Gleanings From Tryon And Vicinity

Miss Ruth M. McInnis of Tryon has been spending a few days in the Provincial Capital recently where she was the guest of her friend, Miss Edith Rogers. Miss Edith Rogers, Mrs. Wesley Newsome, Miss Bertha Wigginton and Mrs. Donald Bell motored to Charlottetown, June 14th, where they attended the Maritime Conference Branch of the Women's Missionary Society of the United Church of Canada, held in Trinity Church there.

Mrs. (Rev.) George M. Young of Charlottetown to Tryon on Friday, June 17th after attending the Maritime Convocation held recently there. Mrs. Young is well known to the people here as it is only 1 1/2 years since Mr. and Mrs. Young and their estimable family left the pastorate of the then Methodist Church for another field. Mrs. Young reports all her family in good health.

Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Dawson and family of Augustine Cove were visitors to Summerside on Wednesday.

Miss Margaret Howatt of West Tryon recently paid a short visit to Charlottetown.

Miss Winnie Smith of Tryon has been spending a few enjoyable days in Augustine Cove where she was the guest of her friend Miss Elma Inman.

The Messrs Ida and Katy MacDonald of Rose Valley, Miss Mamie Macintosh of Springton and Mrs. MacDonald of Rose Valley were visitors at Tryon on Sunday, where they were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Walter H. Bell. Mrs. MacDonald intends spending the ensuing week with her daughter Mrs. Bell.

Mr. and Mrs. George Hennessey and family of Carleton Place were in Tryon on Thursday and Sunday, where they were the guests of Mrs. Hennessey's parents, Mr. and Mrs. William Thomas. Mr. Thomas' many friends sincerely regret that he is confined to his bed, but hope now on the arrival of Summer he may get about again.

Mr. and Mrs. John MacDonald of Augustine Cove were recent visitors to Tryon and Vicinity.

Utopian Society met as usual on Friday Evening in the vestry of Tryon United Church but was sparsely attended. One of the interesting features of the evening was an inspiring report, given by Miss Beulah Lard, delegate to the Presbyterian field in Summerside some time ago.

The illness of Mr. Will A. Pooley of North Tryon is heard with much regret by his best of friends, as it means a great deal for such a busy man as "Bill" to be laid up when there are so many autos to repair, but here's hoping "Bill" will have a speedy recovery to health and strength.

Physicians of Victoria report a slight increase in hobsters lately.

Mr. and Mrs. Vernon MacLeod of Albany were in Victoria recently, the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Abner Howatt.

One of our residents, Mr. Henry A. MacPhee, had the misfortune of having the fox, which escaped and was captured a couple of weeks ago escaped to freedom again. At time of writing it had not yet been captured and all his neighbours should be on the lookout to assist him in again rescuing it.

Miss Katherine M. Carr of Augustine Cove is now residing in Capland, where she is holding a "curative position at the "Crappaud Houses".

Bill MacLeod, the veteran goalie of the Victoria hockey team has completely recovered from his late illness and is able to be about again.

NEW LIGHTING SYSTEM—The thoughtfulness of the Kensington Strand Theatre management was lucidly displayed on Saturday night when a new feature in illumination was in evidence. The front of the Theatre and the street for a considerable distance on either side were attractively lighted by a system of floats that reached from the Theatre to Mr. Doubois' office. This not only served as an advantage to the patronizing public, but also assisted the autoists to share with the people a portion of the approaches of the Theatre.

OAKLAND TO P. E. I. BY CAR—Verily distance is being annihilated. This is the transportation improvement era. The advancement in locomotion facilities is more apparent than advancement in most other sciences. Five thousand, one hundred and eleven miles, (5,111), was registered on Mr. W. K. Owen's car on the trip from Oakland Calif., to P. E. Island. Mr. Owen, who is accompanied by his wife and daughter, is a "native son" of P. E. I.—a brother of Mr. Lee Owen of Hamilton. He has been absent from this province for over twenty years, and like many "islanders abroad", has prospered in the land of his adoption. K

