

MARSHALL INNER-SPRING MATTRESS

The Marshall will outlast two more ordinary mattresses at only part of their cost. Yes, you CAN afford Marshall COMFORT.

Costs Less Per Night

Guaranteed for Five Years. Be sure of the Genuine. Look for the Trade Mark.

PROTECTORATE RULE IN NIGERIAN REGION

EDUCATION PROGRESSING WELL.

Historical.

The British Protectorate Government has chosen the right spot with which success in the Nigerian Region shall be attained, viz: Education. And the proof of this, then lies in the fact that Education has already made good progress. In the Northern Provinces the demand for education is growing rapidly. Not all the requests for elementary schools made by various Administrations can be met, but whenever it has been possible to provide adequate teachers, new schools have been opened. The policy of refusing to open schools unless sufficient supervision by European Officers of the Department can be given is continued. Twenty-four new schools, including two Craft schools have been started. European staff has been slightly under strength throughout the year, and on Dec. 31st there were two vacancies for superintendents of Education and two for superintendents of Arts and Crafts. During the year four new superintendents of Education have been appointed and seven new superintendents of Arts and Crafts. One superintendent was permanently invalided. Another temporary invalid is attached to the office of the Secretary to the Advisory Committee on Native Education in Tropical Africa. The opening of seven mission schools has been approved. Twelve men trained at the Katsina College entered on their duties in six provinces. One of these by arrangement with the Sokoto Native Administration has been appointed as a teacher on the Training College Staff. A special class was opened at Katsina in July for the preliminary training of candidates for subordinate Medical and Sanitary staff in the Northern Provinces. The class is attached to the Training College. A conference of the more senior officers of the Department was held at Katsina in March. The Rev. A. C. Fraser, of Achintia, visited the Northern and Southern Provinces in April and May. A new syllabus of work for Craft Schools has been submitted to Government for approval. The amalgamation of the two Departments of Education in the Northern and Southern Provinces has been under consideration during the year. On Sept. 1st, the regulations under the Education C. & S. P. Ordinance, No. 15, of 1926, came into effect. The registration of those engaged in teaching began from that date, but had not been completed by the close of the year. The result of the Ordinance and regulations is ready noticeable. So far it has only been found necessary for the Director and the Board to advise the compulsory closing of one school, but in several cases preliminary warnings have been sent with the result that the schools concerned

Central Guardian

TEN DOZEN men's caps, regular $2.00 values. Price $1.50. Moore & McLeod, Ltd. 7918-9-21-21

MEN'S GOOD QUALITY fur felt hats, curl and snap brim. Price $4.00. Moore & McLeod, Ltd. 7918-9-21-21

MEN'S HEAVY all wool sweaters color brown. Regular $5.50 and $6.00. Price $4.50. Moore & McLeod, Ltd. 7918-9-21-21

MISS BARBARA MacNEILL will resume her classes in singing and recitation Sept. 25th. For registration call phone 815-J. 7874-1mo

CONCERT at McDonald Consolidated School at Mount Herbert on Thursday, Sept. 27 at 8 p.m. Admission: Adults 35c and children 20c. Programme arranged by Miss Kathleen Hornby. 7924-9-21-21

MEN'S ALL WOOL pullover "V" neck sweaters in brown and fawn stripes. Sizes 40, 42 and 44. Regular $3.00. Price $2.50. Moore & McLeod, Ltd. 7918-9-21-21

SUNDAY SERVICES.—There will be service next Sunday in The United Church in Belle River, at 11 a.m. and in Eldon at 3 p.m.

