6 o'clock that evening on St. Edwards Road. The prisoner came there, stayed about an hour, the prisoner and I went down the road we met Sylvain Doucette, and went to his home. The three of us then went to Mrs. Mary Bernards, also called there a quarter of an hour, then on to Mrs. Elizabeth Bernards. The prisoner went into the house he was there about five minutes, we then started in the direction of Mary Bernards. When opposite the window, prisoner slipped, broke a pane of glass. Edward Perry, the deceased, was standing outside. The prisoner asked him for a quart of moonshine. Prisoner said, pay for the glass first and you will get the quart of moonshine after. Prisoner said, "Get the quart first and then I will pay for glass." Deceased said he would not. Prisoner said, he did not give a damn for anything in St. Louis, the deceased said, "Neither do I."

Deceased was standing with his hands in his pockets. Prisoner struck him on the right cheek. Deceased fell. Prisoner caught him and shook him, raised him off the ground and dropped him again. Raised him about nine or ten inches. Prisoner kicked him on right side. Then I ran up and said, "That's enough you had better go away." We left deceased there. We ran to the road and caught up to Sylvain Doucette and we all returned to Sylvain's place. We did not mention the fight on the way back. We stayed in the house about half an hour. Fight took place between nine and ten o'clock. We next went to Andrew Allen's place. Neddie Bernard and Wilfred Doucette came in while we were there. There was no conversation about the fight.

Did you hear Neddie Bernard say anything in presence of the prisoner, Answer, yes. Bernard said, "he thought Edward Perry was dying." Prisoner and myself and Sylvain Bernard started for Mrs. Mary Bernards we went about half a mile and stopped. Prisoner and I returned to Fred Arsenault's stayed about an hour. Prisoner appeared to be quite sober.

Prisoner said, he did not think he hit him that hard that he would get a doctor. Did he get a doctor? Answer. No. Deceased appeared to be a peaceful man. Went over to see deceased on Monday. He was lying on the lounge, it was seven o'clock in the evening. Prisoner stayed at James Arsenault's Saturday night and left about eight o'clock Sunday morning. He went to Fred Arsenault's and returned to his home Sunday night.

Cross examined by Mr. Lewis, witness said, did not see prisoner get a quart of moonshine, did not have a drink at Doucette's barn, I was outside. I did not hear Doucette say, there is a quart of moonshine for you. Witness denied that he had had anything to drink. Deceased used to sell moonshine. I heard Doucette tell prisoner, that Perry had some moonshine. Court adjourned for recess.

Sylvain Doucette, Solomon Gallant, Dr. Claude Kennedy and Dr. J. A. McPhee gave evidence at the afternoon session. Sylvain Doucette corroborated the evidence of previous witness as to the movement of prisoner the night before. He denied offering the prisoner any moonshine at his place. Asked if he was sure it was Edward Perry he saw in the coffin he replied he had no doubt about it. Solomon Gallant, testified that Mrs. Mary Bernards called him over to her house and he saw Perry lying on the ground. He appeared to be suffering, he carried him into the house, he was unconscious, I went for Joseph Bernard, I then went to my home.

In cross examination witness said the priest was there on Sunday but the doctor was not called until Monday.

Dr. Kennedy testified to being called on Monday afternoon to see Edward Perry, he was unconscious and paralysed on left side. He was badly bruised. Was suffering from external injuries, he died on Tuesday. On Wednesday he performed an autopsy with Dr. McPhee on the body. It revealed hemorrhage. Found no fracture of the skull. Death was due to hemorrhage of the brain and concussion which could be caused by external violence.

Dr. McPhee corroborated this evidence and stated that when man subject to fits hemorrhage was more likely to occur. It was more common to have fracture with hemorrhage but it could be possible to have hemorrhage caused by injury without fracture, it was

Inquiry Into the Cause of Death of John David Johnson Resumed Yesterday.

The inquest in the case of John David Johnson, whose body was found at Grand River, Bridgetown, more than a month ago, was resumed yesterday at Dundas before Coroner Seymour C. Knight. Mr. D. L. Mathieson represented the crown, and Corporal Cordwell of the R. C. M. P., who is conducting the investigation, was also present.

The first witness was Angus Johnson, feather of the deceased who related the events which occurred on April 28th the last day he saw his son alive. On that day the two sons of the witness, John David and Alex, and the witness' grandson, A. D. MacMasters, were at his house. Witness was butchering a pig, Alex and A. D. were helping. The deceased helped him hang the pig up. Alex and A. D. left home between 2 and 3 p. m. for Bridgetown. Witness told A. D. to take a wagon and drive his sister, Mrs. Paul MacDonald, to Bridgetown. Deceased said he was going to walk. He was to be married on May 3rd, and intended to leave the next day from Bridgetown to Montague to get some stuff for the wedding.

Between 6.30 and 7 o'clock on the evening of April 28th, he left for Bridgetown walking. He had potatoes, fish, bread and butter for supper.

The cap found on the body was produced. He would not swear it was his son's cap. Looked like it. There was a ball of binder twine in the cellar. Could not say whether deceased went to the cellar or not. He was always carrying twine in his pocket in case of harness breaking.

Witness kept wool in bags. They were lying round the barn. He had been shown by the police the bag which was around the head of the deceased. Never remembered seeing such a bag around his place. Never remembered using a bag like that to keep wool in.

The deceased had complained about his thumb being sore. Witness would not let him split wood, but he was able to do other work. Had seen him using a fork.

"What about his mental condition," the witness was asked. He appeared dull for a couple of days, but thought it was on account of his hand being sore. He never mentioned about his marriage except when he said he was going to Montague on the following Saturday.

On that afternoon A. D. MacMaster took the wagon. Couldn't say whether there was a bag in it or not. Before deceased left the house, witness said to John David, "We had better carry the pork in for fear of the dogs getting at it." Deceased replied that the boys would carry it in when they came back.

Between 10 and 10.30 that night witness saw the stable door open and A. D. MacMaster was there. He was putting harness on the mare. Said he was going away for a little while. Witness heard him coming back about an hour and a half afterwards.

Before A. D. left witness told him to put the pork in. He said, "We will do it when we come back."

When witness got up in the morning he found the pork still hanging outside. He went into the stable and found two kegs covered up by a horse blanket. A. D. said he put them there but they belonged to John David and that he went that night to get them. He was going to get someone to boil it to have a little drop for the wedding.

Witness ordered them to be taken out as quickly as possible. A little later he found they had been taken away.

He was fully agreeable to his son's marriage, because he (witness) was tired doing the baking and other house work. Asked about the disposition of Aeneas D. MacMaster was the next witness and was on the stand for a considerable time. He told of meeting John D. Johnson at Bridgetown that night. The deceased had asked him to go and get the beer. Witness had previously got the ingredients, sugar and molasses, etc., about a week before. The deceased had told him that he would find the beer in the woods on James Stewart's place. Witness told of going there meeting his uncle Alex and driving him, with two 5-gallon kegs of beer. Alex and he had each one drink. He did not see John D. after he left him on the bridge.

To take a look at most dentists, you might be inclined to think that they had the dental profession because they could do the best, the finest, the perfect teeth themselves. Your dentist would laugh at such a heavy laugh at such an idea. He knows that his teeth are good and yours will be good—if you start as he did, to care for your gums in time. More than half of the adult teeth lost are due to that dread gum infection, pyorrhea. When it starts, you may take five years, ten years and even longer before it causes the loss of even one tooth. The right time to watch your gums is now, right now.
