

Warning--Danger

DEPARTMENT OF PUBLIC WORKS AND HIGHWAYS

Car owners are hereby warned that the ice on many of the bays, harbours and rivers of the Province is unsafe for Motor Vehicles; and as the Spring approaches the danger will be increasing. The recent mild weather and the undercurrents have worn the ice thin in many places especially on the East and West Rivers. Reports of cars breaking through the ice with narrow escapes from drowning have already come to this office; so both car-drivers and passengers are advised to be cautious, if they must use the ice, and thus avoid any fatality.

Ten Marooned

By George Marsh

THE STORY

The following morning, as the east grayed, the men started for the neighboring muskeg in search of the early feeding caribou. With Shot, whose rigid war training to absolute silence and obedience made it possible to take him on a still hunt, which was out of the question with the yelping and uncontrollable huskies Garth waited on the edge of a barren for the light.

"Smell something, Shot?" he asked the dog, who stood beside him in the spruce shrub, dilating his nostrils as he sniffed the keen air. As yet the dusk hung over the white barren in a gray blur. If the bird-coated deer of the north were out there scraping with round-toed hoofs the snow from the moss, the light would soon betray them. Trembling with excitement, for the great alrdeale had served his novitiate the winter previous on the Raft, and knew for what they waited, Shot tested the air. The man whose mittened hand rested on the shaggy back beside him wondered, as the two crouched waiting for the daylight, if to the memory of his dog returned the ghosts of similar watches in Flemish shellholes and listening posts. As his eyes strained to pierce the gray blanket which shrouded the muskeg, Guthrie found himself tracing the parapets of imagined trenches--listening for suspicious sounds. Then the first light filtered over the barren, and he searched for the gray-blue shapes against the snow.

Suddenly the dog at his side stiffened on his toes, his iron dorsal muscles set, and the tremor which swept the shaggy body, with the suppressed whine, signaled the taint in the air.

Steady, Shot!"

The trained war dog crouched mute--athrill with the scent of game in his nostrils. Gradually the exploring eyes of the hunter made out dim shapes, a long rifle shot distant. Slowly, with his dog at his heels, Garth circled the barren up-wind under cover of the scrub, until he had an easy shot at two cows and a bull.

Steady, Shot!" he whispered, and took careful aim. At the flash of the Ross, the bull leaped forward, ran a few feet into the wind and crumpled on the snow. As the bewildered cows circled up-wind, Guthrie fired again. A hurt cow plunged forward, seeking the scrub edging the barren, and reaching it, disappeared.

"Go get 'em, Shot!" Like a wraith the alrdeale crossed the barren in pursuit, as Guthrie followed, upbraiding himself for his poor shooting. A hundred yards inside the scrub he found the caribou pulled down and dispatched by the dog.

Replacing his rifle in its skin case and resting it against a spruce, Garth was hastily dressing out the meat before the hide froze, while Shot explored the game trails of the vicinity when a low laugh sounded behind him. Looking up, he saw, watching him, the Ojibwa, Joe Mokoman, who called himself the father of Ninda.

Guthrie casually rose to his feet, skinning knife in hand, as he measured the sinister face of the man who faced him, fingering the action of his gun. It was clear from the glint in the small eyes that the Ojibwa still nursed the memory of his expulsion from the trade-house. How far would he dare go? Garth asked himself.

"Bo-jo! The caribou are fat this year," he said coolly, moving toward the Indian. But the Ojibwa pointed the muzzle of his rifle at Garth's chest as he stepped forward.

"You move, I shoot!"

The threat of the despised Indian deeply flicked the pride of the Canadian veteran but he was helpless. It was inconceivable that Mokoman meant to wreak personal vengeance of such a nature on a Hudson's Bay factor--shoot him in cold blood. Yet what was he after, then?

With a great show of rage and surprise, Garth burst out with: "What d'you mean by throwing a gun on me? You know what you'll get for this What d'you want?"

The Ojibwa leered. "You tak' de woman. You kick Joe Mokoman. Wat you do wid de woman?"

"She is dead," said Garth, quietly.

You geeve Joe Mokoman moonch debt?" The face of the speaker knotted with hate of the man who was measuring the distance which separated them and--wondering.

"What do you want--how much trade goods?" temporized the white man as he covertly edged a foot forward in the snow.

"You geeve sled-load; flour, tea, blanket, gun?" The face of the Indian lighted with the thought of the spoil which awaited him at the post.

"You want a four-dog sled-load? Garth scratched his knotted forehead, as if debating the value of the goods. It was twenty feet--he couldn't make it. He must get nearer, somehow, he thought.

The Indian nodded. "Four-dog team--flour, blanket, all de--" With a quick movement he brought the gun to his shoulder as the white man slid a moccasin nearer. "Bekal Stop!" he cried, his swart face purple with rage. "You move, I keel you!"

It was no use. There was no chance of getting close enough for a lunge. Garth changed his tactics as the evil eyes of the other narrowly watched him. Turning his back, Guthrie calmly proceeded to finish the dressing of the caribou.

For a space the Ojibwa stood holding the gun on the back of the white man, his face picturing amazement and doubt. Then he said: "You geeve me dis stuff!"

"Sure-replied the man, busy with his knife, as he mentally groped for a way out of his predicament--puzzled as to whether the Indian would shoot if he rushed him.

Urges Calendar Of 13 Months

TORONTO, Feb. 25--Adoption of a new calendar of thirteen months of twenty-eight days each was advocated by Meredith N. Stiles in an address before the Toronto, Chapter of the Canadian Society of Cost Accountants here last night. The speaker outlined at length the advantages of the proposed system as compared with the present. From an economic point of view, he contended, it would be a boon to business men and statisticians. From a personal point of view, it would save the mental and physical energy now expended in consulting the calendar and calculating dates.

The plan is to divide the year into thirteen equal months of exactly four weeks each. This would leave one day over in each year and two days over in each leap year. These days would be left as blanks and treated as extra Sabbaths. The arrangement would therefore give toll-worn humanity one more day of rest.

The present system of unequal months, Mr. Stiles said, was a handicap to modern business which depends so much on statistics. Comparative monthly figures for production, sales, car-loadings and other economic indices were deceiving at present because all months are not the same length.

Purity Orange Cake

(REMAINS MOIST FOR SEVERAL DAYS)

THE ingredients: 3 eggs; juice and rind of 1 orange; 1 cup sugar; 1 cup Purity Flour; 2 teaspoons baking powder; beat the eggs and add sugar; mix baking powder with flour sifting part into eggs and sugar; add juice, rind and rest of flour; bake 1/2 hour in slow oven (325°).

The above recipe makes two small layer cakes or enough for one tube tin.

Purity is a strong, rich flour with great expanding qualities... If your cake recipe calls for ordinary pastry or soft wheat flour use 1 tablespoon less per cup of Purity. If milk is called for use half milk and half water (like-cake recipe calls for ordinary pastry or warm), when using Purity Flour, as milk alone tends to make the cake dry.
