ISLAND LADY WINS—Word has been received by Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Paynter, of Clifton, that their daughter Beatrice, who is Mrs. Earl Williamson, won all the honors in hooked-rugs at the Utah State Fair this year. Mrs. Williamson and her little daughter Beatrice are visiting Mrs. Williamson's parents-in-law at Sault Lake City.

WEDDING BELLS—A very pretty wedding of interest took place at North Rustico, when Miss Emma Dolron became the bride of Mr. Howard A. Gallant, of Rusticoville. The marriage was performed by Rev. Monsignor Jean Chiasson, or North Rustico Chapel, in the presence of a large number of friends. The bride looked charming in a dress of French beige Georgette and lace, with hat to match, wearing also a lovely fur fabric coat. The best maid was Miss Annie Dolron, sister of the bride who wore a dress of pale pink georgette. The groom was ably supported by his brother, Mr. Alvin Gallant. After the ceremony breakfast was served at the home of the bride, also dinner, where only the nearest relatives were invited. In the evening a dainty supper was served at the home of the bride, where upwards of a hundred and fifty guests were invited. Numerous and valuable presents were received, including linen, china and silverware. After all had partaken of the dainty supper, a big dance was given at the home of the groom, which was greatly enjoyed by all, after which all left for their homes wishing Mr. and Mrs. Gallant many happy years of wedded life.

In Memoriam

MRS DONALD MAC FADYEN

There passed peacefully into rest at Canoe Cove on Sunday morning the 18th, of August after a few days illness, Ann MacKay, widow of the late Donald MacFadyen, who predeceased her 36 years ago. She moved to Canoe Cove with her husband and family 48 years ago where she made many friends. Although in her 84th year she was hardly even known to be sick until a few days before her death, and on the Sunday before her death she walked to the church at Canoe Cove where she scarcely ever missed a service. She leaves to cherish the memory of an affectionate mother four sons and two daughters viz. Nell Donald, Angus, and James, of Massachusetts, Mrs. James MacNevin, of Canoe Cove, and Mrs. James Boyce of New Haven, also one brother Colin MacKay of Bidford and Mrs. Hannah Rogerson of Coleman, also twenty-four grand children and fifteen great-grand children. Her funeral which was largely attended was held Tuesday the 20th from her late residence to Argyle Shore Cemetery. Services were conducted by the Rev. Mr. O'Meara, assisted by the Rev. M. C. McKinnon of Perth, Ontario. The pall bearers were Messrs Dougal McDougall, Malcome McKenzie, Duncan McCannell, Nell McKenzie, Lauchlin McKinnon, and John D. Mac Kinnon.

NEWSY FARM NOTES

NOTES OF THE MONTH

The first two weeks of October were, on the whole, pleasant, and there must have been a considerable percentage of sunshine. The thermometer read 33 degrees on the night of the 8th and there was a covering of ice on the water-troughs on the following night, but still the dahlias and other tender plants were not hurt, and are blooming as I write this on the 15th of the month. A torrential rain, fell on the 3rd, and continued but with lesser violence into the early hours of the 4th. They had the same experience in Britain but four days earlier. An electric storm took place shortly after noon on the 8th.

