

Male Quartet Heard In Fine Vocal Concert

"The Revelers," a top-ranking American male quartet with a delightful variety of songs ranging from Elizabethan times to Broadway show hits, gave the final performance in this season's Community Concert Association series at the Prince of Wales College at last night and worded an unqualified success. They responded time and again to encores, and would easily have kept the large audience applauding for another hour.

The quartet comprised Messrs. Harold Brown and Delbert Anderson, tenors, Rand Smith, baritone, and Wilfred Glenn, bass, Mr. Glenn being the leader and veteran member of the group which was originally formed in 1916 and has since made five European tours. They were very ably accompanied by Paul Velucci, pianist-arranger.

The concert opened with four beautifully rendered songs from Shakespeare's plays: "Hey, Robin! Jolly Robin", "Orpheus With His Lyre", "Blow, Blow, Thou Winter Wind", and "Over Hill, Over Dale". The second group comprised gems from Schubert, Schumann and Grieg, followed by "Dream of Love" adapted from Liszt's "Liebestraum", "Bells of Moscow" based on Rachmaninoff's piano Prelude in G Sharp Minor, "Spirit Flower" by Campbell-Tipton, and "Russian Picnic" (Enders).

The remaining groups included medleys from modern show hits with striking harmonic and rhythmic effects, also four of the quartet's most famous renditions: "Nola" (Arndt), "The Blue Room" (Rogers), "O! Man River" (Keen) and "Singing in the Rain" from "Hollywood Review". Encore numbers included such favorites as Schubert's "Serenade", the Negro spiritual "Dry Bones", "Cradle Song"; Kipling's "Bal Bal Black Sheep"; and a hilarious take-off on a famous scene from the opera "Rigoletto."

Each member of the group took solo parts in turn and all contributed magnificently to the night's entertainment. Their artistry was shown particularly in the consummate blending of their voices in the Shakespeare and Schubert numbers.

Mr. Velucci's piano solos included "Mes Joles" (Chopin-Liszt) and "Andante and Sextet" from "Lauda di Lammermoor", arranged for the left hand alone, and played very impressively.

Big Contribution To Cancer Fund By DeBlois Bros.

DeBlois Bros., who have given large amounts to previous cancer campaigns, yesterday gave the magnificent sum of $200 to the 1949 drive. This public-spirited firm, headed by Hon. George D. DeBlois, has always been in the forefront of all cancer drives and this year again their contribution is outstanding.

The contribution of Messrs. DeBlois was secured in the special names canvass and will give impetus to the 1949 cancer campaign in Charlottetown and in the Province generally. The special names canvass continues today and tomorrow. The general campaign opens next week in Charlottetown.

Exhibition Of Local Paintings By Art Society

The annual exhibition of paintings by members of the Art Society of Prince Edward Island, and non-members painters is to open at the Harris Memorial Gallery on Thursday, May 12. Open sessions for visitors will be each weekday afternoon and Tuesday and Saturday evenings, hours will be from 2 to 5 and from 7 to 9 p.m.

The oils section is represented by the following painters and their works: K. Murehison, "The Ice House", "In the Haven", "The Garage"; Mrs. G. D. DeBlais, "An Autumn at New Haven", very capably rendered, "New Haven Farm", and two interesting scenes at Sarasota, Florida. Mrs. John Fraser has a delightful sketch of a girl painting on a hill, "Harvest Time", "West River", and "An Old Pump". James Harris is showing "Blue Rocks, Nova Scotia", well rendered. Miss Annie Watson, "A Park Roadway", also a watercolor, "Atlantic Summer-time"; Mrs. Fred Tuplin, "A Pin-stone Girl", a charming child study; Mrs. B. E. Jones, "Glads", "The Birch", "Sunset at the Mill", "Spring Brook", "Shore Sand"; Lella Morris, "White Birch"; Mrs. Gillespie, "Autumn Darkness and Light"; Mrs. Wilfred McLeod, "Crossing the Capricorn"; Mrs. Mabel McCallough, "The Trial", "A Scene on the Marshes", with a wonderful sky lighting and a charming woodland scene all in her best professional style. A. L. Wright is showing Gloucester Harbour, "An Old Schooner" (Gloucester) and two Bermuda landscapes.

In the watercolor section some very rare and charming work appears. Among these are Miss Jennie Turner's "Daffodils" and "The River", "What We Found in the Barn", and "Morning in Saint John"; and Mrs. V. Saunders' "Keppoch Rocks" and "Holland Cove Cottage".

Among the non-members' works, outstanding is the work of Rev. Horace McEwen, Cape Traverse, "Westmoreland River" and a delightful "Winter Scene"; Marion Newsome, a skilled workman, "Old House"; R. H. Williams, "Hope River", a skillful study; Miss Newsome; Violet Kaye, three lovely studies, "George", "Di Carlo", "Gates' Mill"; a striking watercolor and numerous other interesting contributions.

The work of the Art Society has achieved for itself a firm and lasting place in the community and each year is being given an acknowledged firmer place in the cultural life of the Province.

A rare treat is offered this year to all who take the time to attend this exhibition. (There is no admission but a small contribution will be pleasing to the management.) The quality of the works of art now hung on the gallery walls far surpasses the work shown in previous years. All summer, fall and winter, diligent and faithful workers have striven to expand and to do better work.

MacCaull, Carleton; Deputy Grand Chap. Rev. S.J. Davies, Kensington; Deputy Grand Chap. Rev. W.B. MacPhail, Bradalbane. Representative to Grand Lodge of B.A., C.D. McPhail, Meadow Bank.

