HAPPENINGS OF THE WEEK

The King has approved of the appointment of the Duchess of Kent to be Commandant of the Women's Royal Service, and of the Duchess of Gloucester to be an Air Commandant, Women's Auxiliary Air Force.

Queen Mary has become a most generous subscriber to a maternity hospital of which the Duchess of Gloucester is president, the only one in Britain established exclusively for the wives of Navy, Army, and Air Force wives.

Girl Guides of Canada were especially interested when the announcement was made of the appointment of the Earl of Athlone as Governor-General, as the Countess of Athlone is actively interested in the Girl Guide movement in the British Empire.

Mrs. T. B. Rogers has returned from Halifax where she was on a visit to her husband, Major T. B. Rogers of the P. E. I. Highlanders. Sitting in the same auto-truck in which she went round the Empire exhibition at Glasgow, Queen Mary recently toured the works of Agriculture Implement Makers at Dusley, Gloucester. Previously she had spent nearly half an hour at one of the town's new housing estates. At the first house she visited, she was met at the door by the tenant, Mr. B. Ogburne, and having commented favourably on the size of the rooms and the cupboard space, she said, "Very nice house indeed." After her visit to the works, Queen Mary took tea at The Towers, one of the hostels run by the firm in whose auto-trucks many members of the Royal Family have ridden.

Long necklaces are in favour, especially for the older woman. Queen Mary often wears a necklace of pearls or diamonds almost reaching to her waist and the modern fashion follows her example by wearing a necklace of thick gold or semi-precious stones worn several times round the throat, the longest loop hanging just above the waistline. These necklaces are often the only ornament on a simply tailored gown or suit.

Parasols are coming back with summer fashions in the greatest numbers since the 90's, style scouts in the fashion mart report. In Manhattan's largest shops they are hailed as "tremendous news" and are being shown in gayer designs and fabrics than the 90's ever knew. What's behind the parasol parade nobody seems to know. Some lay it to the influence of Queen Elizabeth's visit to Canada and the United States last summer. Others say it's just part of the general trend.

Mrs. W. A. Currie was hostess on Monday evening for the East End Bridge club of which she is a member.

DOROTHY DIX SAYS— MONEY OR MARRIAGE PROBLEM EACH INDIVIDUAL MUST SOLVE

Man Who Wants to Make His Fortune Seldom Finds Real Happiness When He Does Marry

Dear Miss Dix—Should a man put off marriage until he is financially successful? Or will working together for success bring a man and wife closer together? If a man marries when he is poor, will it cause him to sleep restlessly at night? For whatever hand a man succeeds in making money, will it tend to make him feel that he can get along without home life? If a man marries when he is a poor boy, may he not find by the time he makes his fortune that he has outgrown his wife who has not had the advantages of the same contacts that he has? Is that an argument for waiting for success? PERPLEXED J.

Answer: A cynic has said that whether you marry or whether you don't, you will regret it. That same reply might be made to the question of whether a man should marry before or after he has made his fortune. In either case, there will be times when he will wish he hadn't. It all depends upon the man, the woman and the circumstances.

There are no hard and fast laws for the man who wants to make his fortune. He must decide to every rule there are a thousand exceptions. You might say for instance, with Mr. Kipling, that "he travels the world who travels alone." That if a man is ambitious and bent on achieving success he should put off marriage until he has reached his goal.

You can say that a man is heavily handicapped who has a wife and children on his back, and that many a man of talent fails just because he has a family to support. It is true that a man who is poor and who has a family to support is in a very bad way. But it is not open to him, but was so worn and beaten down he did not have the strength to do it.

But, on the other hand, there are wives who are an inspiration to their husbands and who make of their shoulders a ladder on which their husbands climb to success. Sometimes even a poor wife is a help, rather than a hindrance. Many a man who has a large diamond necklace and a big car, but who has no money, has had to hustle so to pay for his wife's extravagances that he made himself a millionaire before he knew it.

It is also true that when a poor boy and girl marry, and she has to stay at home doing the cooking, washing, penny-pinching and baby-tending, while his career throws him out into the world among brilliant people, that he frequently does outgrow her.

