GOV. GENERAL

Mediterranean. On May 3 accepted in Italy the surrender of one million Nazi troops. The first came Britain's youngest Field Marshal at 52 (in 1945). Appointed Governor-General of Canada in August, 1945. In October 1945 retired from active military command. In King's New Year's Honor list, 1946 created a Viscount. In February 1946 appointed a Knight of Grace of the Order of St. John of Jerusalem. Lady Alexander was made a Dame of Grace of the same Order.

Lord Alexander's hobby is painting, especially water colors. He exhibited two landscapes for the London opening of the Royal Institute of Oil Painters.

Their Excellencies have three children, a daughter of twelve years, and sons of ten and six years of age, who accompanied their parents to Canada but are not with them on their present tour.

—LAST TO LEAVE DUNKIRK—During the Dunkirk operations in the dark days of 1940 it fell to General Alexander to organize the final defense and then the evacuation of the British Expeditionary Force. Lord Gort had been ordered to return to England during the evacuation and Alexander was left in supreme command. About 350,000 British and French troops were moved safely to England.

He was the last man to leave the bomb-torn beaches. The story was told how this cool

Briton passed away the time building castles out of sand during the heavy line, waiting until all of his men were embarked.

On the night of June, 1940, there were about 2,000 of the B. E. F. left on the Dunkirk beaches and Alexander felt there must be a strategic, too. Leaving the staff in the shell-shattered headquarters, he got into a row-boat with a sailor and rowed slowly through the harbours alongside the beaches.

Periodically Alexander shouted into the darkness: "Any British soldiers there?" When a hoarse "yes" answered, he directed them to the embarkation point. Often the only reply was the whine of German bullets. It was not until he was satisfied that no British troops were left anywhere on shore that he left for England himself.

—BURMA OPERATIONS—In 1942, he commanded the British troops in Burma during their long retreat. Outnumbered by the Japanese 3 to 1, he nevertheless got four-fifths of his men to India. By fighting battles he knew could only end in defeat, Alexander played for time with a sustained rearguard action and prevented an immediate Japanese attack on India.

While the retreat caused some others to slip into obscurity, General Alexander emerged from each setback with his reputation for astuteness still enhanced. Eventually the tables turned.

—HIS STRATEGY SCORES—Three months after Burma was lost, Alexander appeared in the western desert to save Egypt. Under him, General Sir Bernard Montgomery wielded an army that drove Field Marshal Rommel not only out of Egypt, but from Libya and North Africa. Behind Montgomery's brilliant victories was Alexander's grand strategy.

Alexander, appointed deputy commander-in-chief under Eisenhower, was in command of all Allied ground forces in the North African theatre and probably had a greater feeling of triumph not only out of Egypt, but from Libya and North Africa. Behind Montgomery's brilliant victories was Alexander's grand strategy.

Later he commanded Allied ground forces in the Sicilian campaign, receiving the Legion of Merit medal, and became commander-in-chief of the Allied armies in Italy.

—CAPTURE OF ROME—The Italian campaign was climaxed by the taking of Rome in June of 1944. The City of Seven Hills was the first Axis capital to fall to Allied troops and President Roosevelt hailed its capture with the jubilant phrase, "One up and two to go."

The break into Rome came twenty-four days after the Allies unleashed a powerful combined offensive of the Fifth and Eighth Armies. Moscow hailed the victory enthusiastically. A Russian general, writing in Pravda, described Alexander's plan as "excellent," its execution "perfect" and its result "of the most important political and strategic significance."

—COOL UNDER STRESS—Many stories of Lord Alexander's courage and coolness have been told. During the black days of the Burma retreat, he spent more time at the front than at headquarters, spick and span in dress, jaunty in spirit, his gray-flecked hair and thin mustache always carefully groomed. Strained by Japanese planes, frequently under fire from Japanese artillery, he continually exhaled his battered and dwindled force from enemy encirclements that threatened complete disaster.

When things were at their lowest ebb at Dunkirk, Alexander donned his smartest breeches and shiniest boots and sat at breakfast in a shell-battered house at a table covered with spotless cloth and embellished with a pot of Dundee marmalade.

When told by another staff officer that the situation was "catastrophic" Alexander quietly replied: "Sorry, but I don't understand such long words." Then he settled back to make a sand castle while watching his men being taken off the beaches. Just before the evacuation he and two staff officers and a chauffeur sergeant were trapped by a road block 10 miles from the English Channel. Alexander burned his car, obtained bicycles for the group and pedaled the rest of the distance under fire to take charge of the beaches.

—FACES FOUR CHARGES—DELHI, Ont., Sept. 20 (CP)—Ernest Joseph Johnstone, 39, of Sydney N.S., was today charged with dangerous driving and three other offences in connection with an automobile accident Sunday in which Edward Halpin, 33, of Tilsonburg, Ont., was buried to death. Johnstone will appear in court tomorrow.

The other charges were: consuming a drink while driving; driving a car when it went into a ditch, rolled over and caught fire several minutes later; Halpin was trapped in the car and Johnstone barely escaped.
