Rail Birds Think Chatham Team Is To Be Good One

CHATHAM, Jan. 4.—The Chatham hockey squad is putting in some faithful work these days and the boys are rapidly rounding into shape under the careful eye of their coach, E. W. Watling. Just who will make the team yet is not known. The work of some of the new men has proved a big surprise to the fans who are attending the practices.

In all "Wallie" has about fifteen or twenty men out and, according to those who have seen the trial workouts, Chatham's 1923 hockey team will be heard from before the season is very much older. The new uniforms have arrived and the boys will certainly look natty when they stack up against Shediac on Monday night.

Two Chatham rinks left today at noon for Bathurst where they try to lift the McLellan Cup from Bathurst knights of the broom tonight.

The Chatham skips will be S.D Heckbert and R. A. Snowball and both will be supported by strong rinks.

The boy will be disappointed if there is no sawdust in sister's doll.

MADE PARTIAL TOUR. —Mr. C. E. McNeil, Dominion Secretary of the G. W. V. A. completed a Maritime tour and left Moncton Thursday for Toronto without visiting P. E. Island, much to the regret of war veterans. Mr. McNeil who is representing all the returned men's organizations seeking out evidences in connection with the charges made against the Pension Board at the last session of the Dominion Parliament is travelling from coast to coast seeking information to present to the Royal Commission appointed to enquire into the charges. Col. J. L. Ralston, of Halifax, is chairman of the commission which has been holding forth at Ottawa, but which for the sake of convenience will hold court at Halifax and St. John in the Maritime Provinces, as well as other points throughout Canada. At the last session of Parliament there were certain amendments made to the Pension Act which shut out numerous worthy cases. It is hoped that Mr McNeil's collaboration of evidence will be instrumental in having the Pension's Act broadened out, so as to treat all concerned fairly.

ABEGWEITS VS. CRESCENTS

On Tuesday and Wednesday nights of next week, the Charlottetown Hockey fans will have an opportunity of seeing the Abegweit team in action against the Halifax Crescents at the Arena Rink.

The Abegweit team have just returned after defeating the Crescents two games, each time by a close margin, the Crescents are no way disheartened by this and are determined to give the champion Abbies two games that they will long remember.

In Halifax the rule was "no smoking" let Charlottetown fans at least extend the same courtesy to the Halifax team and at the same time give our own boys the benefit.

The Arena management are doing all in their power to have both games start sharp on time, which will be appreciated by the fans.

NEXT WEEKS GAMES EAGERLY AWAITED

Fans Looking Forward to Real Hockey When Crescents and Abbies Meet at the Arena.

Sport lovers of Charlottetown will have an opportunity to enthuse over hockey next week when the famous Crescents of Halifax will cross sticks with the Abegweits on Tuesday and Wednesday nights. The Halifax team made a great record last season winning twelve straight games, and this year the squad has been considerably strengthened, so that spectators will more than get their money's worth in the contests to be played against the Abbies. In the recent games in the Nova Scotia capital our boys had their work cut out., and won by very narrow scores. The Halifax press claimed that the Scotians had the edge in territory in both games and were equally as fast as our representatives. Their forward line, consisting of Grant Holmes—the famous runner—and the Radford brothers is a speedy trio, while the substitutes have had much hockey experience. The outstanding player is Hallisey, who electrified the Halifax audience in the second game by his sensational and effective rushes. The Crescents will carry eleven players for the games here and intend to reverse the honors if such is possible.

The Abegweits are in good condition and the full squad will be in action. The players came through the Halifax games without injury, and are eager to repeat.

The play will be handled by Mr. Frank Brown of Moncton, who has a Maritime reputation as an efficient referee. It is intended to rigidly enforce the anti-smoke rule and it is felt that every fan will be glad to help the players in this respect.

The sale of seats will open on Monday morning at 9 o'clock at Hughes' Drug store. The plan for both games will be sold on Monday. The band-stand will also be reserved to provide additional seating capacity.

All in all the public will next week see games which will rank amongst the most important hockey fixtures ever held in the Province, and capacity houses will without doubt be in attendance.

Autos Killed 48 In Maine, 19 Were Children

AUGUSTA, Me., Jan 5—Forty-eight of the sixty-two persons killed on Maine highways in 1922 met death in automobile accidents, according to records of the motor vehicle law enforcements division of the state highway commission.

Nineteen of the victims were children. Ten children were struck by automobiles while they were playing in or crossing streets, two were instantly killed while sliding in the street and one was killed while riding a bicycle, just coming out of the school yard. One was killed at a grade crossing accident and one was killed at a bridge approach, in the latter case the driver being unfamiliar with the road, which at that place made a very sharp turn.

