On Thursday evening the friends of the bride and groom, Mr. Jack Arsenault, gathered at the latter's home and tendered them a shower of beautiful gifts.—S.

The sympathy of a wide circle of friends will go out to Mrs. Vinnicombe and family on the death of her husband, Mr. Harry Carruthers Vinnicombe, which occurred at the P. E. I. Hospital early Saturday morning after a long and patiently borne illness.

The late Mr. Vinnicombe was suddenly stricken with an ailment, which defied expert medical skill, while employed as electrical engineer on the Boston Herald and never regained his health. An invalid for many years, he was faithfully attended by his young wife and family, until he peacefully entered into rest.

He leaves to mourn his widow, Edna Call Vinnicombe, one son Call, one brother, Mr. Arthur T. Vinnicombe, and two sisters, Miss Ruth Vinnicombe at home and Mrs. L. Davies, Avenel, N. J., to all of whom The Guardian extends sincere sympathy.

It is with regret readers will learn of the death of Mr. John Pond, Editor of The Pioneer, which occurred at his residence in Summerside, on Saturday afternoon. Mr. Pond had been ill only for a fortnight, and so his death was a surprise to all who had hopes were entertained of his recovery. A release took place on Friday, and he passed away the day following surrounded by his family with the exception of one daughter in England, and another en route from there to visit her father, and who is expected home tonight.

Mr. Pond will be greatly missed in Summerside and Prince County, where he has been known, admired, and held in high esteem for many years. He occupied the position of Editor of the Pioneer on three separate occasions, the last since 1922. He was an able writer, a delightful humorist, and an ardent follower of Jack Walton. He enjoyed life to the full in his editorial sanctum with his pipe, on the banks of the Dunk with his rod, in his home with his loved ones. He did not visit much in the evenings, considering, as he once declared editorially, that the place of the parents in the evening was the home where they could entertain their children and keep them from wandering in search of other pleasures and pastimes. He is survived by his widow and five children, Dolly, (Mrs. Robert Fee, North Battleford); Miss Amy Winona (Nora) R. N.; Miss Daisy Viola, London, England; Stephen and Dorothy at home; to all of whom the sympathy of the whole community will go out in their bereavement. He is also survived by two brothers and one sister, Thomas Wagnall, London, Eng., and George and Miss Amy in California.

John Herbert Pond was born in Surrey, England, sixty-eight years ago, and was trained as a civil and lighting engineer at a time when gas was the predominant illuminant. As a young man, shortly after graduating he received an appointment as a civil engineer on the Pacific Railway and was engaged on railway work in the West for several years, during which time he travelled extensively in the West of both Canada and the United States. Being one of the most observant of men and with a faculty for reproducing his observations with fine literary taste and facile pen, he turned his American experience to good account on his return to London, contributing regularly for some years to such leading magazines as the Nineteenth Century, Blackwood's, and Cornhill. He established the firm of Pond & Co civil and lighting engineers, and for a number of years conducted a large and profitable business, being appointed lighting engineer contractors to Her Majesty Queen Victoria. Some of London's most public buildings were fitted up by his firm, including the famous Guildhall. Mr. Pond was also an inventor; and patented some very clever and serviceable gas lighting apparatus, including the now famous penny-in-the-slot gas meter, which he originally introduced for the benefit of the Brentford Gas Company, and sold the patent rights to the manufacturers of the meter. Many of London's main streets are still lighted by Mr. Pond's patent arc gas lights, the royalties for which he also disposed of to the manufacturers. In recognition of his many public services to the city of London, Mr. Pond was honored on September 26th, 1902 by having the freedom of the city conferred upon him by Sir Joseph Cockfield Dimdale, Lord Mayor. Shortly after this Mr. Pond's health broke down, and he returned to Canada, acting as special correspondent to several magazines. Visiting Summerside in search of copy, he was induced to accept the acting appointment of Editor of the Pioneer, an association with which newspaper he maintained, with two temporary breaks when he returned to England, for nearly thirty years.

The funeral has been arranged for tomorrow, (Tuesday) afternoon, the remains being taken tonight (after the arrival of Miss Nora Pond, from England) to St. Mary's Church, and will there lie in state till the hour of the funeral.

The Guardian joins with the host of Mr. Pond's friends in extending sympathy to the bereaved.

(Special to The Guardian) SUMMERSIDE, June 5.—A shocking accident occurred at Cape Traverse shortly after noon today when the 14 year old son of Fred McInnis was so seriously injured by a motor truck, that he died a few minutes after he was brought to the Prince County Hospital.

The lad, George Daniel, was having a ride in a truck which was being driven at rather a fast rate by a man named Jack Arsenault, who was hauling fertilizer. The truck belonged to Mr. Ceretti, proprietor of the Abergwilt Hotel, Borden. They were going down a steep hill at Cape Traverse when the driver applied his brakes rather suddenly and the truck overturned with the boy pinned beneath. He was badly crushed about the head and face, his side punctured and legs broken. Rev. Father Monaghan, who was on the spot, rushed the boy to the Prince County Hospital, but he died within a few minutes of his arrival.

Almost Another Fatal Accident—Mr. Arsenault, the driver of the truck, jumped into another car and followed Father Monaghan's car to Summerside. On making a sharp turn at Bedeque, he went head on into the bank, smashing up the car, but was not hurt himself. He was driven back to Borden.

The body of the victim of the accident was conveyed to his home this afternoon. Much sympathy is expressed for the bereaved family who had the misfortune to lose two of their children by death last year.—S.

member of Westminster Central United Church. He is survived by his wife, one daughter, Miss Louise Risdon, and one son, Dr. Fulton Risdon Toronto Toronto Mail and Empire.

RESIDENCE DESTROYED BY FIRE—On Saturday afternoon the dwelling house of Mr. David Macdonald, Peters' Road, with much valuable contents was destroyed by fire. Apparently, the main roof was ignited by sparks from the kitchen fire. The fire made considerable progress before it was noticed, and although a crowd of willing workers assembled as soon as possible, the fire fanned by a strong westerly breeze, made swift headway, quickly enveloping the building in seething flames. With great difficulty, the kitchen was partially saved, but is almost ruined by the assault of fire and demolition. Although many articles were salvaged from the flames, yet the loss in this respect was heavy. Room furnishings, bedding and wearing apparel could not be saved. The loss is a heavy one as the building was in good preservation, and well furnished throughout. Mr. and Mrs. MacDonald have the sympathy of the entire community. No insurance covered the loss, the policy having expired some time previously.—P.

She was attended by Miss Agnes, Blacquiere. The groom was supported by his brother, Mr. Joseph Monteith. After the ceremony a wedding breakfast was served at Mrs. LeClair's, the bride's sister, the bridal couple leaving later for Montreal. The many beautiful and varied presents testify to the young couple's popularity.
