FOR THE MODERN HOME-MAKER

MODERN women are intelligent and thrifty. They have neither time nor money to waste. The new, easy-opening ACADIA Baking Powder tin saves time. One twist and the top lifts off.

SAME LOW PRICE 25c THE POUND TIN

THE double-acting principle of Barbour's ACADIA Baking Powder also saves money. The first action takes place in the mixing bowl when the liquid is added. The second in the oven when heat is applied. The perfect balance between these two actions assures successful baking results. The up-to-date woman is quick to appreciate both these savings.

MEN'S KNIT SCARFS

by Mayfair

Mayfair Needle-art

Design No. 198

Hand knit scarfs are always fashionable and ever in demand by the masculine sex. Make these up either in three contrasting colors, or they would be equally effective in solid colors as well as all white. You can knit these in wool, wool and silk mixture, or of all silk for formal wear.

The pattern includes working instructions, color suggestions, detail charts for making fringe and sample of yarn used for the original model. Send 20 cents in stamps or coin (coin preferred) to The Charlottetown Guardian Needlework Department.

THE COOK'S CORNER

BANANA ALL BRAN NUT BREAD

1-4 cup shortening
1-2 cup sugar
1 egg (well beaten)
1 cup all bran
1 1-2 cups flour
2 tps. baking powder
1-2 tsp. salt
1-2 tsp. soda
1-2 cup chopped nut meats
1 1-2 cups mashed bananas
2 tps. water
1 tsp. vanilla extract
Cream shortening and sugar well. Add egg and all bran. Sift flour with baking powder, salt and soda. Mix nuts with flour and add alternately with mashed bananas to which the water has been added. Stir in vanilla. Pour into greased loaf tin. Let stand 30 minutes and bake in a moderate oven (375 F.) one hour. Let cool before cutting. Yield: 1 loaf 8 1-2 inches.

ALL BRAN APRICOT BREAD

1 cup chopped dried apricots
1 1-3 cups sour milk or buttermilk
3 tps. shortening
1-3 cup sugar
1 egg
1 1-2 cups all bran
2 cups flour
2 tps. baking powder
1-2 tsp. soda
1-2 tsp. salt
1-4 tsp. nutmeg
1-2 cup chopped nut meats
Soak chopped apricots in milk about 15 minutes. Cream shortening and sugar thoroughly; add egg, beat until creamy. Add all bran, apricots and milk. Let soak until most of moisture is taken up. Sift flour with baking powder, soda salt and nutmeg; combine with nut meats; add to first mixture, stirring only until flour disappears. Bake in greased loaf pan with waxed paper in the bottom, in moderate oven (350 F.) about 1 hour and 10 minutes. Yield: 1 loaf (4 1-2 by 9 1-2 inches).

CHOCOLATE PUDDING

2 squares (2 ounces) unsweetened chocolate
3 cups milk
3 shredded whole wheat biscuits
2 eggs
1-2 cup sugar
3-4 tsp. salt
1 tsp. vanilla extract
Put chocolate and milk in top of double boiler and cook over hot water until milk is scalded. Beat with rotary beater to combine melted chocolate and milk. Put biscuits in greased casserole and pour hot mixture over them; let soak about 15 minutes. Beat eggs slightly with remainder of ingredients and add to soaked biscuits, stirring well. Place uncovered casserole in shallow pan about half full of hot water. Bake in slow oven (325 F.) about 1 hour, or until knife inserted in the center comes out clean. Serve warm or cold, as desired. Yield: 6 servings.

Early or Long Engagements Are Dangerous for Young People Who Still Have to Acquire a College or Professional Education, so it's Best to Shun Them

Dear Miss Dix—I am very much in love with a girl and think she loves me. However, nothing has been said about love as I have four years of schooling ahead of me. My friend says that I should tell her how I feel about her, but I think it would not be fair to ask her to wait that long for me, especially as we shall be separated for three of the four years. I feel that in that time either she or I might change our minds and we would be bound by a promise if we became engaged now. What do you think about this? A STUDENT.

Answer: I think you are taking the wise course and one that will make for the happiness of both you and the girl. Any young man who starts off for a long term in college burdened with a long engagement lays a heavy handicap upon himself and so jeopardizes the girl's future.

If college does anything for a man it changes him. It educates, broadens, refines him. It changes his tastes, his habits, his outlook on life. He is thrown with different people from the ones with whom he has been accustomed to associate. He meets a different type of girl from the ones he went with at home.

