg and other towns, as the regulations require a settler to have at least five hundred dollars or to prove that he is able to maintain himself.

GIVEN TO THE BOER GENERAL.

THE HAGUE, Aug. 23.—(Special)—The funds raised by national subscription to aid the Boers will be placed at the disposal of the Boer Generals.

THE EDITOR'S MAIL. ANOTHER TIRED READER.

Sir.—The item appearing in Saturday's Guardian by a "Tired Reader" is timely. Kindly allow me to make a further suggestion. I would suggest as another change in the reading matter of the Examiner that there be a "let up" for a time at least, in the silly rot which is published by that paper from such correspondents as "Rex", "Mizpah" and others, and give a rest to

MR. TARTE SPEAKS OF THE GREAT DESTINY OF CANADA

Visiting English Journalists Entertained in Montreal by the Minister of Public Works—Trade of the Great Lakes Belongs to Canada—Witticism at Mr. Richard White's Expense—Off to Toronto.

MONTREAL, Aug. 20.—At the luncheon to the visiting English journalists on the Lord Stanley steamer to-day, the chief speaker was Hon. J. I. Tarte, who dwelt on the importance of developing the S. Lawrence route. On this point Mr. Tarte made a sally which was greatly appreciated by those familiar with politics of a couple of decades ago.

"If our future welfare and happiness depend on an expenditure of money," said Mr. Tarte, "then by all means, I will spend money. I see my old friend Richard White, of the Gazette, 'Dickie' White, as I used to call him in my Tory days, when he and I did not make elections with prayer." (Here there was great laughter, for many present remembered that White used to be treasurer of the Conservative election funds.)

Mr. White retorted: "But I did not approve." Mr. Tarte rejoined: "I don't know about that; at any rate I am not a spender of money for useless purposes, but if the demand is good we must do our duty while we are here. The Americans, my friends, will capture the whole trade of the lakes, the whole trade of the Northwest, unless we do the right thing now. It is from that standpoint I have come back from my trip, with a full determination to ask parliament, to advise the country, with all the energy I possess, to go right on to spend now while we are living the money necessary to keep for us our own Canadian trade, to capture as much

GROUND INTO KINDLING

Within an Hour After Going Ashore—Captain and Crew Escaped, Losing their Effects.

HALIFAX, N. S., Aug. 23.—

Captain Garnier, of the schooner Bolina, which arrived at North Sydney to-day from Gaspe, reports the wreck of the schooner Tarquin of Souris, (P. E. I.), during the terrific gale on Sunday last at Grindstone, one of the Magdalen Islands.

The Tarquin was broken into kindling wood in an hour after going ashore.

The captain and crew barely escaped with their lives. They lost everything.

Art Photography.

The new art photography is very attractive and a boon to the homely girl for which she will be eternally grateful, but it has its disadvantages. A man discovered the latter fact about a month ago, when he received the photograph of a beautiful creature whom he did not in the least recognize. He examined the likeness that was not a likeness by daylight, by gaslight and by the ghastly glare of an arc light. He looked at the handwriting on the cover, and it conveyed not an idea to his stupid masculine head. Then he gave it up.

"Blest if I know who it is," said he to himself, "but if I ever meet her my bachelor days are over, sure, for she's the prettiest thing ever."

Just last week after he'd cherished the photo of his unknown admirer for a good fortnight, he met his second cousin on the street.

Now, his second cousin is a very amiable young woman, but she isn't in the way of being beautiful, and when she greeted him with—

"Well, Fritz, why haven't you acknowledged the photograph I was good enough to send you?" the man was staggered.

"I never received it, that's why," said he. "I'd love to have a likeness of you, Mab, but you've never sent me one."

"I have sent you one, nearly a month ago, taken in my bridesmaid's gown and with a big chiffon hat on. Now, don't tell me you never received it, for I'm sure you did, and have forgotten."

"Was that you?" exclaimed the man, and then he felt that this was among the things better left unsaid, and he weakly hedged.

"Course I got it," said he. "I just wanted to jolly you a bit. Splendid of you, too."

"What did the man do to her?" he asked his sister half an hour later. "I declare to you I'd never recognize her in the world."

"Well, he drew a line down her nose to make it look less—er—well, less rouse," replied that world-wise young lady, "and he curved her mouth with rouge, and made her eyes larger in the negative, and really I think it's a very creditable work of art. I'm going to him myself."

The man didn't say a word, but he made up his mind to something, and now when people show him a photograph of "my lovely niece down South," or "my sister, who's the beauty of Denver," he glances at it cursorily and then he says gently, "It's a very pretty picture, but I should like to see the original."

"Poor man!" said the lady visitor, addressing one of the inmates of the insane asylum, "don't you often feel very sad to be shut up here?"

"Oh, no," the patient answered. "The lunatics who come to look at us are generally very amusing."—Chicago "Record-Herald."

It is hard to decide which feels the most elated—the distinguished man who manages to palm himself off as an ordinary citizen for a few hours, or the ordinary man who happens to be mistaken for somebody in particular.

"What is your city noted for?"

"Well, we have the tallest building in the country, the cleanest streets of any city in the world, the best street car service, the most—"

"Oh, yes! But what have you that the other cities haven't got?"

HAD NERVOUS PROSTRATION

Mrs. S. West Drayton, Ont., states: "I got terribly run down, and finally became a victim of nervous prostration. I had no appetite, seemed to lose interest and ambition and could scarcely drag myself about. Hearing of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food I used three boxes with great benefit, gaining eleven pounds. It made me strong and well and I had such an appetite that I wanted to be eating half the time."

Galveston Still in Ruins.

A correspondent of a southern newspaper, writing from Texas, gives a picture of the recovery of Galveston from its awful disaster. He says:—

"What of Galveston? One stands appalled even now at the magnitude of the work of the storm two years ago. In the desolated district there is scarcely less to mark where a street was than can be found in a hundred-acre cotton field.

"Is that section building up again? Not much. Now and then a good house. On the other hand, I was impressed as I did not expect to be with what the storm didn't materially damage. There are many magnificent business blocks and stately residences still left. There must be not less than 25,000 people in Galveston to-day. Besides, as a shipping point, there is not a harbor to equal this on the Gulf coast. The citizens have voted $1,500,000 of bonds to build a sea wall, and already, before they are issued, more than $1,000,000 have been taken by her own citizens. Others may doubt, but these people believe in the future of Galveston. I didn't find a doubting Thomas anywhere.

"The two-mile-wide channel was crossed before the storm by three lines of railroad. Only one has been repaired, and all trains pass over this from the mainland to the island. The posts which supported the other two tracks still stand, with gaps here and there, as silent witnesses to the resistless power of the storm."