TWENTY FIVE DOZEN men's all wool auto knit socks. Grey, fawn and black. Extra special 50c pair. Moore & McLeod, Ltd. 7918-9-21-21

FIVE DOZEN boys' fancy shirts, regular $1.00 and $1.25. Price 69c. Moore & McLeod, Ltd. 7918-9-21-21

NEW CITY AUCTIONEER.—Mr. William E. Wilson, formerly in partnership with Mr. A. Wilson auctioneer, has commenced business on his own behalf, and may be consulted by telephone No. 322-R. 7918-9-22-11

TRUCK BARGAIN AT BRACERS.—Motor truck new last year, complete with cab and wide lower body, for hauling potatoes or boxes price $450.00.—SPECIAL FOR CASH $395.00, with license and spare tire. 7906-9-22-21

BAPTIST SERVICES.—Rev. Arthur D. Matheson of India, formerly of Dundas, P. E. I., will speak in Long Creek Baptist Church, Monday evening, Sept. 24. Kingston Baptist Church, Tuesday evening, Sept. 25. Fairview Baptist Church, Wednesday evening, Sept. 26. W. R. MacWalker, Minister.

ORGAN RECITAL.—Prof. Thompson will be assisted at his organ recital in Zion Church on Tuesday evening, Sept. 25th, by Miss Barbara MacNeill, elocutionist and singer; Mr. Chas. Earle, bass soloist; Horace McEwen, pianist; and Miss Lillian Earle, accompanist. 7958-9-22-11

WINS PRIZE.—Mrs. Ross Macdonald of this city, was the fortunate winner of the handsome prize offered by the Mercury Mills of Hamilton, Ont., to the lady making any hole over 140 yards in a 2. The prize consists of selections from the silk products of this famous mill, and is presented through Messrs. Moore & McLeod, Limited.

DURING SEPTEMBER we pay freight charges both ways on all orders from P. E. I. We can make your discarded Rugs and Carpets into nice new velvety rugs that cost only half their value and Shampoo Clean your soiled floor coverings, so they will look like new. Send today for Catalogue with price list. Maritime Rug Works, Limited, Saint John, N. B. 7769-9-14-61

TRINITY UNITED CHURCH.—Early prayer meeting at 10 a.m. Rev. Dr. Ramsay will preach at morning Service subject, "The Pre-eminence of Christ." Sabbath School and Bible classes, at 2.30 p.m. The students attending College in the city are cordially invited to join the Students Class. Rev. Hammond Johnson, will preach at evening service. Anthems by the Choir, morning and evening. C. P. C. Y. will broadcast the morning Service.

PERSONALS
Miss Morson, of Cardigan, is visiting in the City, the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Agnew, Villa St.

Miss Emma Dougan has returned to Buffalo, N. Y., after a pleasant visit to her father, Mr. A. J. Dougan.

Dr. Cyrus MacMillan and Mrs. MacMillan left by motor yesterday morning on return to their home in Montreal where the doctor will resume his duties in McGill University. They were accompanied by the doctor's sister, Miss Christina MacMillan, who will make a visit in that city.

Miss Muriel Goode, of Westville, N. S., who has been visiting in this city, the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Nicholson, received word Thursday of the serious illness of her brother, who is in Montreal, attending the Oddfellows' Sovereign Grand Lodge. Miss Goode left for Montreal yesterday morning. Mr. Goode is well known in this city, which he has visited with the Westville team of which he is manager and his many friends here will anxiously await a favorable report of his condition.

COAT FLOWERS
The flowers that bloom on the coat-trail no longer park on the shoulder as a few months ago. Their favorite location, according to the latest decree of Dame Fashion, is at the back of the neck, just under the coat collar, which is turned up.

Miss Katherine Dockery, of Cardigan and John Dalglish, of West Palm Beach, Florida, were married at Cardigan, P. E. I., on Sept. 19th. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. Dalglish, and the groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. J. Dalglish.

Miss Katherine Dockery, of Cardigan and John Dalglish, of West Palm Beach, Florida, were married at Cardigan, P. E. I., on Sept. 19th. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. Dalglish, and the groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. J. Dalglish.

Miss Katherine Dockery, of Cardigan and John Dalglish, of West Palm Beach, Florida, were married at Cardigan, P. E. I., on Sept. 19th. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. Dalglish, and the groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. J. Dalglish.

AN ATTIC SALT-SHAKER

By W. ORTON TEWSON, All Rights Reserved, Reproduction Prohibited

SURELY the height of self-estimation is reached in this amusing anecdote of Hepworth Dixon, an old time writer of mediocre ability who gained some notoriety as the author of "Spiritual Wives," a book on the occult. It is related by Julian Hawthorne—son of the great Nathaniel of that ilk—in his new book of reminiscences, "Shapes That Pass."

