"MARABOUT" AND "CAGMAG" MAYFAIR'S NEW SLANG

LONDON, Jan. 14. — Mayfair has developed two new slang words which are now being worked over-time.

"Marabout" is one and it is used to describe anything old-fashioned or dowdy. It is a very elastic word, however, and at the Kit Kat Club it was heard applied to everything from one's enemies to a drink of which someone did not approve. It is a noun.

The other word is a synonym of "marabout" and is used both as a noun and an adjective. It is "cagmag," a variation of "Cagmaggy."

The radiant bride snuggled closer to the man of her heart as the car, gathering speed, rushed onward to St. Francis, and murmured:

"Oh, George dear, just fancy, we're really married at last. And how shy and timid I was when we first met!"

"Shy?" gasped the bridegroom. "Why don't remember you being shy. Why, when I kissed you, your face up six times in succession!"

His bride blushed, for she remembered the occasion quite well.

"You didn't understand, silly," she explained. "I was too shy to stop on."

Use Men's Technique

"The technique we use is based exactly on that of men except for the fact that it is adapted to the use of tipping seats instead of sliding seats. This type of seat is excellent in aiding the oarsman to maintain a flat back instead of rounded shoulders. Commands are given in the formal way.

"The training in coordination is unsurpassed and it also gives girls who are not strong enough to participate in strenuous exercise a chance to get out for a sport and benefit by training in leadership by taking the position of coxswain."

The Smith slips are equipped with eight four-oared shells and a rowing machine and practice is held every afternoon.

Golden Rod Retires Flag From Army Life

FRANKFORT, Ky., Jan. 14. — After having served in the Mexican, Civil, Spanish and World wars, Kentucky's 80 year old state flag has been forced out of military life by a sprig of golden rod.

The flag first saw service under the Second Regiment, Kentucky National Guard, known in 1848 as the Kentucky Volunteers. The addition of a wreath of golden rod, the state flower, to the Kentucky seal on the field of blue was authorized in the 1926 session of the legislature. The state flag of California has a golden rod on it, however, and because of this the United States war department could not accept Kentucky's banner as the standard of the present 149th Infantry of the United States army.

The flag may be used at any state ceremony but cannot be carried to the summer camps of the national guard. A new flag with trumpet vines in the place of the golden rod is being made to represent Kentucky in the national army.

Old Age Pensions

Drastic Amendments to Proposed Legislation Urged by Tom Moore, President of Dominion Trades and Labor Council

(Canadian Press)

WINNIPEG, Man., Jan. 14. — Drastic amendments to the old age pension legislation brought before the federal parliament last year by the Liberal government were urged by Tom Moore, President of the Dominion Trades and Labor Council, in an interview here.

Mr. Moore said he believed that fifteen years residence in the country should be long enough to qualify for old age pensions and that the time at which pensions would be payable should be 65 instead of 70 as specified in the proposed legislation.

The amount of the pension he said, should be not less than $30 a month. He claimed that the $20 a month specified in the legislation was entirely inadequate.

AS HEAD CREW COACH SHE TEACHES WOMEN

NORTHAMPTON, Mass., Jan. 14. — Miss Kathleen Gorman of the Smith College faculty believes she has the only job of its kind in the United States—that of head crew coach in a women's college.

That is not actually her title; she is officially listed as instructor in the department of physical education. But under her direction rowing is becoming one of the leading athletic activities of the college and now 200 girls of the senior and junior classes are being trained to handle the oars.

Stress Form, Not Speed

Competition with other colleges has not developed yet but contests between crews of the two classes are arranged for fall and spring.

Form rather than speed is sought by Miss Gorman and competition is decided largely on the form shown by the crews. The junior crews are put through their work by their own coxswains and similar plan is followed with the senior crews which are judged, in turn, by the juniors.

"We are not in any way attempting to ape men," Miss Gorman explained. "We use the same technique as men but that is all. Our method doesn't overdevelop the girls' muscles and give them that mannish appearance which many combine a general healthy exercise people find objectionable. It does give all parts of the body with the pleasure of being on the water and consequently out of doors."

Aim To Remove Slur From Names

WASHINGTON, Jan. 14. — In the files of the War department is an old, unsigned document listing some of the proudest names of the South as deserters from the Confederate army and because their relatives and friends believe they have been wrongfully accused, a movement has been initiated to change them.

But the way to vindication may be difficult because it lies through the uncertain channels of legislative action by Congress, which usually turns its ear to more urgent things.

