More rain needed In the west

WINNIPEG, Man., July 20—More rain would be welcome throughout Western Canada. Weather during the past week has been generally warm and dry with only occasional showers at scattered points, the wheat crop is over 75 percent headed out, flax is in bloom, and coarse grains are doing fairly well. Only slight damage is reported from insect pests, but hailstorms at a few points have caused considerable damage. Less than average total yield of all crops can be anticipated according to the weekly crop report of the Department of Agriculture of the Canadian National Railways.

Over-anxious Trio Lands In U. S. Jail

BANGOR, Me., July 20—(AP)—Three youthful British flyers whose desire to get away from a Canadian training station and back to England to "do some fighting" led them into difficulties with United States immigration authorities here. They were held under $500 bond each today by U. S. Commissioner Ballard F. Keith after pleading guilty to a charge of illegal entry into the United States. They were recommended to the Penobscot county jail in lieu of bail to await action of the grand jury at the November term of U. S. district court.

Fierce Battles

The air, Stalin took personal charge of the office of defence commissar, Marshal Semion Timoshenko, who directed modernization of the Soviet army, declared in a speech since March 8, 1940, was made Stalin's deputy, in addition to his duties as commander of the central front of defence.

PLANS FOR NAZI

But favorable conditions do not exist because of two factors: one is that because of men and material inflicted by the Russians, and two, damage to communications and bases in western Germany and along the German-occupied and "invasion coast" inflicted by the R.A.F.

As a result Hitler probably will rely on a renewed heavy aerial offensive beginning at the end of August, this source said. His reports indicated the Germans now have about 500,000 troops in France; 250,000 more spread from Norway through Denmark and the low countries and approximately 80,000 in Africa.

Mississippians

train which met them at Borden. The "Know Mississippi Better" train was not taken over from the mainland. Hundreds of Charlottetown citizens gathered at the railway station long before the train arrived, to catch a glimpse of the United States visitors. The train was over an hour late reaching here because of a delay on the mainland.

At the Charlottetown Hotel, at the Charlottetown Hotel, the visitors were received by Lieutenant Governor LePage and Mrs. LePage, Premier Campbell and Mrs. Campbell, at the entrance to the dining room. The Lieutenant Governor was accompanied by aides, Major O. W. Campbell and Lieut. K. Birtwhistle. Many local citizens were introduced to Governor Murphree.

Following the luncheon, the party motored to the Provincial Building and were taken through the Confederation Chamber, the birthplace of the Dominion of Canada. At the suggestion of Premier Campbell His Honor Lt. Governor Murphree signed the King's Register using the same pen that King George the Vth and Queen Elizabeth signed with when here in 1939.

After leaving the historic chamber, the Mississippians were driven around the city and to Government House. From there they went to the Experimental Farm and at 10:15 p. m. Daylight Saving Time, boarded their train. They left here for Halifax, N.S.

Lieutenant Governor LePage, at the conclusion of the luncheon, was called on by chairman, Hon. H. H. Cox, to make a few remarks. He extended a cordial welcome to the visitors and regretted that their visit was so short. His Honour also reminded them that they were visiting "one of the finest spots in North America." He referred to many attractions of this province, mentioning the pleasant climate, the scenery, the beaches. He also spoke of the good relations which existed between this country and the United States and the fact that the border between the countries has been unguarded for a century and a quarter. He invited the visitors to see Government House and Grounds.

Premier Campbell

Premier Campbell, in his opening remarks, said "this is one of the largest single invasions since Prince Edward Island has ever suffered from the United States." He contrasted this friendly "invasion" with those which are taking place on the European continent and added that the 3,000-mile frontier separating Canada and United States is undefended. "We live alongside each other in peace, cooperation and good fellowship," he declared. Unfortunately, due to war restrictions, it is difficult for the people of this province to repay the visit but, he hoped, when they returned, he extended a sincere welcome to the visitors and invited them to visit the Confederation Chamber.

DUFF COOPER

Cooper is "proceeding to the Far East with the task of examining on behalf of the war cabinet the present arrangements for consultation and co-ordination between various administrative, military, administrative and political, in those regions and of reporting to them how these arrangements can be more effective."

Lt. Gov. Dennis Murphree

Lieutenant Governor Murphree, in his response, said that the province was proud to have the birth of the Dominion of our task place. "A further welding of two great nations in a common cause." Continuing, he said, we regard you visitors as though each and every one were an ambassador of goodwill. Presenting Governor Murphree with the key to the city, he stated, "This key is unique. It was made by one of our civic employees from a piece of wood taken from the heart of a native Prince Edward Island tree and is emblematic of the fact that we are taking you good people very sincerely into our own hearts."

End of Wars

Continuing, he expressed the hope

"V" FOR VICTORY

France, while the same symbol was said to have been left on the door of the Nazi headquarters near Rouen.

French peasants were said to have originated a method of chalking the letter on their hands so that it is transferred to German soldiers' uniforms from a clap on the back.

But British commentators said ironically that more likely it stood for German vexation or the German word "verloren", which means "lost."

In Britain, where the psychological war was formally launched early today with a BBC broadcast calling for V-day observance and "mobilization" in which Prime Minister Churchill himself gave support to the drive, enthusiasm ran high.

The Prime Minister's message, read by "Col. Britton," BBC commander of the campaign, said: "The V sign is the symbol of the unconquerable will of the occupied territories and a portent of the fate awaiting the Nazi tyranny. So long as the peoples of Europe continue to refuse all collaboration with the invader, it is sure that his cause will perish and that Europe will be liberated."

After reading the message "Col. Britton" urged his listeners to "wait for the word," and he promised that "when the moment comes action would be such that the Germans would be powerless to halt it."

This was believed to be an indication that Britain would call on the occupied countries to rise in arms against the Nazis when the British army again gets a foothold on the continent.

In Britain, daylight found the symbol exuberantly displayed on sidewalks, walls, automobile windshields—everywhere.

Women wore "V" hats and brooches, newspapers used the motif in their front page makeup, cartoonists had a field day, hotel waiters laid the silver in V shapes, and dance bands played new V songs.

Moreton Fraser, harmonica player, has written a V song which is to be introduced to the radio and theaters.

Another V song accentuating the line "never despair; we'll get them yet" has been written for broadcast tonight with Beethoven's fifth symphony as background for the lyrics.

The Morse signal for V—three dots and a dash—is the theme of most of these pieces, and the people were told that "every sound in life" could be turned into the V rhythm.

It seemed likely Britain would be turned into a nation of V clackers—with audiences applauding in V cadence, typists rattling it off, postmen knocking, visitors ringing it.

Interpreting The War

tion with Russia has rendered Hitler's Axis partner, Mussolini again vulnerable. The air attack on communication lines of the Axis army in Libya is expanding to include Axis bases in Greece, on Crete and in Italy itself.

With Syria firmly in British- Free French hands and with Ethiopia and Italian East Africa swept clear of important Fascist resistance, there seems no good reason why Britain might not definitely take the offensive. Land operations to sweep Libya of Axis forces are a possibility.

Another great crisis in the battle in eastern Europe is about to develop. After a few days' lull, during which the Germans brought up military supplies and mopped up large Russian forces that were interfering with their lines of communication, the German armies are striking again against more or less disorganized Russian forces. The Germans are moving northeastward on Leningrad, eastward on Smolensk and Moscow, southeastward and northward on Kiev. Other German forces in the far north are attacking across central and northern Finland to isolate Murmansk and Archangel and striking southward from southern Finland between Viborg and Karkisalmi towards Leningrad.