One of these children was an infant in his mother's arms. The mother was riding in a motorcycle sidecar when the side became detached and leaving the road crushed into a telephone pole.

As the dates mentioned conflict with other scheduled league games the matter has been handed to the Abegweit Executive for their consideration.

The Abegweit-Crystal hockey fixture, scheduled for last night, was postponed until later in the season owing to the storm blockade.

Error Saved Life Of Free State Minister

DUBLIN, Jan 5—Joseph McGrath, minister of industry, commerce and labor, is believed to owe his life to a strange error in identification made last night when two youths gained an entrance to the ministry on the pretext of having a message from a prominent labor leader. Upon entering the room the pointed revolvers at a man resembling the minister who was there for a conference with him, the invaders sharply ejaculating, "You're McGrath."

A second glance showed the youths they were mistaken in the identity of the man they were covering, and quickly pocketing their weapons they turned and fled, managing to escape pursuit.

Conditions Tending To Imperial Co-operation

"Within the Four Seas All are now Brethren" All have means for Instant Communication and Rapid Transportation Co-operation practicable and Advisable

(BY W. L. COTTON.)

The people of Ireland, free to govern their own country in their own way will, gradually, without doubt, return to peaceful conditions and friendly relationships and arrive at a state of prosperity hitherto unknown in that greatly disturbed country. The bounds of freedom having been considerably enlarged and Ghandi under control, Indian may be expected to enter with zeal into the community of British nations. In all other parts of the British Empire or Commonwealth there is practical contentment with the wide constitutional freedom and the unexampled privileges of self-government enjoyed by the people. The splendid demonstration of practical unity of sentiment afforded in the Great War assure the hope that all members of the Empire will in like manner go forward, in closer unity and friendship than ever before, to Inter-Imperial Co-operation, and to more intimate trade relations resulting in further development and greater prosperity.

Within the borders of the British Commonwealth there are produced all things required by its people. It is, evidently, very desirable that its people exchange the products of its various members and so promote their mutual interests. To that end it is essential that there shall be preferential trade arrangements by which one part of the Empire may be supplied at lowest cost, with the products of the others. Such an arrangement has prevailed in the United States ever since the Civil War. The results are that the natural resources of each of the states in the union have been developed; that industry has been stimulated, that high salaries and wages have attracted to the nation the most skilful amitious and industrious men of Great Britain and Europe as well as of Canada, and that science has been applied to every productive activity; that the United States fifty-five years ago, the financially poorest country in the world, is now the richest; that fifty-five years ago a country comparatively bare of population now contains many teeming cities and millions of wealthy dwellers on the land, while within reach of all are the essential comforts and conveniences of modern life supplied from sources within their own country by means of inventions and factories that have sprung up throughout the nation. Moreover it is to be noted that most of the requirements are obtained a lower prices than those paid for articles of the same class sold in Canada, and other British Dominions and that in respect to not a few articles the prices are as low or almost as low as those asked and paid in Great Britain, after hundreds of years of advancement towards perfection.

With such an example and demonstration before us can there be any doubt in question concerning the best course to be persued by the Dominions and other members of the British Empire? They cannot, it is true adopt precisely the same means as those successfully adopted by the United States. They cannot have absolutely free trade among themselves and a high tariff wall as against the world. They may and, all circumstances and conditions considered be enabled to put into operation tariffs so protective as those which have constrained the people of the United States to be co-operative and inter-dependent, to build up and maintain "home industries" and to develope their natural resources. But they can institute throughout the whole Commonwealth a system of trade preferences, helping one another and promoting the development and prosperity of all. Indeed they have already entered upon a scheme to that end. Between Canada the British West Indies, Canada and Australia, and between other members of the Empire, tariff and trade arrangements have been made under which industry and commerce are promoted. Canada led the way by the adoption of a preferential tariff, proposed in Parliament by Sir Louis Davies for the admission of goods from Great Britain at substantially lower rates than those imposed upon the imported products of foreign countries. The effects of these preferences have been, in every case, satisfactory. Evidently there could be established a system of French preferences to extend to every Dominion and every Dependency of the British Empire.

