The Kidneys

The office man and the outdoor worker suffer alike from derangements of the kidneys.

Backaches and headaches are among the symptoms. In some cases Bright's disease soon develops, others suffer from high blood pressure until hardening of the arteries sets in.

In order to forestall painful and fatal diseases prompt action should be taken at the first sign of trouble.

Mr. A. D. MacKinnon, Kirkwood, Inverness county, N.S., writes:

"I can highly recommend Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills to all suffering from weak kidneys. I suffered from kidney disease for a long time. I may also say that for three years I was nearly always troubled with headaches, and no treatment seemed to do more than afford temporary relief. I was finally told of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, and after using a few boxes was completely relieved. I have also used Dr. Chase's Ointment with the best results, and never fail to recommend these wonderful remedies."

Premier Meighen On Western Situation

(Special to The Guardian)

OTTAWA, Nov. 25.—Arthur Meighen, Prime Minister, today issued the following statement on his tour in Western Canada. "I found the people of Western Canada interested almost exclusively in two subjects, grain marketing and the tariff. On the grain marketing question every kind of manoeuvre was being resorted to, to divert the attention of the farmers from the Government's definite and ordinarily most acceptable plan. Reports from all parts indicated that the farmers were fast making up their minds to vote for a plan that they understood and not for for the men that had no plan at all. On the tariff the propaganda of the last ten years has naturally not been without effect."

Westminster, B.C. Faces Strike of School Teachers

NEW WESTMINSTER, B. C., Nov. 24.—Seventy-five teachers in the high and public schools here, have their resignations ready to present to the School Board of Trustees unless that body puts into effect the award of the Board of Arbitration, of last May, approving the scale of wages sanctioned by the Teachers' Federation. The award means an increase in salaries for the teachers, but the Board has refused to comply. The resignations would take effect the end of the year. The teachers held a meeting recently at which this line of action was approved.

Rochford Square Pupils Give Fine Concert

The pupils of the Rochford Square School gave a delightful entertainment in their hall Thursday evening before a large and appreciative audience. The introduction consisted of well rendered recitations by different pupils on "The Poetry of the past." "The Lyric Poets," "Scot the Wizard of the North," His early life, his love of outdoor life and other interesting features in the life of Scotland's great poet, interspersed with musical numbers "A Border Ballad," "Hunting Song," and "Hail to the Chief.".

The main part of the program was entitled "An hour with the Lady of the Lake." This part of the program wos very cleverly rendered by the pupils showing the results of careful training and fine literary workmanship in the arrangement of the parts. The rendition of this part was a wonderful feat of memorizing rarely excelled by children so young in years. A daintily expressed word of thanks was read by one of the youngest pupils after which His Lordship the Bishop spoke, complimenting the children upon the excellence of their entertainment and expressed the great pleasure he felt at being present. Complimentary remarks were also made by His Worship Mayor Riley, Mr. Rogers, Superintendent of Education, Mr. Henry Smith, Chairman of the School Board and Mr. J. P. Gordon member of the School Board. Mr. Gordon made special mention of the splendid work of the teachers whom he specially complimented on the success of the evening's entertainment. A "Good Night" song and the National Anthem brought the proceedings to a close.

Great Political Interest

nar General down and I say that in all those years it was never proved that one dollar of public money was improperly expended, and no minority report ever came down to the House during those four years. Mr McIsaac concluded amid enthusiastic applause with an appeal for his election on Dec. 6th.

Mr. Mullin.

MR. D. J. MULLIN as usual at the beginning of his addresses, attacked the "party machine" methods of the Conservative and Liberal parties in the nomination of candidates:. "Protection in Canada does not protect agriculture", he continued. "Protection may help the big cities of Canada to grow and if there was any possibility of our cities developing in our lifetimes so that they could consume our products it would be all right," Mr. Mullins did not think this was possible and argued that we must therefore look elsewhere for our market.

The odds were against Mr. Hughes in his argument that the Liberals would get free trade with the States, because the Liberals were in power fifteen years and they promised the same thing, "and we find that they went out of power and accomplished very little except the reciprocity treaty which we got just about the time they were going out. Whether that was much good is doubtful. It was reciprocity—on paper. Even if they did get that treaty through it would not have been much good for this season, that it could be terminated at any moment." Mr. Mullins criticised the expenditure of so much in the past on military training. While agriculture was requiring more subsidization Mr. Hughes was getting a rifle range in Charlottetown and Souris.

MR. HUGHES.—I didn't do anything of the kind.

MR. MULLIN. He had to do it.

MR. HUGHES. I didn't do it.

