W. C. T. U. NOTES

MEMORIAL DAY

And still new crosses space the earth,
With names and date of death and birth,
Symbols of men who dared to die
That freedom's flag should hold the sky.

Again the living turn away
From all the traffic of the day
To honor them, the splendid brave
Who all they had for freedom gave.

How small they make us feel who live,
Enjoying all they died to give!
How trivial seem our gifts to truth
Compared with these who gave their youth.

They died for us! The oldest here
Held liberty, than life, most dear.
Like him, the youngest chose to die
For that which life alone can buy.

Place at each mound a flower, and then
Go back into a world of men,
Resolved ungrudgingly to make
Our lesser gifts for freedom's sake.

HISTORIC ANNIVERSARY

Twenty-eight years ago May 31, 1916, the British and the German battle fleets met at Jut'and—"the culminating manifestation of naval force in the history of the world."

Nothing in this war has compared or could compare with this immense concentration of naval power.

"The British marshalled 28 dreadnought battleships and 9 battle cruisers against Admiral Scheer's 16 dreadnoughts and 5 battle cruisers. In addition, the Germans had 6 pre-dreadnought ships of the Deutschland class."

ADMIRAL FARRAGUT

"Would you like to know how I was enabled to serve my country?" said Admiral Farragut. "It was all owing to a resolution, an ideal I formed when I was ten years of age. My father was sent down to New Orleans with the little navy we had then, to look after the treason of Burr. I accompanied him as a cabin boy. I had some qualities that, I thought, made a man of me. I could swear like an old salt; could drink as stiff a glass of grog as if I had doubled Cape Horne and could smoke like a locomotive; I was great at cards, and fond of gambling in every shape. At the close of the dinner on day, my father turned everybody out of the cabin, locked the door, and said to me: "David, what do you mean to be?"

"I mean to follow the sea."

"Follow the sea! Yes, be a poor miserable drunken Sailor before the mast, kicked and cuffed about the world, and die in some fever hospital in a foreign clime."

"No," I said. "I'll tread the quarter deck, and command, as you do."

"No, David! No boy ever trod the quarterdeck with such principles as you have and such habits as you exhibit. You will have to change your whole course of life if you ever become a man."

My father left me and went on deck. I was stunned by the rebuke and overwhelmed with mortification. That's my fate is it? I'll change my life and change it at once. I will never utter another oath. I will never drink another drop of intoxicating liquor. I will never gamble. And as God is my witness, I have kept those three vows to this hour."

The cherishing of such ambitions was his salvation, and gave to America one of its brightest stars.

ROUND THE WORLD WITH ALCOHOL

Tobruk to Turkey with the Army of the Nile

This excellent book is written by Frank Clune in honorary capacity while an Honorary Commissioner of the Australian Comforts Fund and published to aid the funds of the Australian Comforts Fund.

We quote the following without further comment from page 156 re Halifax (East Mediterranean):

"We enter the Aussie Soldiers' Club run by the Canteen Services. Not an Aussie is in the district, but the canteen is filled by soldiers from many lands. The beer sold is Aussie, brought eleven thousand miles, so that the gullets of the Diggers wouldn't be sullied by local beer.

'It is one of the major scandals of the war, that British warships should be employed to convoy ships loaded with watery beer and that Sailors should risk their lives carrying it into a country that can brew beer just as good. A Palestine paper states, 'Last year over 12,000,000 gallons of water reached the Middle East. It was contained in the 80,000 tons of beer imported into this country.

"That's how Australia wins the war—for the breweries. Egypt has three meatless days a week. All unnecessary as the ships that carry the beer could more easily carry butter, bacon and beef. Eggs, alone in these lands cost four pence each. Yet millions could be brought from Australia in the holds of the transports no used to carry beer."—The New Zealand Beacon, November 13, 1943.

MEDICAL PROFESSION SPEAKS

Dr. Kellog:

"Alcohol never, under any circumstances increases vital energy of the body, on the contrary, it decreases it in a marked and uniform manner, through its posioncus influnce upon living cells."

"Alcohol is never a tonic or a stimulant. It is always a narcotic, interfering with the bodily functions and lessening the nerve tone and vital energy.

"Alcohol does not aid digestion, it actually hinders it.

Professor of Pharmacy, Toronto University:

"The danger of a drunken driver lies not in his arms, nor in his legs but in his brain. He may be able to walk fairly straigh t and control his hand, but stimulated by alcohol, he will take chances he would not even consider were he perfectly sober.

"The little niceties of judgment are among the first things to go, under intoxication. There is no drug stuff that will arouse a man's intelligence.

MONTREAL, June 1 — (CP) — Mrs. Clarinda Cocozza, 55, collapsed and died on the grave of her son in a cemetery here today—pinned to her dress was a bag containing $1,000 to provide for funeral expenses.

In Memoriam

MR. ALEXANDER HENRY

The funeral of Mr. Alexander Henry, Kensington was held from his residence to the Presbyterian Church, Kensington where a public funeral service took place at 2 p.m. on Tuesday, May 23. The service was conducted by his Minister Rev. J. A. McGowan, who also preached the sermon. The Minister spoke words of comfort and encouragement from Isaiah 4: 1 and 2. A mixed choir led in "The Lord is My Shepherd" "Rock of Ages" and Abide With Me"

Mr. Henry passed quietly to his rest on Sunday May 21, in the evening at the age of 88 years. He had been in poor health for over two years. Almost two years ago he went through a major operation from which he never rightly recovered. With patience, faith and fortitude he bore his illness. His wife tenderly nursed him during his sickness.

The deceased was born at Stanley Bridge. When he was three years old he was taken to make his home with his aunts in Baltic where he resided until he retired from active and successful farming over twenty year ago. After his retirement he lived in Kensington up to the time of his death. He was a christian and a member of the Presbyterian Church which he regularly attended and took an active part in as long as his health permitted. He had been a genial and sympathetic personality and a good neighbor.

He leaves to mourn besides his wife one brother Nelson who made his home with him.

Pallbearers were Bruce Paynter, Edmund Paynter, C. W. MacLeod, J. A. MacKenzie, James Jardine, and Alexander Hiltz.

Interment was made in People's Cemetry, Kensington, Rev. J. A. McGowan officiated at the grave.