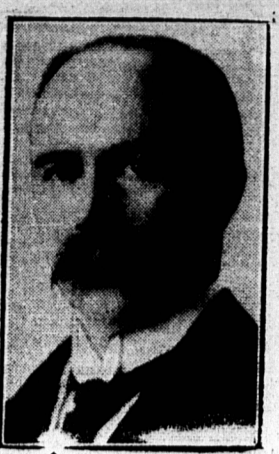

Listed As "Deserters"

When hostilities ceased between the North and South in 1865, the War department received a list of the Confederate soldiers then incarcerated in the United States Military (Libby) Prison at Richmond, Va. It bore no signature identifying mark but it went into the files of the War department—there to seal in dishonor several hundred Southern soldiers because after their names was written: "Deserter."

One day a Southern patriot chanced to run across the document, and discerning that some of the names were those of men believed to have been captured and imprisoned, and not deserters, took the word back home to find ready acknowledgement that the honor of the South had been assailed and retribution was due.

But while the War department was eager to right a wrong, it demanded proof, and proof in this case, it appeared, must be presented to the department under a special dispensation from Congress.

Accordingly Representative Moore in the house and Senator Swanson in the senate, democrats of Virginia, introduced a bill directing the Secretary of War to hear evidence which might tend to clear the Southern soldiers. While they realize that the present session will be swamped with urgent business, they consider it their duty to bring their bill and thus open the way to expunge an "obnoxious and untruthful record" from the files of the government.

Survey Photographs

A varied collection covering many parts of Canada.

It is natural for a person going on a trip to take along a camera to record in a permanent way the sights and scenes of other places. Like other Government officials whose work takes them into unknown or little known parts of Canada, the Dominion Land Surveyors of the Topographical Survey, Department of the Interior, who have been the pioneers of Western Canada, have always brought back photographs of the country through which their surveys took them. It was early recognized that these views were a very valuable addition to the knowledge of the country and its resources. Thus the influence of the increasing heat of the sun's direct rays. All classes of mountain scenery are here depicted and many of these views, probably the majority, are the only ones in existence of the respective localities. It must be added that as these photographs are taken for surveying purposes, the surveyors are more interested in getting certain plotting information than in artistic effects; hence many of the photographs may seem rather uninteresting as pictures.

The aerial photographs are very recent additions to the above collection, but already the number equals all others combined. These photographs are taken by the Royal Canadian Air Force in conjunction with the Topographical Survey. They are used for various purposes but the majority are taken for mapping the lake and forest areas of Canada lying north of present settlement. The recent map of the Lake district issued by the Topographical Survey was compiled from these photographs taken from the air. For country of this description, this method of mapping seems destined to play a very important part.

WATCHES ON CIGARETTE LIGHTERS

English women are now carrying their watches on the backs of their cigarette lighters. Some keep tiny travelling clocks in their hand bags while a few stick to the old reliable wrist watch. The newer ones are done in beautiful enamel and on the face is a small square in which the time is shown in hours, minutes and seconds in luminous figures.

Dora: Do you and Estelle exchange gifts at Christmas?
Flora: Yes—and afterwards.

SCHOOLBOY "HOWLERS"

A recent examination at the Hoc Grammar School, Plymouth, produced the following "howlers":

The chief occupation of the inhabitants of Perth is dying.

An epithet is a horse with the head of a man.

A hostage is a lady who entertains victors.

The Magna Charta forbade any taxation.

Official: "How is your telephone working?"
Subscriber: "All right now. It was out of order for a few days and we couldn't get anybody, but it's back to normal now and we get all the wrong numbers again."

WHAT BISMARCK THOUGHT OF THE KAISER

(Exchange.)

—The Richmond Papers which Mrs. Stirling has selected from the correspondence and manuscripts of George Richmond, R. A., make very good reading. To me and probably to many other readers the most interesting and illuminating pages are those in which Sir William Richmond recounts his impressions of Bismarck on the occasion of his two visits to Friedrichsruh in 1887 and 1890. In 1887 Bismarck was still Chancellor, and in 1890 the Phil had been dropped, and Sir William relates how his host remarked as they were driving through the forest one afternoon: "That young man (William II.) will some day play a trump card which will ruin his own country." Even the sternness of his deep resentment is the following reminiscence: "As we drove, stag bounded over the road ahead of the carriage, abruptly pulling up the horses and stopping the vehicle Bismarck raised his whip to his shoulder as a hunter would his gun and took aim. As suddenly as he did this he dropped it, and very slowly, as was his wont when he was deeply moved, he said: "No—I will never kill an animal again. But had that stag been one man I would have brought him down to the ground!" It was needless to inquire to whom he alluded.