DIXON, chatting with Julian Hawthorne in London one day, was telling him about his recent experiences in Russia.

"Riding alone over the Russian steppes," prattled Dixon, "I came from any human settlement, I came at evening to a lonely tent, a savage and formidable Tartar, armed to his teeth, emerged menacingly, but as he drew near, his aspect changed, he smiled, bowed, and held out welcoming hands, saying: 'Mr. Hepworth Dixon! This is indeed an honor!'"

"In ALL parts of the world I have met with recognition," continued Dixon, "but to be greeted by name, in the depths of a remote wilderness, by this solitary nomad, did I confess surprise me. He drew me into his tent: on the canvas walls were affixed two portraits: one, of course, was the likeness of the Great White Tsar; the other was of myself: there was no other. 'Fear not,' the bearded cheeks of my host as he exclaimed: 'My life would be barren without you!'"

As a small boy Julian Hawthorne regarded his famous father as a great hero—unafraid, unflinching and unbeatable. Mos: small boys are built that way. But,—one day when father and son were walking together in Scotland, a goat—being no respecter of persons—made for the father of "The Scarlet Letter" who promptly disappeared over a garden wall. When danger had passed he hopped back into the street to find an astonished boy awaiting him.

"JULIAN" began the father, "a wise man shows his wisdom by knowing when to run away."

"But, 'The boy stood on the burning deck?'" objected Julian.

"Casablanca was a good boy," said the father, "but if Mrs. Hemans had been at the Battle of the Nile, I think she would have reminded him that 'He who fights and runs away may live to fight another day.'"

"So I was left to think it out for myself," adds Julian.

W. P. FRITH, Royal Academician, was painting in the country one summer, living in a cottage owned by a nice old lady who often used to watch him paint. There was a rush-bottomed chair which he used for his work and to which he became quite attached. It wasn't worth more than fifty cents—a lot of money in those days—and when he was leaving Frith offered the dear old lady five shillings ($1.20) for it.

"BUT she said, 'No,'" chuckled Frith relating the incident of Julian Hawthorne, "she couldn't think of robbing me, but she'd be perfectly content if I'd take the chair in exchange for one of my little 'pleasers!'"

Which took Frith's breath away for a minute—the little 'pleasers' would easily sell for a thousand dollars or more—but he got out of it somehow, and carried off the chair, too!

The opinion of H. G. Wells that everybody who has been anywhere, has seen anything, or done anything (or anybody) should write a novel, has been heeded by Charles E. Mack, of the firm of Moran and Mack, alias "The Two Black Crows." The novel, according to one who should know, purports to tell the story of Amos and Willie, the Two Black Crows of Buford, Tennessee, and their adventures in France during the World War.

APPARENTLY, Amos and Willie had no desire to enter the conflict overseas. They expected, hopefully, to fall to pass the physical examination because of flat feet. However, though special shoes had to be built for them, they were passed with flying colors and the Two Black Crows found themselves attached to the Potato Escadrille.

AMOS, having been married, had had much experience peeling potatoes, but it was the sort of thing he didn't relish.

"I wish," Amos often said, "that when they planted potatoes, they'd plant 'em wid onions. Den, when de onions got in der eyes dey couldn't see to grow."

Willie said that it was just too bad, but there was ne help for it.

DO YOU know that in Egypt, and probably also in Greece, the women sometimes had inscriptions on the soles of their shoes, which made their footsteps leave an imprint in the dust? asks Mr. Asquith in his memoirs.

No, but Longfellow evidently did.

THE Canadian Prime Minister, and his wife—Mr. and Mrs. Meighen came to lunch very nice people."

Mr. Asquith wrote to a friend (the letter is quoted in his book "Memoirs and Reflections.") "He told us not a bad story of a Canadian girl who when he came in from his round declared: 'I did the first three holes in thirty-three, and after that I went to Hell!'"