So it happens oftener than not that when the boy who has been away four years at college returns to the girl he left behind him that he doesn't want her at all. He has outgrown her. His taste has changed. Sally doesn't look as pretty to him as she did four years ago. Her manners that seemed so fascinating to him later appear provincial. Her artless conversation bores him. But if she has waited for him and been faithful he hasn't the heart to break her clinging arms away from him and refuse to marry her.

And no marriages are more miserable than those entered into from a sense of duty and because a man feels in honor bound to marry a girl whom he has grown tired. Such a husband always feels that his wife has forced him into marrying her and unless he is of a singularly noble character he takes it out upon her in neglect and surlyness. It is far better when a man cannot ask a girl to marry him to leave her free if they must be separated for a long time. Then he is not keeping her from making a marriage if some man she fancies comes along. Nor does he obligate himself to marry her if his taste in woman changes. If they both really love each other their affection will survive and their marriage will be one of volition and not compulsion.

Anyway, it is not good for a student to be preoccupied with an engagement. He should be giving his attention to his books and not to a sentimental affair.

Dear Miss Dix—How can we cultivate a feeling of love, appreciation and respect for our parents who have never taught us these things? They are good to us. We have almost everything we want and do as we please, but we seem to have no feeling for them. Is it all our fault that we are this way? TWO SISTERS.

Answer: No. Your parents are to blame. You are as they have made you. All children have to be taught the amenities of life. They have to be taught obedience and respect for their elders and appreciation and unselfishness and truthfulness and honesty. A child at heart is a little savage and its natural instincts are to grab what it wants for itself, without regard for the rights of others, and to run roughshod over all who will let it.

"As the twig is bent so is the tree inclined," yet many parents through ignorance or indolence ignore this. They never teach their children to obey them, so by the time they are in their teens they defy them. They never teach their children to respect them, so when they are grown they revile and insult them. They never teach their children that they have any duty to them, so when they are grown they feel no obligation to them.

The love of a child for its parents must begin in the cradle, but surely you can cultivate an affection for your father and mother by remembering their kindness to you, and you can show some appreciation of the generosity that has followed you all of your life.

Dear Miss Dix—I am deeply in love with a young girl whose parents are divorced. Although her mother has legal custody of her, she loves her father the most and blames the mother for the separation. She has had a pretty hard road to go and hence is down on matrimony. Although she loves me, she is afraid that if we were married it would end unhappily. What can I say to her that will make her change her mind and realize that because her parents' marriage was a failure ours need not be? A. C. W.

Answer: You can tell her that marriage is like everything else in life—an individual experiment—and because one person does not make a go of it is no sign that another will not do so. The world would stop still if we were all afraid to undertake any adventure because some one else had failed at it.

There are bankers and merchants, manufacturers, doctors, lawyers and preachers who have a gone bankrupt in their respective callings. And there are just as many others who have made fortunes in them.

It is natural that a girl who has been the victim of an unhappy marriage should look upon marriage with apprehension, but for that very reason she is the more likely to make her own marriage success. She has seen the bitter end to which family quarrels can come and that will make her the more careful to keep her own home peaceful. She has seen how a husband and wife can antagonize each other until they kill love and so she will take the more trouble to pacate her husband and to do everything to retain his affections.

Most of all, she has known the misery of a child uprooted from its home, torn between its parents, its little life blighted by their feuds, and so she will be very careful to shield her own children from such a fate.

I should say that no woman would be happier in her own home or more appreciative of a husband's love and care than a girl whose parents are divorced and who comes to a safe anchor at last. She need fear marriage no more than any other girl, for, while it is true that many marriages are failures, the great majority of them are still going concerns.

A Morning Smile

PROFITABLE MEMORY
A certain Oxford professor returned from church one Sunday morning, triumphantly waving an umbrella.
"Well, my dear," he said to his wife, "you will kindly observe that I have not left it behind in the pew today."
"No," smiled the wife; "the trouble is that you didn't take one with you. You'll find yours in the hall."
SATISFIED
Farmer Giles was in town seeing the sights. Coming to a large building he saw "Employment Exchange," and a little farther it said "Women's Exchange." He entered and was met by the glare of a fierce woman behind the counter. "Is this the Women's Exchange?" he inquired.

"It is," scowled the woman. "Oh," he said, "and are you the woman?"
"Yes, I am."
"Thank you," he said and turning to go, added, "I'll stick to my missus."

A Face Covered With Pimples Causes Much Embarrassment

BURDOCK BLOOD BITTERS

There is little doubt but that impure and impoverished blood is the soil on which those red, white, pus filled pimples develop and thrive, and that nothing short of a vigorous, persistent blood purifying treatment will eradicate them from the system.
Burdock Blood Bitters banishes bad blood and with the bad blood banishes the pimples becomes free from pimples.
Try a few bottles and be convinced.
