TRACY AND HEPBURN TEAM IN "THE SEA OF GRASS"

DRAMA OF CATTLE LANDS
Magnificently photographed and beautifully enacted by a cast which includes Spencer Tracy, Katharine Hepburn, Robert Walker and Melvyn Douglas, M-G-M's "The Sea of Grass" comes to the Prince Edward screen as one of the year's most distinguished dramatic hits.

Based on Conrad Richter's widely-read novel of the great land rush into New Mexico at the turn of the century, the story centers

KIDNEY ACIDS Rob your Rest..

Many people never seem to get a good night's rest. They turn and toss—blame it on "nerves"—when it may be their kidneys. Healthy kidneys filter poisons and excess acids from the blood. If they fail and impurities stay in the system—disturbed rest often follows. If you don't rest well get and use Dodd's Kidney Pills. Dodd's help the kidneys so that you can rest better—and feel better.

OUT OUR WAY

on Col. Jim Brewton, pioneer cattle baron who has given his life's blood to open up the cattle country and who is determined to keep out the oncoming homesteaders who will destroy his beloved "sea of grass." His implacable enemy is Brice Chamberlain, altruistic lawyer who represents the claims of the home seekers.

Col. Brewton has little trouble in fighting the lawyer, but it is when he brings back a bride from St. Louis, the beautiful and spirited Little Cameron, that he finds he has a real opponent for the sensitive Little is won over to the cause of the homesteaders. Their marriage is a failure and Little, swayed by the love of Chamberlain, leaves Brewton and her two children. It is only when the children are grown; when the son, Brock, is killed by a posse after a gambling murder, and Brewton has finally lost his cause, that Little returns to him.

Spencer Tracy, in his first screen appearance in almost two years, makes a welcome return as Col. Brewton. It is a role eminently suited to the dynamic qualities of this great star and he gives it everything he's got. Katharine Hepburn is tremendously appealing as the wife who finds the "sea of

"SLIPPY MCGEE" SIMPLE AND REAL

Every once in a while an unpretentious film comes along that is so poignant in its human interest and universal in appeal it dwarfs other pictures far more costly and elaborate.

"Slippy McGee," the Republic film which opens today at the Capitol Theatre is just such a picture. Combined in it are all the elements that make for sound entertainment — a thoughtful drama, impressive by its simplicity of presentation.

Don Barry plays the title role and does justice to it. Barry graduated into serious drama from westerns, in which he starred for a number of years. His presentation and polish is new, proof-positiveness and polish is new, proof-positiveness and polish is new, proof-

Tom Brown, usually cast as a juvenile, plays the role of a young priest with a grave maturity that forecasts a brand new career ahead of him as a character actor. Equally satisfactory is lovely Dale Evans who, with Brown, brings about the regeneration of Barry who plays a tough gangster, as much aimed against by society as he is the sinner.

NEW LONDON W. M. S.

Mrs. Marshall Constable, New London, entertained the United W. M. S. at her home Thursday evening, April 1st, at their regular meeting. The responsive reading Luke 24:1-35 was followed by prayer by Mrs. H. Dunning. Silent prayer for our Missionary and the dedicatory prayer by Mrs. Constable closed this period.

The minutes of the March meeting were heard and approved and roll call was answered by twelve members with a verse containing the word Risen. There were two visitors present. On Fishing

(By Uncle Joe)

"Watcha doin', Uncle Joe?" questioned my neighbor's eight-year-old son as he leaned over the garden fence and looked eagerly in my direction.

"I'm a-diggin' worms, Bobbie, and if your mom says the word I'll let you come a-fishin' with me."

"I'll run and ask mom. Now don't go and leave me Uncle Joe, will you? I'll be right back."

"Ah, me, folks, fishing is the sport of kings and the king of sports. Yes, siree, when spring rolls 'round everybody should put aside his work at least for or day, and go fishin'. You'll get a kick out of filling up the old reel and rod and digging the bait that lures the big fellows to the hook."

"Hi! Uncle Joe." "Yes, Bobbie?" "Mom says it's okay as long as I don't get me feet wet and ketch smonia. And, Uncle Joe, can I carry the worms?"

"Sure thing, sonny. And maybe if you're a good boy and don't scare the fish to death by talkin' too much, I'll let you catch a big trout yourself. Wouldn't that be nice?"

"Where does worms come from, Uncle Joe?" "Can't say as I know that one, Bobbie. But you'd better carry that can carefully. You see, you can't catch fish without 'em, and right now worms are mighty hard to come by."

"Are the fishes in the pond big fishes, Uncle Joe?" "Here, sonny, you sit right there on that bridge while I thread this worm on the hook, see!" "He's wigglin' awful hard, Uncle Joe. Does it hurt worms to be threaded on hooks? Does it?"

"Quiet, Bobbie. Fish don't like boys who ask too many questions. Now I'll throw in the line and you keep your eye on the cork. If you goes under the water let me know."

"I'll be right back."

"I'll be right back."

When a cork goes down that's the signal a fish is goin' after the bait."

"I thought you said it was a worm, ey?" "Rats! I missed that fellow. Well, we'll try again."

"It's down, Uncle Joe! Gee, he's runnin' with the line! Honest, he is. Oh boy! I bet it's a big one."

Quickly I applied my fingers to the reel and slowly but surely I brought the struggling creature to land. Bobbie fell into a watchful silence.

"There he is, sonny," I said with a swell of pride "I never seen a better specimen come out of that stream. Yes, sice, That's a real he-men fish or I never seen one. Bobbie put the speckled beauty in the basket while I put on a fresh worm and made another cast."

"How many fishes do you think are in the pond, Uncle Joe?" "I wish, Bobbie, what did I tell you about too much talk?"

"But we caught one Uncle Joe didn't we? And we was talkin' right along. Can fishes really hear?" "Watch out, sonny! Here's a second one. That's what I call reelin' fish."

Bobbie put the second one in the basket. He watched them wiggle. "There was no more bites and as I sat there I fell to musing and wondering about the old days when we came to this very same pond to fish. That would be over forty years ago. Where was those gay young blades, those school-mates of mine? And where was the miller who used to grind the wheat for the farmers? Some of 'em are sleepin' in Flander's Field, and others 'ke the miller, are lying in the country graveyard, two of 'em are fishers of men, and some live in foreign countries."

My thoughts were suddenly interrupted by Bobbie's snoring. He had fallen asleep on the bridge while I went on dreaming and forgetting all about the boy.

When I rose to my feet the sun was setting and, reeling in the line I woke Bobbie and told him to hurry as it was time for supper.

"Did the big one get away, Uncle Joe?"

"I'll be right back."