Conditions alike in the Mother Country and the Dominions are just now favorable to the extension of Inter-Imperial trade preferences. All alike have to obtain additional revenues to meet the national obligations incurred during the war as well as to promote industry and national development, and the imposition of duties upon imports from foreign countries has been proved to be one of the least onerus and most equitable means of obtaining increased revenues. There is no evidence that preferential duties in favor of the British West Indies or Australia has in any way prejudiced trade between Canada and the United States. In view of this fact it seems to be not unlikely that under the pressure of necessity even the Mother Country may, ere long, be induced to impose the higher duties by which revenues are increased upon imports from foreign countries and the lower duties upon imports from all the British Dominions. That by so doing the trade of the Mother Country with the rest of the world would be appreciably prejudiced or reduced is not likely in view of results in the United States. As for the trade of the United States, so far, that of Great Britain, foreign countries, will continue to compete. These countries send their products to Great Britain only because a good market for them is found there, and they will not be prevented from purchasing goods made in Great Britain by reason of duties that may be imposed upon their exports to Great Britain. Indeed the greater prosperity of the people of the British Empire, resulting from industrial co-operation and material preferences is likely to stimulate rather than to depress trade between Great Britain and the rest of the world, as well as between Great Britain and the British Empire at large.

It is to be hoped, therefore, that the Mother Country, under the political leadership of the Canadian home. Mr. Bonar Law will do its part towards the establishment of Imperial Preferential Trade for which Joseph Chamberlain fought in vain.

In any case the British Dominions will do well to continue to promote and extend Inter-Imperial Trade as they have already begun to do. As for the people of the United States in 1865, so now for the people of the British Empire the door of opportunity is open. It is to be hoped that neither prejudice nor attachment to a theory will prevent them from entering.

Summerside Pioneers Defeat Red Sox

In the opening game of the Summerside Hockey League on Tuesday night between the Pioneers and Red Sox, the former won out after a hard fought battle by a close score of 6 to 5.

The game was fast and clean, particularly the first and second periods, in the third period the players relied on individual plays which had a tendency to become slow at times.

For the Pioneers, Corney the goalie, and Rogers on the defense showed up well, while Wright of the Sox's defense and Gauthier of the forwards were the most effective players.

The first period ended 3 to 1. The second 5 to 4 and the third 6 to 5, the Pioneers leading all the way.

The line up was as follows:

RED SOX—Crockett, goal; Wright and Cahill, defence; Gauthier, Silliphant and Monkley, forwards, Croke, sub.

PIONEERS—Corney, goal, Rogers and Clarke, defence; Ferguson, G. Gallant and W. Gallant, forwards; J Gallant, Hinton Grady subs.

Penalties—Cahill, Gauthier Silliphant (2), G. Gallant.

The next game of the league series will be on Tuesday, January 16, between the Red Sox and the War Veterans.

New York Jewelry Robbery Is Now Placed At $500,000

NEW YORK, Jan. 5.—Despite the statement of Mrs. Irene Schoolkopf, wife of C. P. Hugo Schoelkopf, Buffalo manufacturer, who was held up and robbed of jewelry said to be valued at $500,000 early Monday morning as she left a New Year's eve party that she did not want Frank Barrett Carmen, artist-host at the Walch party arrested, Carmen still was being held by the police today. Carmen was arrested last night on a charge of "Acting in concert with two men in robbing," Mrs. Schoelkopf.

The police continued their question on Carmen, quizzing him particularly concerning his past.

The revised story of the party, as the police got it today, was that the guests assembled in Carmen's apartment on the fifth floor about 4 p.m., played cards until 6.30, had supper, and resumed their game about 9. The party continued until the New Year was ushered in, after which Mrs. Schoolkopf, announced she intended to return home alone, despite the hour and the fact that her hotel was half a mile away.

According to the police, Mrs Schoolkopf, descended to the next floor, where she claimed to have met a man introduced to her at the party. She then was drawn into the fourth floor apartment and robbed. The police denied that she had been drugged or chloroformed as previously reported.

London Financier Victim Of New Year's Revelry

MEXICO CITY, Jan 5.— New Year's eve brought death to an English capitalist here, Wilfrid Herbert Gore, well known in London financial circles, who was found dead in a hotel. The failure of Gore to appear led the police to break into his room, where he was found lying in front of an open window. Death was caused by a bullet which entered his head.

Investigation showed that Gore was sitting at his window watching the celebrations incident to the advent of the New Year when struck by a stray bullet fired in honor of the coming year.

Mr. Gore headed a group of English capitalists investigating Mexican business conditions.

TORONTO, Jan. 5.—With two bullet wounds in his head, a clerk in the employ of the C.N.R. named either Wilfred Langmore, of Toronto, or Leagmore, address not known, was found in a locked vault in the head offices of the C.N.R. Toronto, and King Street, yesterday afternoon. The injured man is in the General Hospital where his condition is low and his life despaired of.

Very meagre details are to hand regarding the affair. The police say they know nothing of the shooting. It was not until one of the clerks had occasion to go to the vault, however, that the tragedy was discovered. The man was found huddled in the vault, bleeding copiously from two wounds in the head, and by his side was a revolver.
