WHEN you want to buy a farm you want a good one. State in the Classified Columns of the Guardian what you want and you can get it. If you have one to sell it is quickly done through the Real Estate Bringers of the Guardian.

In this issue appears the new advertisement of W. W. Walker's grocery store, corner of Euston and Orlebar Streets. Mr. Walker has had many years' experience in this business and carries a full line of groceries also a fine stock of meats and pays highest prices for eggs and butter. Mr. Walker solicits a trial order, telephone number 318.

THE Montreal Transcript says: William McDougall has sold his handsome driving horse Ida May to Mr. Kenneth Coq of the I. C. R. Campbellton. The price paid was three hundred dollars. The mare was imported from P. E. Island and was a pacer, being one of the handsomest pieces of horseflesh ever brought to this city. A large number of good local horses are being brought by outside parties.

STANLEY BROS. received by last mail a letter from their milliner Miss Sullivan advising them of her intention of leaving home on the 14th inst. She will stop off a couple of days in St. John. Miss Sullivan reports that top hats are worn very extensively trimmed in many different ways. Broad ribbon, wings, flowers and quills are the principal trimmings, also large plumes. The New York styles are different from the Boston styles but Miss Sullivan reports many beautiful creations in both places.

At yesterday morning's session of the Legislature, the bills incorporating the F. R. McIlroy Co., Ltd., and La. Societe L'A—sompion passed their second reading. Hon. Mr. Peters presented bills respecting Queen's County Jail, the sale of the Stock Farm, and to amend the Probation Act, and Hon. Mr. Haszard, a bill respecting insurance. They were read a first time. The debate on Captain Read's resolution was continued by Mr. Matheson and an amendment was moved by Mr. Macdonald seconded by Mr. Kennedy. The House adjourned at noon till 3 p. m. on Monday.

IN Boston, on the 13th inst., many friends and acquaintances turned out to honor the 100th birthday of Mrs. Wm. Bridget, who on that day one hundred years ago, first saw the light of day in Grand River, Prince Edward Island. She lived there during her early life, moving to the United States in 1860. Mrs. Bridget is a naturally well preserved; she sees and hears well and gets about with the ease and vigor of one scores of years younger than herself, and she is fully acquainted with the topics of the day. Mrs. Bridget arises at 9:30, and is in bed by nightfall. Her hobby is to knit and sew for relatives and friends—her present ambition being to finish her one hundredth sweater in time for her one hundredth birthday. "Rest and plenty of it have kept mother with the best of health," said Mrs. E. Shaw, Mrs. Bridget's daughter, to a Boston reporter at her present home 12 Nixon Street. Mrs. Bridget is of Scotch American stock. She had a cousin who lived to be one hundred and twelve years of age.

THE Guardian's correspondent from East Point writes: The telephone posts are being distributed along our roads ensuring the line to East Point in the early spring. The people here are still living in hope of getting the branch railway to Elnora—long, long promised, which is to give them communication with the outside world, develop their many resources, give the tourist access to their many natural attractions, and increase the number and augment the value of the industries.—The Mighty-Loe King of the North appears to have done his best or his worst, and East Point on all sides as far as the eye can see is blockaded by the heaviest kind of ice that can defy the puny efforts of man with the mightiest ice-breakers ever turned out of the shipyards of Britain. That the winter steamer have done and are doing wonders is true, but that there is a limit to their powers, and to the power of any that can be built, is also correct, and that limit never can be extended sufficiently to cope successfully with such mighty masses of northern ice as fill the Gulf and Straits at present.

THE Union Commercial College will probably re-open on Wednesday next. The exact day will be announced the first of the week.

There will be no service in the Presbyterian church in Montague on Sabbath evening next, the pastor conducting the evening service in Georgetown.

THOMAS H. DAWSON, North Tryon, passed through the city yesterday on his way to the Methodist Consolidated School, where he will be for a few weeks.

At the third quarterly meeting of the Methodist church held at Albert N. B. on Tuesday, a unanimous invitation was extended to the pastor, Rev. Thomas Hicks, to remain a fourth year, the invitation being accepted, subject to the consent of Mr. Hicks and his work during his stay. Mr. Hicks was at one time stationed at Hampton in this Province.

EXPECTATION runs high regarding the hockey matches to be played in the Arena rink, here next week between the Victorias of this city and the Crystals of Summerside. The two teams of both clubs will measure sticks, and the games will probably come off on Wednesday night if the Board of Health decide to raise the present quarantine regulations regarding public gatherings, to continue in force for a further period the games will have to be postponed for a few days.
