The Car Ferry Tea

WEDNESDAY, JULY 7th, 1915

The Parishioners of Seven Mile Bay are making elaborate preparations for a Mammoth Excursion and Tea Party to be held at Carleton Point where the contract work of constructing the Harbour and Car Ferry Terminals is now in full swing.

Besides being of patriotic interest to the people of the Province, Carleton Point is one of the most beautiful and attractive localities in P. E. I. commanding as it does a most pleasing view of the coast line on either side of Northumberland Strait.

It is not necessary to say that the people of Seven Mile Bay parish are putting forth every effort to entertain the thousands of pleasure-seekers who will take advantage of this excursion. Following are the train arrangements.

ANNUAL CLOSING OF THE CHARLOTTETOWN BUSINESS COLLEGE

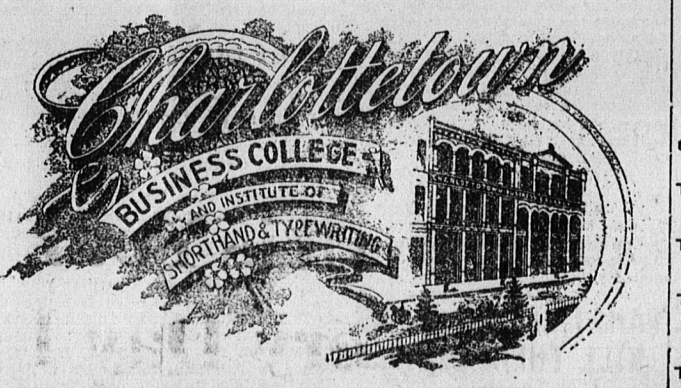

Good attendance. Satisfactory results

At the closing of the Charlottetown Business College term on Friday last, Principal Miller gave a review of the work accomplished during the year, a forecast of the prospective term with the changes in contemplation, and addressed the students and graduates at considerable length. He said that the attendance had "not" been the largest in the history of the college, but it had been a good average, and there had been little or no loss of time through sickness. Every precaution had been taken to foster the health of the students; the rooms were kept at a proper temperature, and ventilated without draughts; and the large space allotted each student gave plenty of fresh air. He complimented the students on their general deportment, and on the splendid progress made, which could only be attained by class application to the work assigned to them. That some

I can say to you this morning that I have never—with but one exception—held out a position as bait to get a student. I have always looked upon it as a vicious practice; one that always stands in the way of an honest and deserving boy or girl, and one that must have a baneful and prejudicial effect. Under our system should a business man apply to me for a bookkeeper, stenographer or clerk, I am free to select from among you the person I think best fitted to suit him, without fear of any of you saying: "Mr. Miller, why didn't you send me for you promised me a position if I would attend your college." No, I make no promises other than to advance you and your interests to the best of my ability; the call to work comes to the most deserving, the most efficient. Business men know and appreciate this. They know I have no dead wood to unload on them, and they feel safe in applying to me, for if I have not just the material they require, I tell them so. You also know it, and I believe it has had a great tendency to keep you in your work. That leads up to merit, and merit finds employment. In granting you our diploma, we place upon your shoulders a great responsibility, for we look to you to uphold the splendid reputation gained for the college by your predecessors. While we have done much for you, there is much yet to do which you alone can accomplish. To all of you I would earnestly say: "Keep up a daily practice in review of your work, so that when the call comes to take a position you may be found ready and waiting."

there be any, for tests had frequently been made and students knew their standing and the standard required. During the term a change took place in the teaching staff: Miss McLean succeeding Miss McEachern as Principal of the Shorthand department. Much as they regretted the resignation of their former teacher—who is no longer Miss McEachern, it took but a short time to prove that in Miss McLean they had a teacher, friend and administrator whose ability they admired and respected. Also, during the term they had to part with some of the male students who felt it their duty to enlist in the defence of Home and Country. While our hearts ached to see them go, yet it is with pride that we refer to them and pray for their safe return. A number have taken positions from time to time, among those who have not as yet received employment, for it is well understood among you that only one rule applies here—the most deserving are always selected and recommended. In these selections we have a free hand. During my long experience

A number of you will return to complete your studies. I cannot enjoin on you too strongly the importance of presenting yourselves at the opening of the term. This should also be the aim of intending students.

I have already spoken too long, and as we have with us my friend, the managing editor of the Patriot, Mr. Nash, who takes a lively interest in educational affairs,—especially in connection with this college where his son and daughter completed their education—I will ask him to address you.

Mr. Nash, who was not a stranger to the students, was heartily received. His address was practical and helpful. Referring to the work of the college, he stated that he had been in the closest touch with it for many years. He could speak as parent, employer and observer, for he knew of the great success of its graduates not only in Canada and the United States globe. He could also speak of the zeal and untiring interest of the Principal Miller devoted to his students to produce splendid results. For many years he has worked unceasingly in the interests of the young men and women of this Province; first in educating them, afterward in assisting them to lucrative positions, and with such care have been prepared that there are few educationalists in Canada today whose signature on a diploma stands higher than that of Principal Miller's. You can hardly estimate the merit alone counts with the law of him. Rich and poor receive the same care and attention at his hands. Mr. Nash in speaking of the far reaching influence of the college paid a very high tribute to what Principal Miller had done for the deserving poor, for into many of whose lives he had instilled hope and placed them in positions to carve out useful and honorable careers. To him this Province owes a great debt of gratitude, and as an educationalist he must be ranked second only to Dr. Anderson,—each in his own sphere. "If you would be successful, you must merit it, for merit alone counts in this world, no matter what your profession may be."

The following undergraduates have averaged over 90 per cent. in Orthography, Theory of Shorthand and Typewriting: Florence Miller, Stanley Bridge; Sadie Warry, City; Edna McNevin, Bonshaw; Lillian Cameron, Clyde River; Emma Colwell, City; Annie Walsh, City.

THE GERMAN CULT

Sir,—The German cult as is plain is destruction of all civilization a return to brute force, no justice, no truth. Its the cult of educated savagery, its an endeavor to put the world back for at least six thousand years. An endeavour to reduce mankind to the prehistoric savagery. It recognizes no law only the law of brutality and robbery. To talk of using civilized methods to meet such a bad gang is like offering beauty to other nations of Europe are to join the Allies. All nations who love freedom and life all must join to hold the equilibrium of the world. Uphold truth, justice and fair play as well as all who believe in the rights of God and man.

LACE HATS FOR SUMMER

Lace hats will probably be especially fashionable all through the summer, for the type of afternoon gown, especially frilly this season, is often composed in part of lace. These hats are very transparent and trimmed with a good deal of simplicity—flowery wreaths, twisted long fringed plumes gracefully laid on the upper brim, feather wreathings, etc. Blue and pink are used for ribbons and flowers to give pompadour colorings. The black hats show touches of straw and its very clever imitations in straw, with tulle or chiffon in large flat layers that extend beyond the brim edge and under which are tucked flowers or fancy berries that show through semi-transparently.
