Among The Farmers

Federation Of Agriculture News

Perhaps most important in our farm news last week was the successful conclusion of the I. F. A. P. conference at Guelph. Farm organizations of twenty-five nations, speaking through their delegates, elected H. H. Hannam, our Canadian president, as President of the International Federation.

The conference worked out and unanimously adopted a plan for the development and administration of commodity food agreements. They called for special action immediately by governments of the world to do something about distributing the food surpluses of some countries to the needy areas of others. Suggestions were also made to correct the imbalance of trade and the currency problem.

The F. A. O.—Food and Agricultural Organization of the United Nations—the group with the actual power to sign and confirm such agreements, were scored for their slowness in taking definite action. However, they are having a meeting in July, and the farmers have asked the various governments to call a special conference regarding commodity agreements.

It was stressed, and as we Island farmers too well know, that a contract on bacon, eggs, or any farm product for one year alone does not provide much assurance or encouragement. We need contracts and security both on volume and price for two or three years in advance. If farmers knew what they could sell and the approximate price, they could plan their production program with a little security.

Experience has proven that those things can be worked out. Producing countries can arrange their production to meet the needs of consuming countries, provided they know the price and requirements in advance. This new I.F.A.P. plan for a self-sustaining international trade organization may well be the foundation of such a program.

However, commodity agreements and improved marketing systems locally are necessary if a more widespread distribution scheme is to work effectively. But those things will not be put into effect if the farm producers themselves don't see to it.

Maritime Marketing

On Monday afternoon, representatives of farm organizations from the three provinces, the Department of Agriculture, and the packing industry met at Moncton to discuss livestock marketing.

Rail-grading of all lambs was generally accepted as the only policy that would assure all sheep producers a fair return and tend to increase quality. The packers could not agree to buy completely on a rail-grade basis mainly because they handle approximately only one-third of all the sheep and lambs marketed in the Maritimes.

However, a committee was appointed to work out an agreeable ratio between prices of lambs bought rail-grade and live weight. The three Departments of Agriculture agreed to pay a bonus on

Bill Eighty-two

The new National Marketing Act and the necessary provincial machinery and legislation for putting it into effect was discussed at a meeting of Federation and Department officials from each province the same evening.

Although no definite decisions were reached, it was agreed that, in some cases, a marketing board was desirable. Sudden price changes, under-cutting and gambling by a few unscrupulous dealers can only be controlled by a properly constituted board.

The details of such a board for marketing one or two products are now being studied in each province, and some definite action will be taken in the near future.

Freight Rates

The Royal Commission on Transportation will be hearing the Island case here about July 26th. The Federation feels it is unnecessary to present a special presentation will, we believe, cover our agricultural situation completely.

The special Federation Committee on Transportation is working very closely with government authorities on this question. We can assure our farmers that the matter has been gone into thoroughly and that the greatest harmony and co-operation exists between those preparing the case for the province and the farm organization.

Bad "Condition" Powders

Sand, salt, and other materials of no value are being pawed off on many farmers as "conditioners" by disreputable dealers. Done up in fancy packages at fancy prices, they are supposed to contain some miraculous power for anything or everything wrong with livestock.

We have received warnings recently from reputable veterinary authorities warning farmers about thousands of dollars wasted yearly on those worthless wonders.

An analysis made recently by government chemists of one special horse conditioner selling at a fancy price showed it to contain:

Inert material—42%, made up of fine sand, mash, and red ochre.
Mineral matter—41%, made up of table salt, medicinal salt, and potassium iodide.
The other 11% contained some pepper, gentian, sulphur, charcoal, and other valueless matter.

This example will allow any farmer to just for himself the useless medicinal contents and harmful substances included in these mixtures.

Bang's Disease

Many farmers have been worried for some time about the possibility of this dread livestock disease breaking out on the Island. As far as is known, our province is free of it to date. But apparently any person importing cattle to have them tested before letting them in contact with their own cattle.

Any person who understands the effect that such a plague would have on our livestock population will, no doubt, co-operate. Our veterinary authorities are ready to test and inspect any cattle coming into the province. In fairness to ourselves and to our neighbors, we should take all precautions. Some day soon we hope to have a disease-free area for Bang's disease as well as persons who are importing cattle from the mainland to keep them segregated from all other livestock, and notify your veterinary authorities as soon as they arrive.

CHERRY WHIP

1 cup sour cherry pulp (about 2 cups pitted cherries)
2 egg whites
Pinch of salt
1-3 cup sugar

Wash, stem and pit cherries. Crush or chop to a fine pulp. Drain, beat egg whites with salt until stiff and gradually add the sugar. Beat to a light meringue, add cherry pulp and mix thoroughly with rotary beater. Pile lightly in a serving dish or individual dishes. Chill thoroughly and serve, garnished with whole cherries. Yield: six servings.

DEAR MISS DIX: Do you think a girl should marry who hates babies?

ANSWER: No. But you needn't worry about that. When you have a baby of your own it won't be a howling brat, like some one else's baby. It will be a beautiful, adorable, fascinating angel child.

DOROTHY DIX cannot reply personally to readers, but will answer problems of general interest through her column.
