PRINCE OF WALES'S COLLEGE COMMENCEMENT YESTERDAY

Splendid Review of Year's Work by Principal Robertson, Who Discusses Problems Confronting the College—Interesting Addresses by Lieut. Governor, the Premier, Mayor Miller, and Others

Anderson Gold Medal Won by Amy Linkletter.

The Sixty-sixth Annual Commencement Exercises of Prince of Wales College were held yesterday morning, and were very well attended. His Honor Lieutenant Governor Hearty occupying the chair.

REPORT OF YEAR'S WORK. Dr. Robertson first extended, on behalf of staff and students, a welcome to the visitors at the closing exercises of the session.

From conferences that had been held between the Board of Education and the staff there was every encouragement to believe that in the future the institution was going to have the chance, not simply to make good, but to attain that and go on to better things.

Dr. Robertson stressed the advisability of parents themselves finding suitable city homes for their children, but in the first person, the parents of those who failed, it took on a more tragic aspect.

GOAL STRIKE AND BRITISH INDUSTRIES

Commercial Outlook in Britain is Very Black at Present—Supply of Fuel Curtailed by Dept. of Mines.

(Special to The Guardian) LONDON, May 28.—The effect of the continued coal strike upon the industries of the country is becoming so grave and the general commercial outlook so black, that the greatest pressure is being brought to bear upon Premier Baldwin to ignore his attitude of present the mine owners and the leaders of the striking miners and take drastic action to enforce peace.

It is understood that the Cabinet is now considering various plans submitted by leading industrialists and others for the settlement of the difficulty. One proposition is that mining experts should be called in from other countries to draw up terms which they consider fair for both the mine owners and the miners, and that this report should be submitted by a secret ballot to the miners for their approval, the leaders being directly ignored.

Those advocating this plan believe it would lead to a seven and a half hour working day for the colliers instead of the present seven hour day and would guarantee a minimum wage which would roughly correspond with that existing before the present stoppage of work.

Obtaining Coal by Permit LONDON, May 28.—England today felt a new pinch from the coal strike when the Department of Mines announced that after today householders could secure coal only by official permit. These permits will limit purchase to 100 pounds each for two weeks. Industries and business houses will continue on half rations.

Gloom in Piccadilly LONDON, May 28.—A cloud of gloom has swept over Piccadilly and the other night life centers of London with the announcement of further fuel curtailment, owing to the miners' strike.

All sky signs and decorative lighting are prohibited under the new order of the Department of Mines, which is the most drastic since the war days. Coal supplies for factories are cut in half, householders will be allowed only fifty pounds weekly, and all street lighting will be reduced. The order is effective throughout the entire country.

A new Regulation The Board of Education, he went on, considered that a great deal of attention should be paid to those people who were to become teachers and it had pleased the Board to make the regulation that any student who did not pass the Christmas exams would be debarred from trying further for a teacher's license. This was a very salutary regulation, since it would save the testing time still earlier than before. It should serve to keep the student busier from the first, and this would be a means of saving many from intellectual and moral disaster. It would also save the institution from much criticism that was now levelled at it.

Teacher Training. Referring to the courses in the year work, the Principal said that these had all been maintained at a high standard. The teacher training continued to be an important part of the work, and went on as in former years, with such additional improvements as growing experience warranted. The confidence of the staff in the work being done had recently received an outside certificate of approval and commendation. The Premier had urged that the teachers in charge of teacher training should take a correspondence course in their work with a first class University. The result was that all through the term the teachers had met and held round table discussions on the subject matter embraced in the correspondence course. In this way each of the individual teachers had contributed to the total value received from the course, and the speaker was glad to be able to report that when the (Canadian Press) LOS ANGELES, May 28.—An order for a coffin four times the average size marked the first step today in preparation for the funeral of Theodore Valenzuela, known as Tom Valenzuela, who was killed by a vessel of this weight more than 100 pounds were gained during the last month of his life.

Trading Company Files Claim to Wrangel Island

(Canadian Press) SEATTLE, May 28.—Carl Lomen of Nome, Alaska, announced here yesterday that the Lomen Reindeer and Trading Company of Nome including himself and Ralph Lomen, his brother, had filed claim to Wrangel Island with the State Department in Washington, D. C.

When the robbery was discovered suspicion fell at once upon Rosenberg, who has a long jail record. However, it was several days before the crew was able to find him. So far as can be determined, all the stolen money amounting in value to about $60,000 was recovered.

Rosenberg was taken before the American Consul at Bremen, where it was decided, since the crime was committed aboard a vessel, the accused was a legitimate prisoner of the ship's captain, and he was returned to the ship. He implicated a sailor in his thefts. Both now are enroute as prisoners, and they will be tried in New York for burglary of the United States mails.

