Hockey at Marshfield

Some very interesting games, witnessed by a crowd of excited spectators, have been played to date on the first section of the Marshfield Dunstaffnage and East Royalty League. The first game Jan. 10th, played by Willys Knights of Dunstaffnage and Marshfield Maple Leafs ended in a 2 all draw. The beginning of the second period brought a score for Willysmen by Frank Sutton. In the third period Elmer Duffett for the Leafs evened the score. In the ten minute overtime Willysman Bob Connolly hung up a score only to be followed by another by E. Duffett for the Leafs. Thus ended a clean and interesting game 3-2. Referee: Jack Connolly, East Royalty.

The second game played on Saturday night between East Royalty and Marshfield was not (due to a slight misunderstanding) a League game—nevertheless it was enjoyed by a large number of fans. This game resulted in East Royalty being on the long end of a 6-2 score. Referee: Jimmy Miller, French Fort.

The second League game by Willys Knights and the Maple Leafs was played Wednesday night Jan. 18th and was a closely contested battle, each team being handicapped by the absence of players. In the first session E. Duffett scored for the Leafs and Frank Sutton assisted by J. Miller for the Knights. In the two remaining periods both teams played good hockey but the both goalies saved some great shots and neither team scored. In the ten minute overtime period, Herb O'Connell for Willysmen in a solo rush from defence banged the rubber past the goal for the winning score. The Knightsmen thereafter played defensively for the few remaining minutes and held their lead. Score 3-1. Referee: Harold Lefuregy, East Royalty.

In the blinding snowstorm of Thursday night the third game of the League was played between East Royalty and Willys Knights and witnessed by a large and enthusiastic crowd of spectators who seemed to enjoy watching such a closely contested game even in the driving snow. Old Man Chance was not very kind to the Knights in the toss of the coin, giving them the "windward end" of the rink so that they were facing the storm for the first part, and last periods of the game. Needless to say neither team had much of a chance for combination or long passes but the play was hard and fast by times. In the first period, East Royalty scored twice, once by Williams and one by Lefuregy. In the second period the Knightsmen more than evened the score with one from the stick of Frank Sutton, one by Jimmy Miller and one by Bob Connolly. The final period brought two more for E. Royalty, one by McNair Robertson and another by H. Lefuregy, thus ending a great game 4-3 in favor of Royalty. Referee: Elmer Duffett, Marshfield. The line-up:

JUDGMENT FOR PLAINTIFF IN POTATO CASE

Summary Of Judgment In Case Of Special Interest To Farmers. A case of more than ordinary interest to potato producers and dealers was decided in the County Court at Summerside by His Honour Judge Inman on Wednesday. The parties concerned were William A. Miller vs. Urban G. Gillis. A lengthy judgment was given. The following is an outline of the principle points of the case. The plaintiff is a farmer at Lot 16, and the defendant a farmer and potato dealer at Miscouche, owning a potato warehouse there. He not only buys potatoes but also stores them for others. In the spring of 1931 the plaintiff delivered to the defendant at latter's warehouse 627 bags of potatoes. The first delivery was 27th April and the last 7th May. About the latter date the price of potatoes had begun to decline and within a few days the market was off. In a short time the only available market was at the Starch Factory at 12c per bushel. The potatoes remained in the warehouse for the summer of 1931, rotted, and were a complete loss. The plaintiff claimed that the potatoes had been sold to the defendant, while the latter claimed that the potatoes had been stored by him for the plaintiff. During the summer of 1931 conversations took place between the parties or their representatives but, the evidence, as to what was said, is contradictory. On the 18th April, 1931, the plaintiff in company with Sterling McLean went to defendant's house. Sale of potatoes was talked of but no contract was made. As to what was said, plaintiff and defendant tell a different story—agreeing on only two points, namely, that sale was talked of and that plaintiff was offered 25 cents a bushel. McLean says that there was no mention of storage. A few days after the defendant sent word by Sterling McLean to tell plaintiff to "haul". In response to this the plaintiff did haul and deliver at defendant's warehouse 627 bags of potatoes. The plaintiff says defendant promised him the market price, and this the defendant denies. The defendant admits sending word to the plaintiff to bring in the potatoes, but says that his message to "haul" was in pursuance of, and had reference to, an anterior warehousing contract entered into between them during the previous winter. The plaintiff denies that any such contract was made. The defendant also states he mentioned this matter on the day of the last hauling (7th May). The plaintiff denies this latter conversation. There was no corroboration of any warehousing conversation at any point in the evidence. The court was of opinion that the message to "haul" was an outcome of the talk between the parties on April 18th. What happened in regard to the potatoes was as follows:— The plaintiff came with a load 27th April. Defendant was there. The plaintiff stated that he was proceeding to unload his potatoes into a car, that Sterling McLean was loading into, but that the defendant came along and stopped him, and directed that the potatoes be put into the warehouse. The defendant does not deny this but says he does not remember it. At the time of this delivery the defendant gave the plaintiff a receipt such as was given in the case of a sale. In all there were 16 deliveries, 10 of which were taken by the defendant personally, and 6 by his clerk. On the occasion of each delivery plaintiff asked the current market price and was told the same, and on each occasion the plaintiff received a receipt, such as was given in 1931 in the case of a sale. There was no price placed on the receipts. The defendant takes the ground that it was a storing contract, and if it had been a sale he would have placed the price on the receipt. The evidence in regard to storing was that the custom was to allot a space to the customer, or enter his name in the warehouse book. No particular space was allotted to the plaintiff nor was his name entered in the warehouse book. The potatoes hauled by plaintiff were placed in 5 different places in the warehouse at the defendant's direction. Sometimes bags hauled by other people were mixed up with, or piled on top of those hauled by the plaintiff. The defendant seems to have spent a large portion of his time in and around the warehouse, and had a general supervision over matters. It appeared that in the spring of 1931 defendant stored potatoes for other parties. The only one who was examined on this point was Sterling McLean who stated that he did not, when storing in 1931, receive a receipt such as was given to the plaintiff. Plaintiff stated that, whilst he was hauling, some of what he had hauled had been shipped out, a statement that was not successfully controverted. One independent witness stated that defendant, referred to some of the potatoes brought in by Miller, as having been bought by defendant. This was denied by the defendant. The court held that the manner in which the potatoes were dealt with, would indicate a sale rather than a storing, and that the weight of evidence was in favour of the plaintiff namely, that there was a sale rather than a storing. In regard to the delivery and receipt Judge said— "As to delivery: a receipt was given at each delivery such as was usually given in the case of a sale. No price was placed on the receipt but at each delivery the plaintiff asked the price. It was argued that the plaintiff should have seen to it that the price was placed on the receipt. The plaintiff may have been lax, but some consideration must be given to the fact that he was particularly to inquire the price daily. I do not think, that, taking all the circumstances into consideration, the omission of the price on the receipt, would, in itself, be sufficient to transform into a bailment, what otherwise would be a sale. On the other hand, the defendant's actions in this matter are not to be regarded as free from criticism. He issued to the plaintiff receipts (in form) such as are usually issued in the case of a sale. It is not unnatural that the plaintiff would regard these as sales receipts. If the defendant had intended the receipts should be, and mean otherwise than they purported to be, why did he not so mark them? To do so was particularly within the province of the defendant, as it was he who wrote the receipts. If these receipts are ambiguous, they are of the defendant's issuing. To allow a dealer to issue receipts capable of bearing two constructions, and afterwards, in the face of a falling market, to place thereon that construction most advantageous to himself, is a matter not to be allowed to pass without the strictest scrutiny." Judgment was given for the plaintiff for $236.54 and costs. S.