English Emigrants

Quite a colony of English and Scotish emigrants have located in and near Kensington (about seventeen in all). The English settlers (Goodwin brothers and their families are located in the town of Kensington, and have started a blacksmithing and repairing shop. The Scottish emigrants have located on a farm at Black Horse. Two others, (English) are located on farms with Messrs Marchbank and Taylor respectively. They all like Prince Edward Island, and are as happy and optimistic as can be expected of people who have left their native homes and life-long parents to pursue their fortunes in a strange country among strange people. They are of an intellectual turn of mind, and well educated. They think that hundreds more of people from their home localities, viz. Derby and Glasgow could be prevailed upon to settle on P. E. Island, if proper inducements were held out. They stress the importance of our immigration agents in the British Isles being absolutely frank and honest with intending emigrants—describing conditions exactly as they are,—prevarication and subterfuge on the part of agents are ruinous to both parties. If the Dominion Govt. is solicitous for the material welfare of the Maritimes according to its promised implementation of the articles of the Duncan Commission, it (the Govt.) can assist P. E. I. to harvest its expected large potato crop, by organizing a big excursion of farm laborers from the British Isles to P. E. I. The Canadian National Railway ought to put it through—Get a population in the country. Make business for the railway the same as the great Jim Hill did with the St. Northern Ry. in the Pacific Northwest—also the same as the Can. Nat. Ry. and the C. P. R. have been doing for a great number of years with the Canadian West, i. e. building it up at the expense of the Eastern provinces. Now let them stress excursions to the Maritime provinces from the British Isles. Turn about is fair play. K

WOMEN IN POLITICS

This was one of the topics of political talk in the past four weeks. Many women, it appeared, would rather be out of politics than "in the game." Some women seem to think it unbecoming to take part in political discussion. Others urge that in the home conditions in which they necessarily live during the greater part of their hours of wakefulness they have neither time nor opportunity to make themselves acquainted with the operation of the political machine or to learn why they should support this candidate rather than that candidate—why one Party is not just as good as another Party. They know a good man when they see him; but they don't know the motives of the "ins" or the "outs." They are unable to judge, as between numbers of men and women differing about matters which affect the body politic. Even in respect to such home questions as "prohibition" and "control" they find it difficult to come to a decision; and so follow the lead of their husbands, or fathers, or brothers. Above all, they don't care to accept the responsibility which belongs to partisans in the government of the country. They see that if the party for which they vote is in power they are to some extent responsible for that party's actions. They are, upon the whole, more sincere than men. Consequently they are timid concerning the effects of actions taken by the men and the Party for whom they vote.

As it is in Canada including Prince Edward Island so it is in the United States. Of the 58,000,000 electors who have the right to vote for the President and for members of Congress, 28,500,000 or about forty-nine per cent. are women. Lately there has been some discussion in the United States Press over the question "How much will the typical political bosses be influenced in their treatment of great moral issues by the woman vote?" Mr. Frank R. Kent, said to be a keen observer, writes: "It is the testimony of practical politicians all over the country that the women, as voters, have not changed any political situation or altered the political complexion of any locality." Occasionally a woman with a talent for public speaking makes a good hit, and gets into Congress. But the timidity of the women and their natural doubtfulness, prevents them from giving the politicians either vigorous support or much trouble. And so, in the United States, as in Canada, women voters fail to boss the bosses.

Nevertheless the highest political authorities contend that women should possess and should retain the right to vote. The Prime Minister of Great Britain is following the example of Canada and the United States, about to give the women of the Mother Country, precisely the same political rights as the men. In the course of a recent speech, Mr. Baldwin said: "I for one, not only look with no apprehension at the enfranchisement of both sexes at the same age. I welcome it. I believe that a democracy is incomplete and lopsided until it is a representative of the whole people, and that responsibility rests alike on men and on women."

In view of this opinion of the Premier Politician of the Empire, it is more than likely that women will in the future take greater interest in politics than they have in the past and that their influence will continue to increase. But they must, at the same time, accept responsibility for the election of good men and women—men and women who will not thoughtlessly or hastily make any great mistake.

DANGER LURKS IN DARKNESS

Your Better Judgment

warns you to carry a light when you go prowling around the camp at night. But with a know-it-all contrariness, you take a chance! After falling over the log "that must have moved after dark," and while the bump on your head is painfully swelling, you make a mighty resolve to never again venture a foot outside without a light.

Don't Take the Chance!

There is only one way of being sure and safe—carry an Eveready Flashlight wherever you go after dark.

When strange noises awake you, a pressure of your thumb releases a flood of light that illuminates the country around the camp, quickly locating the disturbing noise and dispelling your fears.

No camp is complete without flashlights for every member of the party. They are dependable, easily carried and clean; can't start fires; won't blow out in wind or rain.

Go now, when you are making up the list of camping supplies, and buy your Eveready Flashlight—and insist on every member of the party equipping himself or herself with one, for safety and convenience.

Electrical, hardware, sporting goods, drug stores, general stores, auto supply stores and garages sell Eveready Flashlights, batteries and lamps.
