

THE ELECTORS OF THE CITY OF CHARLOTTETOWN

Ladies and Gentlemen: Having been solicited by a large number of the citizens and tax payers of Charlottetown to offer as a candidate for the Mayoralty at the forth coming election, I have consented to offer for the office and beg to solicit your support and influence.

An extended report of the past year's work is now before you. You will observe that we have succeeded to make revenues and expenditures meet and have a balance to the good. My work at the Council Board is well known to most of the tax payers of the city and I think that I may fairly assume that the result of my work meets with the approval of the majority of the citizens.

Many of my friends believe that I am entitled to the position on account of my length of service to the city, having served for a greater length of time than any member of the Council Board and have performed the duties of my office in a fair and efficient manner since becoming a member of the Council.

If you do me the honor of election there will be nothing negative with regard to my policy for the forth coming term. I will use every effort to promote all and every good work undertaken by the Council for the general welfare and betterment of the city.

Charlottetown has made much progress in civic betterment in the past several years and I believe that I can claim a fair share of the credit for the progress that has been made. I will be unable to see personally the electors before polling day and rely upon the citizens of Charlottetown, whose sense of fair play and justice is well known, to rally to my support.

Yours respectfully, D. J. RILEY.

WHAT MARION WANTED CHAPTER 45.

"I am almost ashamed of Robert, he ate so much," I said to Mary, as I put aside the small piece of pie left. "I should have been mad if he hadn't! I feel quite complimented. He knows good cooking if he don't get it at that boarding house. He goes to them friends of his who cook something grand. He told me so himself. I expect that Hovey girl can cook?" She asked the question innocently. "She is a marvelous cook, house-keeper, and everything else, according to Robert. I'll bet she couldn't earn a penny to save her life. Those home girls who think cooking and cleaning are the most important things in the world, make me tired."

L. B. MILLER'S CARD Ladies and Gentlemen:—Two years ago, you did me the honor of electing me as one of your representatives at the council board, and now, at the request of a large number of the electors, I have endeavored to look after the interests of the City to the best of my ability, and I think I may claim a fair share of the credit of inaugurating the policy of permanent streets. If my work has met with your approval and you see fit to re-elect me for another term I will continue to give of my time and energy to the best of my ability to continue this work and further the best interests of the City generally. I do not intend to make any canvass, but leave the matter entirely to you to decide as to whether you wish me to represent you for another term or not.

fore she had her flat to keep, she read all the novels she could get hold of, and often used the expressions she read. "She's almost too young for that. She is two years younger than I am." "They say, Gerry, that love goes where it's sent. But I think it goes where folks get together what have a lot of things they both like to do, and talk about. Men who like homes should marry homey girls, and the other kind of men the working girls. Since I had this flat I'm for the man who wants a homey girl—like little Mary Ryan." It was after 5 o'clock when Robert came back for me. We had passed a nice afternoon, Mary and I, but I had just begun to feel uneasy, to wonder what Robert and Marion were doing and saying. "Did you think I wasn't going to show up?" he asked. "Almost," I replied, while Mary informed him that he must finish the pie and the rest of the 'leavings' before we left and that it was yet too early for supper. "How did you find Marion?" I asked as carelessly as possible. "Not very well—one of her headaches." "She has had headaches?" "Yes, has had them ever since I first knew her." "But you aren't a doctor. What could you do for her?" "She didn't send for me for herself. She heard of a place in Caiding's Sporting Goods House, and though perhaps I might get it. One of the heads of departments is an old friend of her father's. She has given me a letter to him." "That's very kind." Yet as I said it, I presented her act—her interest in Robert. had some places selected to call upon tomorrow? "Yes! I spoke of the ads. but I shall go to Calder's first. There's more chance of landing something when one has a little influence, and God knows I need to get busy." "You are right, Robert, and Calder's is a nice place. I have heard they pay good salaries." For the first time Mary joined the conversation. "It certainly was white in Marie."

To the Electors of Ward 3

Ladies and Gentlemen:—Having been asked by many of the Electors of Ward Three to nominate at the coming election I have done so. I have served you for the past six years. My record before you and if you think well of it I ask you to support me at the coming Election. I will endeavor to make a personal canvass and I take this opportunity of asking you for your support. Yours faithfully, R. B. RATTRAY.

To the Electors of Ward 2

Ladies and Gentlemen:—At the request of a large number of citizens in Ward 2, I have decided to offer as a candidate for Councillor in the forthcoming election. I take this opportunity of soliciting your support. If elected I will endeavor to look after the interests of the City in general and of Ward 2 in particular. Respectfully yours, WM. MORAN, 6681-1-31ME1f.

To the Electors of Ward 5

Ladies and Gentlemen:—Two years ago, without solicitation on my part you elected me as one of your representatives to the City Council. During my term I have endeavored to look after the interests of the City to the best of my ability, and I think I may claim a fair share of the credit of inaugurating the policy of permanent streets. If my work has met with your approval and you see fit to re-elect me for another term I will continue to give of my time and energy to the best of my ability to continue this work and further the best interests of the City generally. I do not intend to make any canvass, but leave the matter entirely to you to decide as to whether you wish me to represent you for another term or not. Yours truly, J. McKINNON, Feb 4th till 11th.