THE non-committalness of the Civil Servant is proverbial but this gem recorded by Mr. Asquith takes the cake.

It used to be said of one of the most distinguished Civil Servants, Sir Alfred Lyall, who was a poet to boot, that even on such a topic as the weather he would not go farther than: "I'm inclined to guess that there is a touch of east in the wind; but of course you mustn't give me away."

DUMAS, once met "La Dame aux Camellias," he met the exceedingly slight Sarah Bernhardt, walking in the Bois, using a walking stick.

"Which is Sarah Bernhardt, and which is the stick," asked the scoffer.

"This is the stick," replied the "Divine Sarah," hitting him across the back.

MADAME DE STAEL, talking to Talleyrand, suddenly snapped at him, with pointed coquetterie: "If Madame Grant and I had the misfortune simultaneously to fall into the river before your eyes, which of us two would you attempt to save first?"

Talleyrand, old fox, answered smilingly: "But, madame, you are a perfect swimmer."

AT DINNER Talleyrand was once asked what was the difference between a diplomat and a woman of the world. Instantly he replied: "If a diplomat says 'Yes' he means 'Perhaps'; if he says 'Perhaps' he means 'No'; if he says 'No' he is not a diplomat. But if a lady says 'No,' she most likely means 'Perhaps'; if she says 'Perhaps' she means 'Yes'; but if she says 'Yes' she is not a woman of the world."

ONE DAY, a fashionably dressed man entered Howell's Music store in Bristol and asked to see some piano music. Howell put before him the latest sonatas, just published. The stranger looked at them, then said: "I do not care for these. I do not like them, nor me something better."

"Something better?" Howell exclaimed rather impatiently. There is nothing better! I am sorry not to be able to serve. Good day, sir."

The stranger smilingly replied: "I have written these myself. I am Haydn."

At which Howell fell on his neck overjoyed to make the acquaintance of the great composer. They became fast friends.

ONE morning early, when Mrs. Billington, the celebrated singer, was about to enter her carriage to drive to Sir Joshua Reynolds—he was painting her in the character of St. Cecilia. Haydn arrived to make a call. She invited him to accompany her to the studio.

There Haydn looked attentively at the painting which was almost finished.

"I can find but one fault with your painting, Sir Joshua," he remarked, "but it is a great one."

"Indeed," said the painter, "and what is it?"

"You have painted Mrs. Billington listening to the voice of the angels," said Haydn. "You should have painted the angels listening to the voice of Mrs. Billington."

BETWEEN curtains, Sascha Guitry, famous French actor and playwright, was being badgered by an admirer to accept a dinner invitation. To get rid of the importunate one, a supper for the next night was agreed to. Their hand-shake was to the echo of: "I'm right, then tomorrow evening I count on your coming."

"Certainly, tomorrow evening," to his valet.

A MINUTE or so later, Guitry, to his valet: "Jean, remind me to write to that bore that I cannot be at his supper tomorrow night."

Changing to glance into the mirror on his dressing-table, he saw the face of his intended host, who had lingered from sheer admiration. With great presence of mind and pointing at the face in the mirror,

THE CHARLOTTETOWN GUARDIAN

APPARENTLY, Amos and Willie had no desire to enter the conflict overseas. They expected, hopefully, to fall to pass the physical examination because of flat feet. However, though special shoes had to be built for them, they were passed with flying colors and the Two Black Crows found themselves attached to the Potato Escadrille.

AMOS, having been married, had had much experience peeling potatoes, but it was the sort of thing he didn't relish.

"I wish," Amos often said, "that when they planted potatoes, they'd plant 'em wid onions. Den, when de onions got in der eyes dey couldn't see to grow."

Willie said that it was just too bad, but there was ne help for it.

DO YOU know that in Egypt, and probably also in Greece, the women sometimes had inscriptions on the soles of their shoes, which made their footsteps leave an imprint in the dust? asks Mr. Asquith in his memoirs.

No, but Longfellow evidently did.

THE Canadian Prime Minister, and his wife—Mr. and Mrs. Meighen came to lunch very nice people."