All of us are daily witnesses to the tragic spectacle of polished and sophisticated men of the world dragging around dowdy little dull wives who are miserably out of place anywhere except in their own kitchens. And we read the even more tragic accounts of the divorces in which wealthy men discard their old wives for new ones whom they keep with their altered estates.

But—and this also happens—often the poor boy and girl who get married work together, grow up together, plan and hope and struggle together, and it makes for them a comradeship and a happiness and closeness that no other husband and wives ever enjoy.

When you see a rich old man hanging a fat old woman with incongruous jewels, you may know that he is trying to pay her back for a hindrance she has been to the string of beads that he was unable to give her when they were first married. It is the real thing in romance.

The trouble about a man putting off marriage until he has made his money is that by the time he gets ready to marry he has lost his taste for it. You can't summon back youth after it has gone. You can't make the blood run hot in your veins after it has slowed down and fallen to leeward temperature.

You can't see visions after your eyes have got keen and hard looking into business propositions. A wedding cake hasn't much taste to it after it stands too long on the shelf.

And so the man who puts off marrying until middle age is likely to think that it is better to stick to the club cooking he knows than run the risk of a bride's. Or, if he who are trying to find that someone whose money is counterfeit and won't buy him the happiness he expected. The glow and the circling wings are not for sale over the counter.

So whether you marry before or after you have made your fortune, you will have to solve your own problem. You must decide for yourself whether you can get along with a wife and children on your back, or whether you can get along without home life. You must decide for yourself whether you can get along with a wife who has not had the advantages of the same contacts that you have, or whether you can get along with a wife who has outgrown you. You must decide for yourself whether you can get along with a wife who is an inspiration to you, or whether you can get along with a wife who is a hindrance to you. THE COOK'S CORNER

GLAZED POT ROAST OF BEEF

Six pounds bottom round beef, 4 tablespoons melted fat, 1 large sliced, peeled onion, 4 tablespoons vinegar, 1-2 teaspoons salt, 3 tablespoons flour, 1-2 cup red currant jelly. Sear meat on all sides in the melted, hot fat. Add onion, the vinegar, salt, and 1-4 cup water. Cover and cook slowly for 2-3 hours, or until tender. Beat the jelly with a fork, add 1 tablespoon vinegar, and spread over the meat. Cook about 10 minutes longer, basting three times. Remove meat to hot platter, then pour off or skim off the excess fat, reserving it. Pour off drippings from the kettle and measure. Add enough water to make 2-4 cups liquid. Blend 2 tablespoons of the reserved fat with the flour, which has been placed in a bowl. Add liquid and cook until thickened, stirring constantly. Season, if necessary, and pour over the roast. Rump or chuck roast may also be used, if desired.

RASPBERRY BARS

1 cup flour, 1 egg, 1-2 cup butter, 1 tablespoon milk, Raspberry jam, 1 egg, beaten, 1 cup sugar, 2 tablespoons butter, 2 cups cocoa, 1 teaspoon vanilla. Method: Crumble together the flour and butter and moisten with the first egg and the tablespoon of milk. Roll out and line a square pan with the mixture. Spread this with raspberry jam. Make a topping by combining the beaten egg, the sugar, 2 tablespoons butter, the cocoa and vanilla. Spread this on top of the jam and bake for about 30 minutes in a moderate oven (350 deg. F.). Cut in squares when baked and cool on a cake rack.

Want her to keep entire charge of her estate and that you make no claims whatever upon her property. If she would have to support you, you might hesitate to marry her and become a parasite upon her; but you have enough money to supply all of your own wants and be independent, and you are very foolish to let a little money come between you and her love and companionship and understanding, you are giving her something far more valuable than anything that her money will buy. As for what other people think and say, don't give that a thought. Whatever we do we will be criticized.

A Morning Smile

After waiting half an hour for a No. 1 train, during which time several 2's and 3's and 4's had passed, three No. 1's arrived together. This was too much for an irate member of the crowd.

"Tuh. Scared of the Jerries," he sneered. "Traveling in convoys!"

A doctor had just finished his examination of "Hodge"—newly called up from the farm.

"I'm sorry to say there's something wrong with your heart," he said. "To give it a name, it's angina pectoris."

"You're wrong there, zur," answered Hodge, with happy but vacuous smile. "That isn't her name at all."