I have observed a curious phenomenon in the barometric daily readings here, but do not know if it occurs elsewhere. If one makes a graph of the daily fluctuations or, in other words, plots the daily barometric curve, it seems to recur in about nine or ten days. For instance, on Oct. 3, the barometer fell about half an inch, then rose gradually till the night of the 5th, and "stood" quite steady all next day. On the 13th it fell almost half an inch, and the next day began to rise again, standing steady on the 15th. The most striking instance of this recurrence in my graph that book, happened in 1923. There was a "curve"—a thick black line—shows a small trough on the 5th, followed by a fall of about half an inch on the 5th of March, a gradual ascent till 10 p.m. on the 6th, when the reading was 30.4 inches. The barometer fell all day on the 7th to the lowest reading since 1912, viz: 28.7 inches. This happened after midnight, and was accompanied by one of the worst wind-storms I have experienced. The velocity of the wind was given as 75 miles per hour in Nova Scotia. The gradient was just as rapid upward and by Friday morning, the 9th, the barometer stood at 30.5 inches. Again on the 16th a fall of three quarters of an inch took place, then a rise till the reading stood at 30.75 on the morning of the 18th; at about 3 p.m. the barometer began to fall again, and dropped to 29.3 inches in the night. It rose again till by 4 a.m. on the 21st it read 30.7 inches. Now that page is very interesting. The "curve"—a thick black line—shows a a deep V-shaped line on the 7th and 8th. In the next case the little "trough" spreads over the 16th and 17th, and the deeper V-shaped mark runs from 3 p.m. on the 18th to the morning of the 21st. In the following ten days the depressions straightened out still more, and began to form new combinations. Boletus edulis, an edible fungus mentioned in September Notes, has proved to be exceptionally abundant in October, and Clitocybe oreella and C. prunulus even more so. These latter two "mushrooms" have a pleasant taste of new meal; they have a whitish or greyish cap, and gills of a little lighter color, in age approaching salmon-pink. They delight in grassy glades. There is another fungus found here, the "fairly-ring mushroom," Marasmius oreades, which is found also in Britain and in France. The French peasants, who call it "Champignon," dry it for winter use. When soaked it regains its form and substance. Champignons are also put into sealers and exported to England. By trial I have found that the two Clitocybes just mentioned, may be dried out, and will recover if steeped in water.

Bird life around here is limited to crows of which there are great numbers, blue jays, and a few robins. A few flights of wild geese, scanty in numbers, were also observed.

STORING POTATOES

The best method of storing potatoes, according to Prof. Bligh, of Nappan, N.S., is in slatted bins, not more than three feet deep; one bin may be placed above another. This ensures ventilation, which is important, while sunshine must be avoided, as it greens the tubers and develops a poison, solanine. All ventilators should be kept open till the time of heavy frosts; the highest temperature should be 40 degrees, and it must not be allowed to fall below 33 degrees F. The air must not be dry enough to cause the tubers to shrink, and may be kept humid by sprinkling water on the floor. The potatoes should be put in quite dry, handled little, and not bruised.

On a plot of land which was manured but not fertilized, Mr. Bligh found that it cost the sum of 52 cents to produce one bushel of marketable potatoes. The operations included cultivating and spraying five times each.

APPLYING LIME

This is probably the best season for applying lime or its compound, as it takes a little time to neutralize the acidity of the soil, and to exert its other useful properties. It should never be ploughed down; it is better to spread it on the ploughed land and then incorporate it with the first three or four inches of soil by harrowing it in. And it is better to be sparing in its use than to lay it on too heavily.

YOUNG LAD TO CHRISTEN NEW DIESEL LIGHTER

Seven-year-old Galen L. Stone of Brookline, Mass., will christen with his own name the latest addition to the fleet of The Eastern Steamship Lines, a Diesel motor lighter to be launched Thursday morning, October 17th, at the shipbuilding yards of the American Car and Foundry Company, Wilmington, Delaware. The boy is a grandson of the late chairman of the Board of The Eastern Steamship Lines, and bears the same name.

The new vessel embodies the latest features of lighterage construction, providing for maximum capacity, speed and ease in handling cargo. The "Galen L. Stone" has been built for use in New York Harbor for the transfer of carload freight between steamers of the various Eastern Steamship Lines and connecting rail and water lines, as well as to the warehouses of large shipping concerns and docks of ocean steamship lines.

Captain Eugene R. O'Donnell, President of The Eastern Steamship Lines, will attend the launching with a party of the Company's officials and other guests. Following the launching ceremonies, the American Car and Foundry Co. will give a luncheon for the party at the Dupont-Biltmore Hotel in Wilmington.

Invited guests of the Company who will accompany Captain O'Donnell
