AN OBJECT LESSON

In a Restaurant.

A physician puts the query: Have you never noticed in any large restaurant at lunch or dinner time the large number of hearty, vigorous old men at the tables; men whose ages run from sixty to eighty years; many of them bald and all perhaps gray, but none of them feeble or senile!

Perhaps the spectacle is so common as to have escaped your observation or comment, but nevertheless it is an object lesson which means something.

If you will notice what these hearty o'd fellows are eating, you will observe that they are not munching bran crackers nor gingerly picking their way through a menu card of new fangled health foods; on the contrary they seem to prefer a juicy roast of beef, a properly turned loin of mutton, and even the deadly broiled lobster is not altogether ignored.

The point of all this is that a vigorous old age depends upon good digestion and plenty of wholesome food and not upon dieting and an endeavor to live upon bran crackers.

There is a certain class of food cranks who seem to believe that meat, coffee and many other good things are rank poisons, but these cadaverous sickly looking individuals are a walking condemnation of their own theories.

The matter in a nutshell is that if the stomach secretes the natural digestive juices in sufficient quantity, any wholesome food will be promptly digested; if the stomach does not do so, and certain foods cause distress, one or two of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets after each meal will remove all difficulty, because they supply just what every weak stomach lacks, pepsin, hydrochloric acid, diastase and nux.

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets do not act upon the bowels and in fact are not strictly a medicine, as they act almost entirely upon the food eaten, digesting it thoroughly and thus giving the stomach a much needed rest and an appetite for the next meal.

Of people who travel, nine out of ten use Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets, knowing them to be perfectly safe to use at any time and also having found out by experience that they are a safeguard against indigestion in any form, and eating as they have to, at all hours and all kinds of food, the traveling public for years have pinned their faith to Stuart's Tablets.

All druggists sell them at 50 cents for full-sized packages and any druggists from Maine to California, if his opinion were asked, will say that Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets is the most popular and successful remedy for any stomach trouble.

The English Face.

It was an American who, meeting an Englishman in a country hotel in the States, opened conversation sympathetically with the words: "Cheer up! It may not be true, and if it is true it may be all for the best." And he was surprised to find that the Briton's look of acute gloom was normal and not the result of any more than ordinarily bad news. The prevailing notion of the American with regard to the Englishman is that he looks "as if his only friend on earth was a yellow dog, and he had lost the dog." For years the inhabitants of the States have been scrutinizing the faces of British visitors to try to ascertain whether their resigned expression is due to a recent bereavement, confirmed misanthropy or simply to superciliousness. According to a weekly paper, some Americans attribute the English face to the English climate. "They did not look actually sad," said an American lady to the writer, "or happy or preoccupied, but they one and all had an expression of resignation—the only state of mind possible with an English climate." This is an ingenious explanation. Centuries of rain and years of fog may have had their effect on our looks. There is, indeed, a certain dignity in the idea.—London Globe.

One of Tyndall's Heroic Experiments

In 1864 Tyndall performed the experiment of separating light from heat. In the course of the investigations which enabled him to do this he made one of the most daring experiments that ever a scientific man ventured on.

Knowing a layer of iodine placed before the eye intercepted the light, he determined to place his own eye in the focus of strong invisible rays. He knew that if in doing so the dark rays were absorbed in a high degree by the humors of the eyes the albumen of the humors might coagulate, and, on the other hand, if there was no high absorption the rays might strike upon the retina with a force sufficient to destroy it. When he first brought his eye undefended near the dark focus the heat on the parts surrounding the pupil was too intense to be endured. He therefore made an aperture in the plate of the metal and, placing his eye behind this aperture, he gradually approached the point of convergence of the invisible rays. First the pupil and next the retina were placed in the focus without any sensible damage. Immediately afterward a sheet of platinum foil placed in the position which the retina had occupied became red hot.

Not in any mysterious way but from the hard fact that Dr. Chase's Nerve Food is composed of the elements of nature which go to form new, red corpuscles in the blood, or, in other words, make the blood rich in the nutritive principle which creates nerve force—the power which runs the machinery of the body.
WITH THE VITALITY OF THE BODY THUS BROUGHT TO HIGH WATER MARK WEAKNESS AND DISEASE GIVE PLACE TO HEALTH AND HAPPINESS.

Mrs. H. A. Loyne, Nurse, Philipsburg, Que., writes: "I was all run down and could not do my own work. Everything I ate made me sick. Doctors Said That Lumps and External Swellings Would Turn to Running Sores.

Burdock Blood Bitters
Saved Her from Many Years of Suffering.
She writes:—"Now imagine how joyous and great was my surprise when a friend of mine told me that Burdock Blood Bitters would cure me, so that the lumps and external swellings, which the doctors told me would turn to running sores, would disappear. I took her advice, and can say that I have no doubt but that Burdock Blood Bitters has saved me from years of suffering. It is with the greatest of pleasure and with a thankful heart that I give this testimonial, knowing that Burdock Blood Bitters has done so much for me, and you are at perfect liberty to use this for the benefit of others similarly afflicted."
Burdock Blood Bitters is the best blood medicine on the market to-day, and is composed entirely of roots, herbs, barks and berries.