MR. MULLIN. Anyway it was the Liberals that got the rifle range built.

MR HUGHES. No it was not.

MR. MULLIN Well, the big one at Charlottetown any way.

Defending Mr. Crerar's hostile attitude towards the Eastern provinces in connection with western land claims Mr. Mullin agreed that Mr. Crerar might be opposed to the east personally in this matter but as a leader of the government he would be liable to do right for Canada on a whole. The speaker took up a good measure of his time criticising the press.

Mr. Hughes.

MR J. J. HUGHES referring to some of the last speaker's remarks said it was beyond his comprehension how Mr. Mullin could denounce the Reciprocity pact of 1911 and applaud it when it was a few years later introduced as a resolution of the Canadian Council of Agriculture. He repeated his assertion made at practically every meeting of the campaign that the door of Reciprocity still stands open. The Democrats came into power in 1912 and in the following year reduced the duty on potatoes from 25 cents a bushel to 10 per cent ad valorem and immediately we commenced to ship large quantities of potatoes under the lower duties, but inasmuch as that reduction applied to every other country as well as to Canada the British people (but particularly the German people, who can produce potatoes cheaper than other country in the world) began to ship in large quantities. This was the important difference between general legislation and special reciprocal legislation.. The speaker urged particularly the benefits of reciprocal trade as applied to potato shipments from this province but failed to explain how this was to be procured in the face of the Fordney Tariff Bill.

As for the balance of trade, it does not always follow that because we are importing more than our exports we are doing business at a loss he urged. Even if it were conclusive the fact remains that it would still be of great advantage to get our farm products free across the border. The management of the national railways came in for a measure of Mr. Hughes' criticism.

The members of the board of management, he claimed, are in a position to give contracts to themselves at any price they please and to fix their own salaries and travelling expenses. He figured Mr. Hanna must be drawing about $100,000 a year in salary altogether and that was too much money for any man.

Some heated discussion took place between Mr. Hughes and Mr. Mullin on the per capita debt under Liberal rule. Mr. Hughes maintaining that Mr. Mullin could not figure the population in 1896, because no census had been taken that year. Mr. Mullins said the figures were in the Canada Year Book and Mr. Hughes retorted that the Canada Year Book could not be right. He reviewed the history of Maritime claims upon the Western provinces, to which Mr. Crerar was opposed and referred to the high freight rates and to the necessity for the standardization of the Island railway. If elected he promised to do just as well as he had in the past.

Mr. McIsaac, in a few concluding remarks ably answered the trade and railway criticisms of Mr. Hughes. An organized attempt by some party heelers at the rear of the hall to prevent Mr. McIsaac from answering his opponents failed completely and the government candidate triumphantly proved his case to the satisfaction of his less prejudiced hearers.

The meeting closed with a vote of thanks to the Chairman and the singing of the National Anthem.

Last Effort to Induce Ulster

LONDON, Nov. 25—Mr. Lloyd George, who prabably will be accompanied by Lord Chancellor Birkenhead, is scheduled to meet Sir James Craig tomorrow morning in what may be the last effort to induce him as Premier of Ulster to discuss alternative plans devised to protect Ulster's interests, to the proposed all-Ireland parliament, which the Northern delegates thus far have refused to even consider formally.

Meanwhile, Arthur Griffith, chief of the Sinn Fein delegation for the first time since the Irish conference opened in October, went to Dublin tonight to consult with Eamonn De Valera, the Irish Republican Duffy and Robert C. Barton, his delegation colleagues.

This visit to Dublin is understood to be a result of discussions during the past few days between the Sinn Feiners and members of the British Cabinet, at which Mr. Griffith and his colleagues are said to have made clear that they could not agree to swear allegiance to the British Crown, their idea of association with the State of the British Empire being by treaty, as would be the case with foreign powers.

On Tuesday the Ulster Premier will submit to his Parliament the reasons urged by the Prime Minister why Ulster should consent to treat with the Sinn Fein. It is expected that he will ask Mr. Lloyd George to facilitate full consideration of Ulster's case by publishing the whole correspondence exchanged thus far so that Ulster may see the real state of the negotiations. But the discussions with the Sinn Fein have, by the desire of the Government, proceeded on condition that secrecy be observed, so publication of the correspondence is not expected until an agreement or disagreement is finally reached.

The Irish Liberal Federation, an organization in which former Premier Asquith is interested, at its annual meeting today, passed a resolution supporting dominion home rule for Ireland, suggesting that Parliament should be asked to endorse this policy, and recording its conviction that if the conference fails there will be no return to the policy of force.
