They cleaned my system and made me feel healthy and vigorous, and better in every way."

A Few Hints From Gauvin Gentzel & Co's Studio.

For the success or failure of a photographer in securing a good picture much depends on the sort of clothes worn by a person who is posing for a photograph.

For instance, a waist of silk with a glistening or polished surface cannot be made to take well in a photograph, and will have a peculiar effect to it that nine out of ten women will not like; yet, when the fact is pointed out to them, they may refuse to believe it. Another thing that does not lend itself well to photographic purposes when made up into garments is a sort of a positive pattern, such as large plaids, wide stripes and so forth. Dresses of these goods may look well on the wearer; and perhaps in a few cases not detract from the effect in a photographic process. Sharp contrasts in pronounced colors ought also to be strictly avoided, and jet or other glistening or glittering jewelry should not be worn, for the light is reflected from them sometimes in such a way as to spoil completely the picture.

Stiff materials in dresses are also apt to act as a contributing cause to an unsatisfactory photograph. Goods that will fall into soft and graceful folds is the best for a dress to be photographed in, for the artistic possibilities in its arrangement are well-nigh limitless. Sharp, harsh lines at the neck and wrist are bad as well. Did you ever notice that when a woman wears some chiffon or something of that sort about her neck the photograph is always more pleasing than when she wears a stiff collar or stock.

All of these things I have mentioned help to give a photograph that quality which causes a woman to say it isn't entirely satisfactory, even though the features may be excellent. Skilled photographers know these things and try to have their customers avoid them but oftentimes persuasion is useless and then comes the "click" when "proofs are shown that there is something a-out it I don't like."

SCALD HEAD is a disgusting and obstinate disease, unfortunately frequent in children. The proper treatment includes perfect cleanliness and a generous application of Weaver's Cerate. Mothers will be glad to learn this.

WISDOM.

"The water placed in goblet, bowl or cup. Changes its form to its receptacle; And so our plastic souls take various shapes. And characters of good or ill, to fit The good or evil in the friends we choose. Therefore be ever careful in your choice of friends, And let your special love be given to Whose strength of character may prove The whip That drives you ever to fair Wisdom's goal."—By Japan's Mikado.
