Those who attended this splendid entertainment were privileged to listen to artists who rendered each number in a manner which cannot be surpassed anywhere. Each member of the party proved himself or herself to be in complete control of every faculty which makes a successful entertainer—humour, drama, and musical talent. The readings and comic songs left the audience helpless with laughter while the musical selections both delighted and entertained. A vote of thanks moved by Rev. Dr. Ramsay was extended to the party. It is not known how the accident occurred, but Campbell was seen earlier in the day driving a horse and wagon from the city towards the Bridge, and it is presumed that the wagon had struck the girder, with the result that he was thrown out and injured. The horse and wagon were found later at Southport and stabled. Mr. Campbell recovered consciousness in the hospital. At a late hour last night his condition was reported critical.

NEW PROHIBITION OFFICER—Mr. M. L. Frank MacKenzie the well-known Central Street tailor and gent's outfitter has been appointed an inspector under the Prohibition Act. Mr. MacKenzie complained to the Town Council during the past month that he had been greatly annoyed by bootlegging activities in the vicinity of his store and which he alleged had interfered seriously with his business. Failing to get redress from the authorities he is understood to have made the statement that if he was clothed with the proper authority he could clean out "rum row" in a month. Apparently he has been taken at his word and is now a fully fledged minion of the law and has already got into action. On Saturday afternoon he saw what he supposed was rum going into a place and demanded to be allowed to search the place but was refused admittance and further action will no doubt follow.—Summerside Journal.