Mr. Asquith wrote to a friend (the letter is quoted in his book "Memoirs and Reflections.") "He told us not a bad story of a Canadian girl who when he came in from his round declared: 'I did the first three holes in thirty-three, and after that I went to Hell!'"

THE non-committalness of the Civil Servant is proverbial but this gem recorded by Mr. Asquith takes the cake.

It used to be said of one of the most distinguished Civil Servants, Sir Alfred Lyall, who was a poet to boot, that even on such a topic as the weather he would not go farther than: "I'm inclined to guess that there is a touch of east in the wind; but of course you mustn't give me away."

DUMAS, once met "La Dame aux Camellias," he met the exceedingly slight Sarah Bernhardt, walking in the Bois, using a walking stick.

"Which is Sarah Bernhardt, and which is the stick," asked the scoffer.

"This is the stick," replied the "Divine Sarah," hitting him across the back.

MADAME DE STAEL, talking to Talleyrand, suddenly snapped at him, with pointed coquetterie: "If Madame Grant and I had the misfortune simultaneously to fall into the river before your eyes, which of us two would you attempt to save first?"

Talleyrand, old fox, answered smilingly: "But, madame, you are a perfect swimmer."

AT DINNER Talleyrand was once asked what was the difference between a diplomat and a woman of the world. Instantly he replied: "If a diplomat says 'Yes' he means 'Perhaps'; if he says 'Perhaps' he means 'No'; if he says 'No' he is not a diplomat. But if a lady says 'No,' she most likely means 'Perhaps'; if she says 'Perhaps' she means 'Yes'; but if she says 'Yes' she is not a woman of the world."

ONE DAY, a fashionably dressed man entered Howell's Music store in Bristol and asked to see some piano music. Howell put before him the latest sonatas, just published. The stranger looked at them, then said: "I do not care for these. I do not like them, nor me something better."

"Something better?" Howell exclaimed rather impatiently. There is nothing better! I am sorry not to be able to serve. Good day, sir."

The stranger smilingly replied: "I have written these myself. I am Haydn."

At which Howell fell on his neck overjoyed to make the acquaintance of the great composer. They became fast friends.

ONE morning early, when Mrs. Billington, the celebrated singer, was about to enter her carriage to drive to Sir Joshua Reynolds—he was painting her in the character of St. Cecilia. Haydn arrived to make a call. She invited him to accompany her to the studio.

There Haydn looked attentively at the painting which was almost finished.

"I can find but one fault with your painting, Sir Joshua," he remarked, "but it is a great one."

"Indeed," said the painter, "and what is it?"

"You have painted Mrs. Billington listening to the voice of the angels," said Haydn. "You should have painted the angels listening to the voice of Mrs. Billington."

BETWEEN curtains, Sascha Guitry, famous French actor and playwright, was being badgered by an admirer to accept a dinner invitation. To get rid of the importunate one, a supper for the next night was agreed to. Their hand-shake was to the echo of: "I'm right, then tomorrow evening I count on your coming."

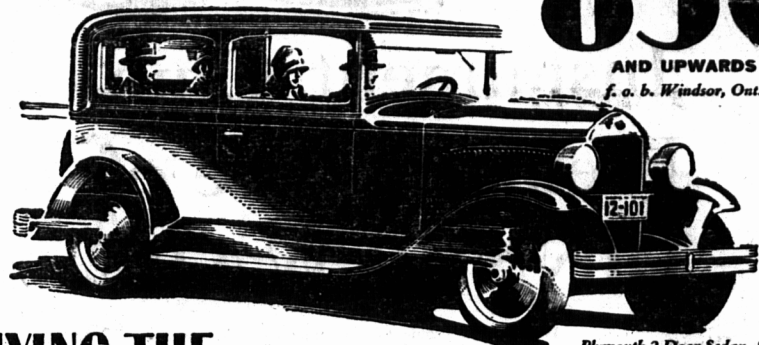

"Certainly, tomorrow evening," to his valet.

A MINUTE or so later, Guitry, to his valet: "Jean, remind me to write to that bore that I cannot be at his supper tomorrow night."