It was not always the student who had been at the head of the class that made the greatest mark in life. In an editorial recently printed in a nationally known newspaper, comment had been made on the number of notable school matters who had come from Prince of Wales College, and figuring prominently among these had been the name of Dr. S. N. Robertson. It seemed now that next to being a British subject, the best thing in life was to be a graduate of P. W. C. The speaker said he had recently been informed that out of all the graduates from this college who had gone to McGill, not one had failed to win his degree.

PREMIER STEWART, the next speaker, remarked that Dr. Robertson had said many things in his very splendid address that should be given the widest publicity. He had been very pleased to hear him remark upon the great interest taken in provincial education by the speaker, education, Hon. Dr. MacMillan. The Premier's review had been comprehensive indeed and on this account there was not much need for any more to be said.

The work being done by Prince of Wales College was quite expensive, and was a provincial liability. It offered in its location somewhat better advantages to city students, but every effort was being made to give the student from the country the fairest possible chance. Something had to be done to make education possible for the poorer child. That meant good and better teachers in the country schools, and more especially in the remote districts. Those were the places with the greatest need. It shouldn't be necessary for a farmer to have to move to a more thickly populated settlement in order to give his children a better opportunity to get an education. No one was reaching too high into the air when they tried to support the College in its work. Nova Scotia and New Brunswick were able to support dozens of similar institutions. The best was no training department and a method that was out of date, that it scarcely knew what modern teaching practices were, the Principal felt he was justified in making this slight boast.

Scholarships The Provincial Government had noticed this fact. It had maintained now for some years provincial scholarships as incentive for young people to education. In other countries they had been doing a great deal along this line, and it had become the custom for large trade corporations to establish scholarships so that they might thereby provide a body of young people who would in time probably become connected with these businesses. It served to make possible an attendance of pupils that would otherwise be impossible. Just recently one worthy gentleman, His Honor the Lieutenant Governor, had established a list of large prizes, prizes well worthy of the institution, and, as he himself had insisted, in good currency. This had already been a great stimulus and was going to bring back at once to the institution students who might otherwise have had to teach for a year. The speaker said he didn't know of any more worthy act that a public spirited citizen could do, than to donate this sort of prize. He took this opportunity of thanking His Honor for assisting the College in this way.

After the presentation of medals, diplomas, and certificates, the winners of which appear in another column, His Honor the Lieutenant Governor made a short address, in which he expressed pleasure at being privileged to assist in the closing. He said that the commencement of this institution was always an event of paramount importance. Since its founding in 1860 the College had been doing a magnificent and noble work, giving a good sound, solid, substantial education, which in these days was looked upon as more necessary than ever. His Honor congratulated the graduating class. They had received an education that would be one of their greatest assets in life. To those who had put in the time, but had not had sufficient marks to pass, he would say that they should not consider their time wasted. They also had attained a vast insight into the field of edu-

Commercial Department. The commercial department was another important branch of the college work. It had recently been established according to modern practices, and it worked in close co-operation with the vocational department of the Federal Government. It was under the careful administration of the Minister of Agriculture, and was begun last session. It had not received any great publicity, as it was thought better to begin slowly and let the department grow naturally. This was not a separate department, but an integral part of the college curriculum, and students attending it had to come up to the same standard as the others. It was operating this year with increased attendance and efficiency, and no doubt within a few years it would have quite a body of graduates, perhaps as many commercial graduates as there were now academic.

The students of the present year had in general been a good working body, and it did not need to be said that this island offered good raw material. It certainly had the brains, the physique, and the atmosphere, in fact everything that ought to go to making good working machines from which could be set a large amount of work. Each class had been a fine working body, and probably contained just as capable individual students as any other year, although there had been considerable distractions operating against them.

University Standing. The certificates granted by Prince of Wales College, continued the speaker, were received with acceptance by all the Canadian universities, and without question. A glance over the University reports of this year showed that the students who had gone out with the certificates had maintained the standards of their Alma Mater, and had set a record which was those now leaving for those larger

MAIL ROBBERY ABOARD U. S. LINER

Has Been Cleared up by the Discovery of the Thief, Isadore Rosenberg—Money Recovered.

(Special to The Guardian) BERLIN, May 28.—The mysterious mail robbery aboard the United States liner George Washington in the recent trip from New York to Bremen has been cleared up by the discovery of Isadore Rosenberg, 34 year old Lithuanian, who with his pockets bulging with currency was hiding in the ship's bunkers.

When the robbery was discovered suspicion fell at once upon Rosenberg, who has a long jail record. However, it was several days before the crew was able to find him. So far as can be determined, all the stolen money amounting in value to about $60,000 was recovered.
