U. S. CIRCUIT COURT OF APPEALS SUPPORTS LOWER COURT'S INVALIDATION OF "RINGLESS HOSE" PATENT.

SIMILAR TO CANADIAN DECISION

In a unanimous decision of its three judges the U. S. Circuit Court of Appeals for the Third Circuit, through Judge Burdick, on July 25th declared invalid the patent granted Charles A. Sunscald of Swine

(Experimental Farms News)
While piglets are usually suddenly exposed to the hot sun during spring and summer often develop a skin condition known as sunscald. Nursing and five to six growing pigs of the white breeds are tender in the skin and more susceptible to sunscald than older pigs of the black or red breeds with dark colored skin.

malities, customs formalities, currency formalities, the usual half-hour wait beneath the prying eyes and fingers of guards and officials. The writer had declared a portable typewriter, a candid camera and a pair of field glasses—all objects of suspicion in Europe. There was no trouble.

Boundary Markers

Frequently you see boundary markers defining the 5,526 miles of border between the United States (including Alaska) and Canada. There are 8,060 such monuments.

Everything that 2,000 people would come here to see the show from Nova Scotia, New Brunswick and other places. That looked a bit steep, but judging by the number of cars which crossed on Saturday and Sunday it looks as though the two thousand may be exceeded. The boat was arranged and five cars had to be used. Today two boats will be running and this will be the big day of course. Just to give you an idea what may be expected from visitors, a gentleman connected with one of the packing plants said that he was down to Sydney a few days ago and out of the small staff there five were coming to the Province. From Wallace, N. S., a large motor boat will run and it is engaged for the four days, leaving in the morning in time to arrive here at noon, and returning between eleven and twelve at night. Excursions are being arranged from other parts of Nova Scotia and New Brunswick, so Charlottetown will be the mecca of the Maritimes for the next few days.

Warm Friends

The work of the Canadian and United States commissioners of the International Boundaries Commission, Noel Ogilvie and Thomas Riggs, has met with high praise. Typical of the feeling across the border is the fact that the two commissioners have been warm friends from the time 35 years ago when they were young surveyors together in the Cascade Mountains.

The writer had occasion to cross back into the United States twice to visit strategic points of the Great Lakes-St. Lawrence project. On neither occasion was his name asked. Only the fact that he was born in Ohio, his wife in Tennessee and his daughter in Rome, Italy. Even this last birthplace caused no comment. The border seemed more symbolic than real.

Ask Your DEALERS

The local merchant is the connecting link between producer and consumer.

His contact with the buying public is direct, intimate and personal. He knows his customers, their likes and dislikes; why they buy one product and refuse another; why one brand sells more rapidly than others.

It may be assumed, therefore, the retail merchant knows the best way to produce immediate sales in his locality, and it is significant that his basic advertising medium is the local daily newspaper.

In the first four months of this year the Canadian daily newspapers carried more than 40,000,000 lines of retail advertising—striking evidence of nationwide confidence in the value of the daily newspapers in Canada, as productive advertising media.

Searchers feared five-year-old Fernand Tessier might not be found alive after he vanished in the north country bush near Sturgeon Falls on Aug. 3. On Aug. 7 George Morrison, carrying on the search in scrubby underbrush nearby, sighted a colored sweater and started after it. It proved to be Fernand, and he proved to be frightened. Morrison had to chase him some distance before he picked the boy up. This picture was taken soon after the guide had brought the lad home to his parents.

First thing Fernand Tessier said to his mother when he saw her after being lost in the bush for five days was: "I'm hungry, mummy. Did you bake a cake?" The little fellow appeared quite unconcerned about the fuss his disappearance had caused when he rejoined his father and mother. More than 100 men had scoured the wild country around the farm on which his parents live when he disappeared on Aug. 3. There were nearly 400 present at the farmhouse when Fernand was brought home. Men rushed to Sturgeon Falls, 18 miles away, to ring the fire bell to spread the good news.

Fernand Tessier's small brother Raymond was as much disturbed as any of the family when "Fousset", the dog, returned home from the bush alone on Aug. 3. "Fernie" and the dog had gone off for a walk. Not until the night of Aug. 7 did the boy appear again, after having kept himself alive with wild berries and swamp water.