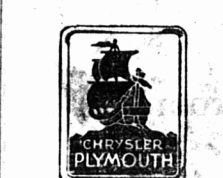

Changing to glance into the mirror on his dressing-table, he saw the face of his intended host, who had lingered from sheer admiration. With great presence of mind and pointing at the face in the mirror,

PLYMOUTH CHRYSLER

Plymouth $850

GIVING THE AUTOMOBILE DOLLAR NEW VALUE

- Coupe Roadster . . . $850
- (with rumble seat) 830
- Touring . . . 870
- 2-Door Sedan . . . 875
- De Luxe Coupe . . . 910
- (with rumble seat)
- 4-Door Sedan . . . 915

All prices f.o.b. Windsor, Ontario, including standard factory equipment (freight and taxes extra).

Thousands of buyers, measuring what others offer at or near this price, find this newest Chrysler product giving far more dollar-for-dollar value in full size, in style and in every phase of performance, than any of the few other cars in the lowest-priced group.

For no other than the Chrysler-Plymouth gives for style the new chromium-plated slender-profile radiator, the new type fenders, the pleasing new arched-window silhouette. No other gives for comfort and elegance, such full-sized, roomy, luxuriously upholstered and finely fitted bodies.

No other gives for performance true high compression through the "Silver-Dome" high-compression engine using any fuel; and for safety, the surety and ease of light-action, internal-expanding hydraulic four-wheel brakes with squeakless moulded brake linings.

No other assures the sturdy dependability and long life with freedom from trouble which Chrysler Standardized Quality builds into each and every Chrysler.

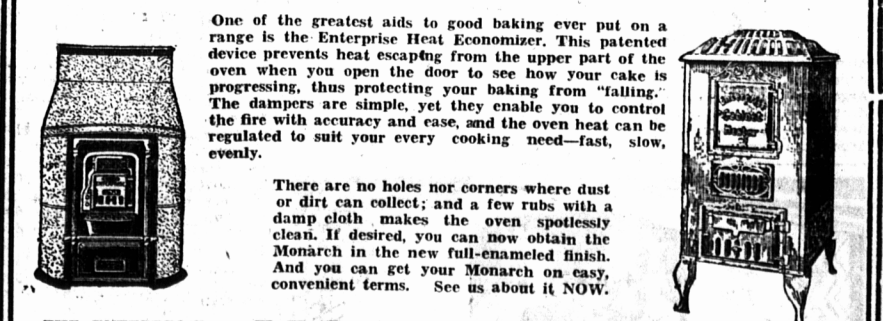

And these are only a few of the features unique to Plymouth which are convincing thousands upon thousands that the Plymouth is the standard whereby to judge values in the lowest-priced fields—that anything less than the Plymouth gives is less than your dollar's worth.

Provincial Motors

DISTRIBUTORS, CHARLOTTETOWN. RUSSEL CLARK, CLIFFORD COX, McLEAN BROS. Mt. Stewart, P. E. I. Souris, P. E. I. North Wiltshire, P. E. I.

Built to last a lifetime, the famous Enterprise Monarch Steel Range has, for nearly two generations, been giving dependable service and perfect satisfaction to more than two hundred and fifty thousand Canadian women. Every body praises their delicious biscuits, tender, juicy roasts, fluffy cakes and flaky pies!

HOLMAN'S Summerside Charlottetown

There are no holes nor corners where dust or dirt can collect; and a few rubs with a damp cloth makes the oven spotlessly clean. If desired, you can now obtain the Monarch in the new full-enamelled finish. And you can get your Monarch on easy, convenient terms. See us about it NOW.

One of the greatest aids to good baking ever put on a range is the Enterprise Heat Economiser. This patented device prevents heat escaping from the upper part of the oven when you open the door to see how your cake is progressing, thus protecting your baking from "falling." The dampers are simple, yet they enable you to control the fire with accuracy and ease, and the oven heat can be regulated to suit your every cooking need—fast, slow, evenly.

THE ENTERPRISE ALL CAST FURNACE gives perfect heating service from cellar to garret, during the stormiest weather. You need one in YOUR home.

