A Harvester's Diary

San Francisco, Cal., Feb. 22, 1918
—Again our ship came through the Golden Gate and steamed up the harbor to her dock; this time on her way northward. They expected to be in port twenty four hours but did not get away until 4 o'clock this evening, being four or five hours longer. The longshoremen worked all night and most of today, and made big money. They get overtime pay after 5 p.m. and this being a legal holiday—Washington's birthday—they still got overtime.

This forenoon I went with a number of passengers on a sight-seeing trip in a large motor car through the city and out through Golden Gate Park—fare one dollar each. The conductor pointed out and explained about the places of interest as we went along.

Golden Gate Park is very large and very beautiful. On the shores of Stowe Lake are many lovely and interesting spots. Out towards the cliffs are some huge, real Dutch windmills; donated by a wealthy Hollander, so I understood. They are used for pumping water.

We stopped for quite a while to go through a large building which contains a great number of stuffed wild animals and birds. These are all behind glass partitions, and have their dens, nests and surroundings arranged to represent them just as they are when alive and free.

We stopped at the Cliff House for refreshments and had our pictures taken standing beside the car. Near the shore large rocks rose from the water, on which a number of seals were basking in the sun.

Returning, we came through a different part of the city. There is not much evidence of the great earthquake to be seen. The land the city is built on is quite hilly.

Feb. 24.—We arrived at Victoria after midnight this morning. I and others went in a free bus to the Strathcona Hotel. The sea was rough for two days and a night before reaching Victoria.

Our boat arrived at Vancouver about seven this evening. The heaviest fall of snow that came all winter was here to greet us.

I fell in with a man on the boat returning from Southern California, who, with his wife and two children, had spent the winter there, too. He has a ranch in Alberta, and when he found that I intended to work somewhere in Alberta, wanted me to go to his place and drive six horses in a plough or harrow, which I agreed to do.

March 20.—After a couple of days, as I did not wish to be on the prairie before April 1st, I went to work in the Hastings Sawmill. About four hundred men are employed, the majority being Chinese and Japs. I worked at unloading trucks and sawing lumber run out from the saws on iron rails. At right angles to these tracks, on a lower level, two large electric driven trucks ran. These had rail tracks across them with the outer ends curled up. When stopped opposite one of the trucks on the platform a truck load of lumber would be run out to it. Then the motor man would start and stop at the different places where the piles of lumber had to be dumped. An iron roll on each side of the truck made unloading an easy matter. The great square timbers were also handled in this way. They were run down on rolls to the electric truck which had an iron roll over which the timber was balanced. This roll had a control lever so that one man could hold the timber or move it other way. When thus balanced a man at the inner end could steady it until the desired place or height, when it would be shot over a roll on the platform below where a line from a ship's mast or derrick could pick it up and haul it on board.

We handled timbers 24 and 30 inches square, 60 feet long. Some were 36 feet long, but not so large. The deal of our time was spent riding back and forth on the electric car. Sometimes we had to wait for a truck load of lumber and would have nothing to do.

It was a very pleasant place to work in fine weather. The big ships coming in at the Narrows had all to pass us on their way to the docks. The North Vancouver ferry-boats were continually passing and re-passing. One could not look on the harbor at any time without seeing some kind of a craft at sea. The sea, the mountains rose in their majesty just back of the city.

I got a nice room, near the centre of the city, with electric light, steam heat, hot and cold running water and use of bath all for $1.50 a week. I got good meals at restaurants for 20 cents each. My experience in restaurants is that the more one pays for a meal the less he gets to eat. I was almost sorry to leave the job, and my comfortable room. A nice elderly chap from New Brunswick had charge of the truck and a Russian and a Jap worked on it besides myself. I worked 14 days.

I found some relatives and had dinner and spent a pleasant evening with them last night.

Today I went to see Capolino Canyon, and crossed on the swinging, or suspension bridge. Was also at the Second Canyon.

HARVESTER.

IN MEMORIAM

MISS JANE WOOD

On Saturday, June 22nd, there passed peacefully away at her home in North Tryon, Miss Jane Wood, in the 74th ear of her age. She leaves to mourn one sister, Miss Carrie, Wood, of North Tryon. The funeral took place at the home of Mrs. Edward Leard, Monday afternoon, where a large number of friends assembled to pay their last respect to the deceased, who had been sadly afflicted from childhood. The services were conducted by the Rev. George Morris, pastor of the Methodist Church. The pall-bearers were: Messrs. William Thomas, Joseph Hill, Major Caruthers and Artemas Cameron. Interment took place in Tryon Methodist Cemetery.

JOHN ALLAN MUNROE

John Allan Munroe who departed this life May 22nd was born 45 years ago in Fairview, P. E. I. He left his island home twenty years ago and was engaged in gold mining in Idaho for a number of years. Some seven years ago he came to the continent through a cave-in, in a mine, which finally resulted in his decease. He was so badly shattered by the accident that he had to remain in a hospital five years. He was partially recovered, and made a visit to his home here two years ago. On returning West, he entered a hospital at Edmonton, and remained there till a few months ago, and was on his way returning home; when he laid off at a sanitarium in Graveheart, Ontario, and while at that institution the end came. Miss Laura, his sister in Boston was notified and she went to Ontario to convey the remains here.

On the arrival here a funeral service was held at the Uigg Baptist Church conducted by Rev. Dr. McEwen the pastor of Orwell Presbyterian Church and the remains were laid away in the cemetery near by, beside his parents who predeceased him a few years.

John Allen, while at home the last time publicly professed his faith in Christ as his Saviour, and he has gone to his Eternal Home to join loved ones "lost" a while, however, he is free from all accidents and pain.

The sorrowing members of his family who mourn his passing are: Mrs. Wm. McLeod, Orwell Cove; Mrs. McLean, Quincy, Mass.; Mrs. N. G. McPherson, Orwell; Alexander in Alberta; Murdoch on the old home; Mrs. D. A. McPherson, Kinross; Miss Laura of Boston, Mass.; Mrs. Alex Ross, Surrey; and Angus in B. Columbia; also a large circle of friends and acquaintances to whom he endeared himself by his kindly manner. Patriot please copy.

Are You Deceived

Have you been led to believe that the knife is the only cure for piles?

If so, it is unfortunate, for many thousands are being cured by the use of Dr. Chase's Ointment. Sometimes after operations have failed and often when doctors have said that an operation would be the only hope.

It won't cost you much to try this treatment in your own home. It is sure to relieve and usually effects complete cure.

MRS. PATRICK KIELY

There died at her home, Emerald, P. E. I., on the 21st of June, 1918, after a long and trying illness, borne most patiently, Annie, the beloved wife of Patrick Kiely, who, together with five sons and two daughters, survive, namely:—William, at Tidnish, Nova Scotia; John in Staveley, Alta. Henry at Windsor, Vermont in New Hampshire, George at the front in France, Mary A., in Salem, Mass., and Rose Ella and Joseph at home. To the fact that Mrs. Kiely, who was in her sixty-sixth year, was very generally and very highly esteemed, and affectionately regarded by a host of friends and neighbors, the many kind and effective acts of neighborliness, at a time when kindness counts, abundantly testify as does the funeral cortege,—the largest that ever entered Kinkora, where waiting hundreds joined in the obsequies at St. Malachy's on last Sunday afternoon. The pall bearers were Messrs. Michael and William Clark, Frank Greenan, John R. Murphy, Joseph Baker and John Murtagh.

The mourning family ask us to express their grateful appreciation to one and all.

May she rest in peace.
