

ENTERTAINING A BURGLAR.

Awakened at 2 o'clock on Thursday morning by someone prowling about the house, two daughters of Patrick Healey, of Scranton, Pa., thought the marauder was a brother. For thirty minutes they kept up a running conversation with him while he carelessly gathered up articles of value. Then they discovered that the intruder was a burglar and screamed. The thief coolly departed with this plunder.

Story of Flora McTavish
Who Went to Bosting
and Came Back

Once Upon a Time a Maiden called Flora who was Born when Very Young of Poor but Honest Parents on the Conservatory of the Gulf Decided to Break a Wing for Bosting. She knew Girls there, Katie and Annie were on Lower Washington busily engaged in the Continuous Strong Act entitled, Brown the Wheat. Two or Ham. And, Doors Open All Day. Flora also had a Sister in Roxbury from whom she received Letters every week full of Heated Air and engrossed on the Loveliest Musk Scented Paper.

Flora wasn't Going Away to set Boston Groggy on her Appearance. Children Cried when they Looked at her Face, and her Mother often used to Wonder what Stopped the Clock. And when she Flash-ed her Bicuspids, Lindley Murray got it Good and Hard in the S. P. region. As for Flora's Accent there was No Need of a Clothesline when she was Tew Hum as Several Day's Washing could be Hung Out on it.

Flora hadn't a Long List of Places Visited. She had attended the Tea at Cranberry Hill regularly every Twelfth of July and had been Three Times to the Bridge in her Life; also she Once saw the Train Whistle By at Cardigan. Her Poor but Honest Father had often Promised to take her to Town on Market Day, but Flora hadn't got that Hit Up at the Time our Story opens. Tew Hum there was No Danger of Neurasthenia from Excitement. One Time that Bossy got a Potato in Her Throat, Flora's Paw Declared to Goodness he had Never Seen such a Pesterin Hubub in his Life. The Night that Samantha Smith Fainted in Prayer Meeting Flora said She'd Never Forget as Long as she Lived. Such a Crush of People.

But Flora wanted to see the Real Thing. Nothing would do but she must Go—in fact a Large Bulldog and a Very High Fence wouldn't have been One, Two, Three when Flora's Blood was Up. So after Everybody had Cried all they wanted she took the Boat and began to Go Up Against it right Away. She Drank out of the Finger Bowl the First Day at Dinner and when they Passed Her the Congs to get some Sagar she said, "Taint Hot is It" When she saw the Gilded Dome she almost Threw a Conspition Fit. On Land-ing she asked some Man if he had seen Katie or Annie. After being Lost an hour she Found them Both, and that Afternoon they Took a Car to Roxbury.

Three Years Later Florence came back on a Summer Vacation. (Did you Notice Anything?) Oh me, Oh my, but there was a Different Atmosphere. She called everything Fierce from the Time she had her trunk Examined. The Weather on this Side of the Line, Flora said—beg pardon, Florence said—was Beasty. There was'nt One Thing the Girl didn't knock.

She said the Trains were so Slow they didn't even know how to Hesitate. When she was'nt Entitling the natives Lobsters and Flats her Kicks were coming Sixty times a Minute on the Conveniences. At Table on the Way she always Wiped Off her Knife and Fork with the Napkin before Beginning. She Spread the salt with her Fingers and Ate the Soup from the Side of the Spoon. Once when the Man next asked her to Pass them Pitaties she gave a Little Gasp. Everything was So Rude she Said, so Different from Around the Subway.

The Night Florence Got Back to the Red Banks she had the Willies as Bad as Ever. When she Left on the Boat three years before she had had a Table de Hoat Under the Market with Si Hawkins who Drove Her In. Tonight on Return she asked to be Shown to the Davies. And there's no use in Saying Florrie hadn't the Glad Togs with her. And as for Manners everybody at the Place was Killed before she Stayed an Hour. Each Minute there was an Order from 39 and you had to Send Up your Card.

After she had the Capital Groggy to a Finish, Flora—beg pardon, Florence—packed her Rags for Hum. She asked the Conductor that Afternoon on the Eastern where the First Claws Caw Stayed, but he Went Dizzy when Florrie Inquired if the Seats in the Second Claws Caw were made of Saraw! It was No Use Trying to Stop Her. There Wasn't a Dry Lamp in the Balcony when she Struck her Native Place that Evening.

Next Day an American who Happened to Call at the House when it was Full of Neighbors Shook Hands with Florrie and said, Well if this Isn't the Cute Little Girl that Gave Me My Lunch at Sinker's on Washington Street!