Girl Guide News

Big Meeting at the 8th Charlottetown (Basilica) Coy.
The 8th are in the news once again and it is news. There was a good display of work of all kinds by the Guides, even fancy bean bags were there, one of which was presented by the "Daisy" Patrol to Mrs. F. Jenkins, for use on her travels. (Many thanks again Daisy). Mrs. F. G. Hutchesson, District Commissioner, was present also. Rev. Father McMahon and members of the North District Local Association and parents of Guides. The Guide Progress Chart was well displayed and beautifully framed by Mr. Doucette.

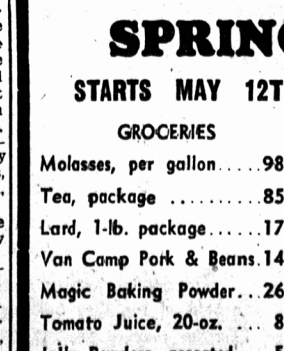

All Patrols had well equipped patrol boxes with full first aid boxes which they knew how to use. A demonstration of first aid was given, conducted by Lieut. Farley, each Patrol Leader picked a question and the Patrol carried out the correct procedure for life saving and artificial respiration with Sylvia Lund and Eliza Coyle, flames, burns and treatment, Mary Beagan and M. Farmer; sprain treatment, Darlene Gurney and June Evanson; fainting, Mabel Saunders and Jane Praught; broken arm, Adele Kays and Betty Kelly. These girls considerably impressed the visitors with their knowledge and Capt. Doucette is to be congratulated for her splendid training. Semaphore messages followed and all Patrols showed a good knowledge of this section of Guide tests. Flags had been made by the girls.

An impressive scene followed with the Guides in horseshoe formation for the presentation of badges and enrollment. Mrs. Hutchesson conducted the ceremony and congratulated each Guide. Receiving their "Second Class" Badges were: Mary Chandler, Pat McNinis, Mabel Saunders, Regina Gillis, Thelma and Sheila MacDonald, Katherine MacDonald and Winifred MacDonald. Four girls received the Hostess Badge, Darlene Gurney, Adele Kays, Mary Farmer and June Bevan. The Child Nurse Badge was presented to Elizabeth Coyle and Jane Praught.

Enrolled were Pansy McGregor, Jenny McDonald, Mary J. Burke, and Sylvia Lund. Patrol Leaders E. Coyle, Jane Praught, Mary Beagan, presented the recruits to Mrs. Hutchesson and carried out their duties capably. Members of the color party were, Regina Gillis, Paula Raymond and Betty Kelly.

Urges Attention To Care of Eggs; Prices Unchanged

The time is fast approaching when all connected with the poultry industry must take exceptional care with their eggs. A quality product is to be marketed, states Mr. F. M. Nash, Supervising Poultry Products Inspector, Dominion Department of Agriculture in his weekly Egg and Poultry Market Report.

Mr. Nash continued: With the advent of warm weather, the problem of preserving quality in the egg once produced increases, and unless precautionary measures are taken to overcome these adverse conditions, the producer suffers through a lower grading of the eggs with resultant lower price, the dealer with losses through deterioration of the product once received and the Province through loss of markets due to the sale of an inferior product.

The keeping of eggs fresh is not a problem to be dealt with by the producer or dealer but by all connected with the industry, the producer, the operator of a grading station, transportation companies, wholesalers, retailers, all working together towards the attainment of the common object which is giving the consumer a fresh egg not only during the cool weather months but for the full twelve months of the year.

In the handling of eggs, everyone must realize the fact that they may do something which would lower the quality of eggs they are handling. It is important that the quality put into the egg by the hen be retained until the egg is consumed. Carelessness on the part of either the farmer, poultryman, first receiver, grading station operator, transportation company, wholesaler, retailer, housewife or chef can result in lower egg quality.

Produce infertile eggs because fertile eggs will start to hatch at temperatures above 70 degrees F. Produce eggs free from highly colored yolks which degrade them to Grade B and undesirable flavours which are the result of excessive consumption of green feed and waste. Produce clean eggs by maintaining clean nests, clean or screened off dropping boards or pits and clean pens, or by confining the flock to the house on wet days. Gather the eggs at least three times per day and avoid accumulation of eggs in the nests with resultant breakage and dirty eggs. Gather eggs with clean, dry hands and in clean utensils. Cool them quickly by storing immediately after gathering in a clean, cool room. Pack eggs with large end up in clean cases, trays. Handle them gently to prevent injury to air cells and to yolk membranes.

Market eggs at least twice each week. Avoid marketing them through agencies lacking facilities for proper holding or rapid movement of eggs to either cool storage or consumers.

Operators of grading stations should have insulated egg grading and holding rooms with some means of cooling or controlling temperatures to preserve quality until marketed. Grading and holding room should be held at temperatures from 50 to 60 degrees F. with a relative humidity of from 65 to 80. Eggs should be graded strictly to Canadian Government Standard grades and eggs packaged in a manner the product will arrive to the market in satisfactory condition. Do not hold but move eggs to market, preferably twice a week. Refrigerator conveyors whether by rail or road should be used for the transport of eggs to market in common with other perishable products.

Eggs should be retailed to consumers by storekeepers from refrigerator cases again as is common in the home, eggs should be stored until use in a cool, fairly humid place or in a refrigerator. If everyone engaged in handling eggs avoids doing those things which lower egg quality, much will be done to place on the markets of