THE ENTERPRISE CABINET HEATER does the work of three or four heating stoves on the fuel that one would use. Gives healthful, moist heat—looks like a Victrola.

Guitry continued: "For I have just accepted an invitation to that gentleman's."

HOPEFIELD AND ELSEWHERE
We learn with regret that Mr. John D. Munn had the misfortune a few days ago, to lose one of his fingers while working in his saw and shingle mill. This accident it is feared will necessitate suspension of work in the mill for a little while.

The community of Flat River, was greatly shocked to learn of the sudden death of Mr. Donald J. Ross, last Friday 14th. Death was due to heart failure. Mr. Ross in younger days taught school for a few years, but for the last twenty years or so he has been a mail courier conveying the mails from Melville Station to Finette. So pass the old familiar faces.

The interior of Wood Island Hall is shortly to be sheathed with B. C. speeds most pleasantly, for they

WHO IS "THE LIZARD"?

What is the secret of his death—dealing device which turns its victim into an unrecognizable blue corpse?

Those are the questions which young Alan Dighton sets out to solve.

Within twenty-four hours after his acceptance of a Secret Service post, he witnesses the deed

"BLUE MURDER" and has the grim pleasure of meeting "The Lizard" in combat.

But not until the last few paragraphs of the story does Alan—or the reader, however sport—discover the identity of the masked criminal.

Don't deny yourself the pleasure of this new thriller by EDMUND SNELL beginning—in the Guardian this month

In Memoriam

MRS. MARY A. PAIGE

The many friends of Mrs. Mary A. Paige will be grieved to hear of her death at Waterbury Center, Vermont, Thursday, Sept. 13 at the age of eighty years, after an extended illness. The funeral service was conducted by Rev. W. F. Hill at two o'clock Monday and was attended by a large number of friends and relatives who sent many beautiful floral pieces. The interment will be in the family lot in Forest Hills Cemetery, Boston, Mass.

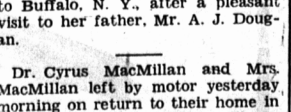

Mrs. Paige was born in Belfast, Prince Edward Island, the daughter of Capt. Donald and Jennie (Pantown) Dockery. She lived many years in Boston and there married Enoch Paige, a successful merchant whom she survived. She made many trips to Europe, and for the past several years she resided a greater part of her time in Vermont. Although she travelled far, Mrs. Paige loved each land of her birth and summer home, "Dunvegan" at Cardigan, P. E. I.

Mrs. Paige was a lady of gracious charm, highly esteemed by all who knew her, and greatly beloved by a wide circle of friends in the United States and Canada. She leaves to mourn four sisters, Mrs. Arthur E. Guild, Waterbury Center, Vermont; Mrs. George Goff, Woodville, P. E. I.; Mrs. Angus Sutherland, and Miss Katherine Dockery, Cardigan, P. E. I. Also two brothers, E. D. Dighton, and Miss Katherine Dockery, Cardigan and John Dalglish, of West Palm Beach, Florida, were married at Cardigan, P. E. I., on Sept. 19th. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. Dalglish, and the groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. J. Dalglish.

Miss Katherine Dockery, of Cardigan and John Dalglish, of West Palm Beach, Florida, were married at Cardigan, P. E. I., on Sept. 19th. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. Dalglish, and the groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. J. Dalglish.

Miss Katherine Dockery, of Cardigan and John Dalglish, of West Palm Beach, Florida, were married at Cardigan, P. E. I., on Sept. 19th. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. Dalglish, and the groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. J. Dalglish.

On the service of industry

The Three Important Points

When buying an engine, there are three things to look for: Reliability, Economy of Operation, and Durability. Large corporations, who are keen buyers, are users of Fairbanks-Morse Diesel Engines, and are getting very satisfactory service. Such companies as the Laurentide Pulp & Paper Co., the Canadian International Paper Co., the Newfoundland Power & Paper Co., use them for tug boat service; the largest fishing companies on the Atlantic Coast use them exclusively, and there are numerous owners on the Pacific Coast. When considering engines, ask us for a list of installations in your vicinity.

<