The stout woman slipped on the icy top step of the stairway and rolled to the bottom, carrying with her a small man who had been coming up just behind her. As the landing was reached, the little man waited a moment for action; then, lifting his head as far as circumstances would permit, gasped: "You'll have to get off here, lady. This is as far as we go."

RELIGIOUS SERVICES Trinity United Church Over the top! What a thrill was experienced when during the war word came that our boys had gone over the top at Vimy, Hill 70 and other places. Well, the same feeling of joy and satisfaction came to the people of Trinity when they learned that the Sunday School had gone over the top with a record attendance of 545. Two causes contributed to this result. One was the beautifully fine and clear day and clean streets, the other was the fact of the Installation of Officers and Teachers at the morning service of the Church. However, such an attendance is but another proof of the loyalty and efficiency of officers and teachers and is the best guarantee possible of the future progress of our Church. Rev. Dr. Ramsay, after the ceremony of Installation above referred to, preached from the text Matthew 18-2 "Jesus called to him a little child and set him in the midst of them." God's ever watchful eye is upon the children. It is His will that none of them should perish. The child should be in the centre of the Church's work and it is the duty of the Church to take care of them. Jesus says, "Feed my lambs." The value of a soul to God cannot be expressed in ordinary measure, it can be seen in the price paid on Calvary for redemption. That the whole Church of God corporate and individual should renew its sense of values and return to its vital purpose of winning souls for Christ was the earnest appeal of the address. Hopkins' "Lift up your Heads" and Palestrina's "Come Holy Spirit," were the anthems of the morning. The large evening congregation heard from Dr. Vincent a very appealing sermon "Escape for thy life!" The choir made effective rendering of Maunder's "Praise the Lord," while Campion's setting of "The Ninety and Nine" was expressively given in Mr. V. L. Dingwell's fine baritone. There was in the Sunday School at 2.30 another day of fine attendance and deep interest. Woman Pays For Temper Flare-Up LONDON, Jan. 21.—A very expensive way, indeed, was that taken recently by a pretty young woman to settle a quarrel with her husband. They went out together, and to warm herself and get rid of a chill, she drank several glasses of sherry. They had a slight difference of opinion, which, as such things are apt to do under similar circumstances, grew out of all proportion to its importance. Late in the evening they went to a restaurant for supper and here the quarrel flared up again. The woman ran out, jumped into their car which she did not know how to drive, and ran it full tilt into another machine. Fortunately her husband had the ignition key, so that her ride was necessarily short. The sequel was her appearance in Marylebone court, where after a very unfeeling lecture she was assessed £31 4s 9d. NOTICE We are opened to buy or exchange Skates and Boots.
